Boy Slayers Now Face Old Crimes

Attempt Made to Connect Leopold and Loeb With Other Deaths

MELVIN WOLF'S DEATH UNDER INVESTIGATION

Tracy Case Also Is Thought a Possibility of Series of Deeds

CHICAGO, June 3.—The Cook county grand jury today was asked to indict Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, youthful sons of millionaires and confessed kidnappers and slayers of Robert Franks, schoolboy son of another wealthy Chicagoan, for the murder and kidnapping for ransom, each crime punishable by death.

At the same time, the authorities investigated the possible connection the two youths had with the deaths of two other persons and the mutilation of a third.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney who is presenting the Franks case to the grand jury in person, ordered assistants today to investigate the possible connection of Leopold and Loeb in the shooting last fall of Freeman Louis Tracy, university student, whose body was found near the school he attended with a bullet through the head, and in the multilation a few weeks ago of Charles Ream, a taxi driver.

Suicide is Investigated

With a similar end in view an unofficial investigation was under way of the death several months ago of Melvin Wolf, who left the home of his wealthy grand-parents to mail a letter and whose body was found in Lake Michigan. Relatives were never satisfied with the decision of the authorities that he had committed suicide.

Eleven witnesses went before the grand jury during the day and more than a score yet remain to be heard. The grand jury re-convenes tomorrow afternoon.

Possible connection between the slaying of Tracy and the youth was found when the authorities discovered that the bullet which killed Tracy fitted a pistol belonging to Leopold and which he said he carried when the Franks boy was kidnapped. A motive for the shooting of Tracy was never found. He appeared to have been a brilliant student and seemingly was without enemies. His body was found almost on the campus of the University of Chicago, the institution attended by both Leopold and Loeb and by Tracy. Friends of Tracy said that he knew both the youths.

A few days after Tracy was slain, Charles Ream, a taxi-cab driver, was attacked and mutilated. Yesterday, he was taken to the state attorney's office by newspaper reporters to view Leopold and Loeb and expressed the opinion that they were his assailants. The authorities were skeptical until an investigation had been made, however as Ream had told them shortly after he was attacked that he did not get a full view of his kidnappers, who clubbed him into unconsciousness and mutilated him after taking him away in an automobile.

Similarity Is Seen

The reason for the investigation the authorities said, aside from Ream's statement that he believed Leopold and Loeb were his assailants, was the similarity of the attack on him and the slaying of the Franks youth.

Robert Franks was abducted as he walked home from school and, according to confessions of the youths, was struck over the head and strangled to death a few minutes after they induced him to enter the automobile in which they were riding. Then they tried to collect $10,000 ransom from the boy's father but failed when Jacob Franks the father, did not understand their instructions. A few hours later the body of the boy, which had been found in a South Side swamp, was identified.

Except for the fact that Wolf lived in the same neighborhood as the Franks youth, Leopold and Loeb families, and Tracy, nothing was revealed to indicate a possible connection between the youths and his death.

U. S. FLIERS ATTEMPT TO LEAVE SHANGHAI

Lieutenant Smith's Plane Has Engine Trouble and Cannot Start

TOKIO, June 4.—Despatches from Kagoshima indicates that the United States Army around-the-world fliers made an attempt to hop off from Shanghai this morning.

The aeroplane of Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the flight, who is accompanied by Lieutenant Leslie P. Arnold as mechanician, developed engine thouble and did not leave. The other aeroplanes may have continued their journey, but there is no verification of this.

Tokio, June 4.—Captain P. D'Oisy, the French aviator, flying from Paris to Tokio, left Ping Yang, Northern Korea, at 5.05 this morning and arrived at Taiku, Southern Korea, at 8:45 a.m.

MAYOR IS EXPECTED HOME

Mayor K. A. Blachford who has been attending the sessions of the grain commission at the coast, is expected to arrive in the city tomorrow morning.

MARX-STRESEMANN CABINET RESUMES RULE IN GERMANY

Hectic Parliamentary Crisis Is Ended When Efforts to Re-open Negotiations with Nationalists Fail—Result Is Union of Peoples' Party With Clericals and Democrats. Chancellor Re-appointed and Ministry Confirmed by Ebert.

BERLIN, June 3.—The Marx-Stresemann cabinet, which resigned May 26 but continued to carry on current affairs, is back in office. President Ebert tonight re-appointed Dr. Marx as chancellor and confirmed the members of his ministry to their posts.

In the period intervening since the resignation of the cabinet, it had been found impossible to bring about an alignment of parties so that a new ministry could come into power, and the final outcome is a re-union of the German People's Party with the Clericals and Democrats, enabling the Marx-Stresemann combination to return to office.

The decision to end the most hectic of parliamentary crisis came at the close of a day marked by desultory attempts to re-open negotiations with the German Nationalists. The latter's political ambitions, however, convinced Chancellor Marx and his associates in the Democratic party that further parleys with the Hergt party would force the middle parties into an ignominious position, and the chancellor led the way in announcing his determination to return the retiring ministry, or resign the mandate given him by President Ebert.

The chancellor immediately summoned the members of the present cabinet to the chancellory, where the cabinet will re-constitute itself and agree upon an official declaration, which will be submitted to the Reichstag tomorrow afternoon.

Dr. Marx emerges from the recent crisis as the innocent victim of an attempt to coax the German Nationalists into a non-Socialistic republican cabinet. Throughout his negotiations, however, the chancellor has been eminently frank in emphasing the conditions under which the reactionaries would be tolerated in the cabinet, and at no time did he permit Dr. Hergt to believe that the controlling influence in such a broad coalition would be relinquished by him.

KILLED BALLOONISTS FOUND

MONTICELLO, Ills., June 3.—The bodies of Dr. C. L. Meisinger, of the United States weather bureau, and Lieutenant T. Neely were found in a field near here this morning, following the explosion of a balloon last night in which they had ascended to study air conditions around storm centres.

J. A. MacKELVIE, M.P., SUCCUMBS TO STROKE

Yale (B.C.) Member Dies Suddenly in Ottawa After Attending Session

OTTAWA, June 4.—John A. MacKelvie, member of Parliament for Yale, B. C., died of heart disease at his apartments in the Alexander Hotel here at 1 a. m. this morning.. He was in his fifty-ninth year.

Mr. MacKelvie, after attending the night session of the House, retired at 10:30 p. m., complaining of pains over his heart.. About one o'clock Mrs. MacKelvie was awakened by her husband, who was in great distress.

She roused Senator Schaffner, M. D., who lived in an adjoining apartment, and although he rushed to the bedside of the stricken man, it was too late. He had died in his bed during the interval.

Mr. MacKelvie was born in St. John, N. B., and since 1893 was editor of the Vernon, B. C., News.

Plans To Fight Fire Losses Laid

TORY IS SPEAKER

Alberta University Head Tells Convention Dominion Is Behind Times

MONTREAL, June 3—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in annual convention here, today, adopted a resolution authorizing its executive to form a joint committee with the National Fire Prevention Association and the American Waterworks Association to further organize against fire losses in Canada.

Members also went on record as favoring creation of a national institute of scientific research in Canada.

Action with regard to fire prevention came after F. H. Wentworth secretary of the National Fire prevention Association, had told the convention that all physical problems with regard to fire prevention had now been overcome. What was needed now was to touch the people's "pocket nerve," make the man in the street realize that fire insurance constitutes indirect taxation on everything sold, and breed in the people generally a desire to prevent fire waste he said. He termed the United States the "worst, the most careless, the most profligate nation in the world with fire losses" adding "Canada is worse than the United States."

Canada Behind Times

Canada is twenty years behind the times in application of science to industry, Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the University of Alberta, and chairman of the honorary advisory council for scientific and industrial research, declared in an address.

He announced that the council has decided to raise a $1,000,000 national research fund and said the campaign would shortly open.

Instability in tariff matters and tariff changes were blamed by speakers for withdrawal of almost 450 firms from the Canadian Manufacturers, Association in the past year.

Thomas Roden, Toronto, held that the tariff was the cause of the dropping out of 201 houses which went out of business, 107 direct resignations and 26 manufacturers pleading financial embarrassment

"Rather a tragic year," he remarked.

Canada for Canadians

Pleading for a spirit of loyalty between Canadian manufacturers Mr. Roden said he thought industry would regain prosperity by hearty support of the "made-in-Canada" movement. He added: "It must be Canada for the Canadians."

ELEVEN PEOPLE ENROLLED THEIR NAMES YESTERDAY

List of Candidates in Bulletin Contest Will Be Published Saturday—Race for $15,000 Worth of Prizes Will Start Next Week—Room for Many More People—See Page 13

"Well," I just cleaned up 160,000 votes in subscriptions this afternoon."

The speaker was a big ruddy-faced man, who is known on every street in Edmonton. He was nominated as a candidate in The Edmonton Bulletin's $15,000 Cash Prize Contest a few days ago, and yesterday when he strode into the office he was breathing optimism in every gesture.

"Going strong! Well, I should say so!" he cried. "My wife thinks I should take the car, but I'm after the $2,000 cash. I need the money and it will just give me the chance I have been wanting for years. You watch me!"

Eleven people enrolled their names yesterday. Among the number were one doctor, two stenographers, one fireman, four housewives, one merchant and two insurance broker.

A number of people have already enrolled their names and have started to work. Others have merely registered and plan to start next week. Others, again, are still hesitating and in some cases they will be still hesitating when the contest is over.

Saturday's Bulletin will carry a special announcement which will put every contestant who has entered upon his toes and will no doubt inject a little courage into some who would like to take part, but lack the necessary courage to make the start.

A lady over sixty years of age who competed in the last Bulletin contest, and secured a cash commission prize, sent in her nomination this week, accompanied by five new subscriptions.

The first list of candidates will be published in Saturday's Bulletin. Will your's be among the number Remember that $15,000 in Cash Prizes is to be distributed. Get in and get your share.

Call at the Contest office 10405 Jasper Ave. or phone 2205 and talk to the Contest Editor. It might be the means of putting you in the way of making from $500 to $2,000.

Derby Holds Interest Of All Britons

SANSOVINO IS FAVORITE AT 7-1

At three o'clock tomorrow afternoon, this greatest of all horse races will be run by a field of about thirty three-year-olds over the mile and a half course at Epsom Downs, with perhaps a million people looking on. Uncounted other tens of millions gathered all over the empire will await the news of the winner with interest, for every one of the British breed who bets at all, bets on the Derby, no matter where he may be.

The biggest pot of all the many that are won on the Derby is piled up, not in the pound sterlings of London, but in the rupees of India—the Calcutta Sweepstakes. In London there is the Stock Exchange Sweepstakes with £50,000 in it for the one who holds the name of the winner, and everywhere throughout the country; in every club, almost in every office—even among little children who have only pennies to place—there is money to be won on the outcome of the great classic.

Great Horses Entered

Most of the great stables of the kingdom will send their best three-year-olds to the starting post. The Earl of Derby, whose sporting ancestor gave the race its beginning and its name in 1780, has entered Sansovino, which ranks first in the betting tonight, seven to one.

King George, who has yet to have his name enrolled with his father's as winner of the Derby, will be represented by Resinato, considered an outsider. The King's first string colt, Knight of the Garter, has been withdrawn, as he is lame.

Steve Donoghue, who has ridden five Derby winners, and is the only rider to win three successively, will have the mount on J. B. Joel's Defiance. There will be two American riders at the post, Archibald, who rides the King's entry, and O'Neill, on Sir Edward Hulton's Spalpeen.

Course to Be Wet

The going is almost sure to be slow and the course wet from the daily rains of the past week.

Betting changes reported tonight showed 7 to 1 against Sansovino; 8 to 1 against Diophon, 10 to 1 against Tom Pinch; 100 to 7 against Bright Knight and Dawson City; 20 to 1 against Hurstwood; 22 to 1 against Salmon Trout; 20 to 1 against Defiance; 33 to 1 against Tipler; 40 to 1 against Optimist II; 45 to 1 against Polyphontes; 50 to 1 against Resinato, and 66 to 1 against Donzelon and Great Barrier, all taken and offered.

FOUR FINED FOR DERBY LOTTERY

OTLEY, England, June 3.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Four men who pleaded guilty to publishing a sweepstakes scheme and selling tickets in a lottery promoted by the Otley Conservative Club in connection with the Derby, were today ordered by the court to pay all the money they had received in the lottery into a bank within a week.

They were each fined fifty pounds for violation of the act respecting lotteries and ordered to pay the costs of the case, one hundred guineas.

YOUTHS KIDNAP AND ROB MERCHANT

St. Boniface Man Is Forced to Open Safe in His Store

WINNIPEG, June 3.—After first kidnapping Charles Moscovitch, manager of a departmental store in St. Boniface, in the hope of finding the day's earnings of the establishment in his possession, thre youthful bandits believed to have come from Winnipeg, forced him last night at the point of revolvers, to return to the store when they found only $30 in his pockets. They forced him to open the safe and turn over to them the contents, approximately $300.

Mr. Moscovitch was getting into his car in front of the store when the bandits appeared from behind a nearby building. They ordered him into the car and one of the youths took the wheel and drove out about seven miles into the country, where they relieved him of the money he was carrying. They then returned to the store. No arrests have been made.

DIES FROM SHOCK OF CATTLE ATTACK

BENGOUGH, Sask., June 3.—Mrs. Charles Weber, wife of Charles Weber, postmaster at Buffiao Gap, about thirty miles south of here, near the international border line, died of shock caused by bruises and fright when attacked by a herd of cattle Saturday night last.

This was the verdict of the jury empanelled by Coroner Dr. R. L. Ireland, Bengough, today, when evidence was taken from a number of witnesses at the scene of the accident.

"Interesting If True," Say New Yorkers, as They Hear This Yarn

NEW YORK, June 3.—After beating off Chinese pirates, floating through two typhoons, losing his rudder, eating a chow dog and part of a sixteen foot python which he killed in a single combat, and making a two-year voyage across the Pacific and through the Atlantic in a fifty-three foot junk of his own construction, Captain George Waard, a Canadian of Dutch parentage, has anchored his queer craft in the calm waters of Sheepshead Bay, Long Island.

He said he planned to remain in this vicinity until "tired of it," and then "set sail through the Panama Canal for China and further adventure."

Japan's Quota Is Discussed

STATUS UNCERTAIN

Reports From Tokio Say Gentlemen's Agreement To Be Broken

OTTAWA, June 3. (Canadian Press)—The question of Japanese immigration came up in the House of Commons again tonight when the House assembled. The Hon. H. H. Stevens drew the Premier's attention to an answer given to a question of his yesterday That answer said that Japan had agreed last year to restrict the number of Japanese coming to Canada as domestic servants or agricultural workers to 150 annually, and was so worded as to imply that 150 was the annual quota of Japanese allowed to enter Canada as settlers.

Mr. Stevens pointed out that the "gentleman's agreement" specified several classes of Japanese immigrants of which agricultural and domestic workers was only one. For instance, "contract labor" might cover a wide field.

Mr. Stevens asked if the Government was aware that despatches from Tokio conveyed the impression that the Japanese government had claimed the right to repudiate the gentleman's agreement where it affected immigrants to Canada and Mexico, because those countries were only included on account of their proximity to the United States. The United States, having changed its laws with regard to Japan, that country had announced its intention to ignore its agreement with regard to contiguous countries. The Premier promised to look into the matter of the reply given to the first question. He was under the impression that the gentleman's agreement referred to agricultural and domestic workers. As for the Tokio despatches, he did not believe that Japan would try to evade an agrement with Canada because some other country had changed its laws. He would, however, see that the house was informed on every phase of the question.

NEW WELL PRODUCES OIL IN ALBERTA FIELD

Security Oils, Ltd., of Calgary Drills in the Kevin-Sunburst Territory

CALGARY, June 3.—The Security Oils, Limited, a company composed of Calgary business men, have drilled a well into production in the famous Kevin-Sunburst field, according to information received in the city tonight. It is estimated that the well will run 100 barrels a day. It was drilled in at a depth of 1,481 feet.

Oil was first encountered at a depth of 1,465 feet and drilling was continued for another fourteen feet into the Ellis sands. Before the bit was taken up, 600 feet of oil was standing in the hole, and it is still rising slowly.

SENATE CONSIDERS BRANCH LINES BILL

National Roads Must Not Be Loaded with Debt, Says Lougheed

OTTAWA, June 3. (Canadian Press)—There was an echo in the Senate tonight of the Canadian National branch lines bills.

The Senate was placed in a peculiar position, said Sir James Lougheed, opposition leader. If they did not criticize or revise legislation they were charged with being a rubber stamp. If they exercised their judgment a section of the press were hostile to them for doing their duty. The country was concerned that the National roads should not be loaded with too much debt and it was entirely the duty of the Senate to give the gravest consideration to the undertaking.

Commercial Grads Defeat Cleveland and Retain Title

Arena Is Filled For Well-Played International Championship Game

VISITING GIRLS HAVE CHANGED PERSONNEL

Only Three of Players Here Who Came For Series Last Year

Commercial Graduates defeated the Cleveland Favorite Knits, 22 to 7, at the Arena last night in the first game of a two-game series to decide the Ladies' International Basketball championship.

The game was interesting all the ways through, although it was devoid of many of the thrilling moments that have characterized some of the previous games seen here in international competition.

The arena was filled with the largest crowd that has attended a basketball game since the Favorite Knits were here about a year ago. It was a crowd anxious to see the the Grads win, but fully appreciative of the good plays made by the invaders.

Different System Is Used

The Favorite Knits are a much changed team from last year. On the occasion of their first visit, when the Grads stripped the "world's champions" of their shorts, the Favorite Knits played a spectacular open passing game—a game both effective in results and pretty to watch. This year coach Kemeny's highly talented troupe of title seekers are making a different system. Their play is of the close-checking type made so familiar here by the Chicago Uptown Brownies. The Knits are not as large a team as last year. But three of the team that made the trip last year are at present on Coach Kemeny's roster. These are Elizabeth Wagemaker, Kathryn McAleer and Marie Haas. The newer girls are not so large as the Dachtler twins and Helen Fisher, but they are stocky and well know how to use their weight.

The Grads had a distinctly off night in their shooting. Even Dot Johnson only registered one solitary field basket. Abbie Scott and Connie Smith who have been the leading scorers on the Grads of late, missed opportunities which in the ordinary course of events would have been turned into baskets without the slightest difficulty. Roughly speaking the Grads missed about three out of four shots at the basket. Most of the missed shots were from close in or from right under the hoop. This is most extraordinary for the Grads. Such opportunities are almost invariably sure baskets for Coach Page's satellites. However, they tallied sufficiently often to send the fans home in ecstacies over another creditable win.

Grads Score First

The Grads scored first. Abbie Scott did the trick on a free throw. The Grads then ran up a total of six markers before the visitors were able to get into the scoring column. The first period ended with the Grads on the long end of a 10 to 4 score. The Grads outscored the Knits 8 to 0 in the second period and 4 to 3 in the third.

Though the checking was close all through the game and play was strenuous there were comparatively few personal fouls called. In all the Grads only had a total of two—the Johnson sisters each drawing one—and the Knits being accountable for four. This eliminated to a large extent the almost continual blowing of the whistle and consequently speeded u pthe play considerably.

The first two periods produced the best play. There was plenty of action and most of the scoring was done in these frames. In the third canto Coach Page used his substitutes freely, and while scoring was not so frequent as it had been there was every bit as much action. In the last few minutes Coach Page put Dot Johnson and Abbie Scott back on the forward line and both teams went at it hammer and tongs and provided a thrilling finish.

2nd ADD. GRADS

Connie Smith Is High

Connie Smith was the high scorer of the game. Miss Constance notched no fewer than eight points. Besides this Connie out-jumped the famous Elizabeth Wagemaker at every toss up. Connie is shining brightly these days. Abbie Scott and Winnie Martin were next in line in the scoring column with six points apiece. Both these young ladies were in the thick of it all the time. Dot Johnson garnered one basket. She was always Dot on the spot to snatch up a pass and played a fine heady game. Mary Dunn was a tower of strength on defence. Time and again she broke up dangerous looking Cleveland rushes and on many occasions dribbled the length of the floor and then back checked and relieved the enemy of the ball. Daisy Johnson, Eleanor Mountifield, Nellie Perry and Helen McIntosh all got into

Newfoundland Votes Change

HOPE IS ABANDONED

Party Concedes Defeat — Monroe Is Expected to Become Premier

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 3—The defeat of the Hickman government in Monday's general election in Newfoundland was conceded by the administration on the basis of returns available tonight. These indicated the election of eighteen oppositionists and two government supporters.

Should the government party carry all the divisions which have not yet reported, it would only divide the membership of the Legislature evenly with the opposition and by-elections would be necessary to replace several ministers defeated at the polls. There are thirty-six seats in the Newfoundland assembley.

Political observers expressed belief that with the present apparent trend of public opinion against the government, ministerial candidates would meet defeat in by-elections.

The members of the cabinet known tonight to have been defeated are: Matthew Hawco, Minister of the Post Office, and Walter Cave, Minister of Finance. Minister of Fisheries Archibald, who is not a member of the cabinet, proper, also was defeated, as well as Edward Emerson, minister without portfolio.

Premier Albert Hickman headed the poll in Harbor Grace division, which elects three members. His two colleagues, one of whom was Archibald, were defeated by Bennett and Russell, oppositionists.

It was believed tonight that Governor Allardyce would call on Walter Monroe, the leader of the opposition, to form a cabinet which would be the third since the Warren ministry met defeat in the legislature on a confidence vote, April 24. The fall of the government headed by Premier Warren was due to its activity in bringing about the arrest of former Premier Sir Richard Squires and others on charges of larceny of public funds. A new ministry formed by Mr. Warren through coalition with the opposition of the last Legislature, resigned as a result of dissensions. Albert Hickman, a former Minister of Militia, then formed the government whose defeat now is admitted.

$500,000 GIFT TO BE ANNOUNCED

MONTREAL, June 3.—It is anticipated that at the meeting of the board of governors of McGill University to be held here Thursday, announcement will be made of the gift of $500,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation to the medical faculty of the university.

This money will, it is understood, be used for the establishment of a university medical clinic in co-operation with the Royal Victoria Hospital.

Drinks Available In Any Church, Says Kentucky Judge

PRINCETON, Ky., June 3.—"Last week it was possible to get a drink in most any church and it was nothing unusual to see a bootlegger teaching a Sunday school class," said City Judge R. J. Dorr today, describing the condition which led to a sweeping clean-up of alleged prohibition law violators that started Sunday afternoon, and which so far has resulted in the arrest of five of the state law enforcement officers.

ADMIRAL SOUNDS WARNING TO U. S.

Fisk Tells Wilbur Japan's Navy Is Stronger Than American

NEW YORK, June 3—Rear-Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, in a letter to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, which he made public tonight, called attention to the present comparative strength of the United States and Japanese fleet for operations in Far Eastern waters which he said was gravely misunderstood by the public.

"Of course, I do not mean to suggest," said the rear-admiral, "that war is even possible, but nevertheless it may be pointed out that the Japanese and the Americans have taken attitudes that are irreconcilable and that the Japanese have virtually broken off diplomatic relations by giving their ambassador a "vacation." Such attitudes and such acts have usually preceded wars though they have not always been followed by war."

Though the people of the United States imagine, he said, that as a result of the naval treaty the United States fleet is superior to the Japanese navy in the ratio of five to three, "this is the reverse of the truth." Even if the United States navy were superior in capital ships he asserted, it is far from being superior in that ratio in active personnel and it is "far inferior" in reserves.

"If Japan should go to the extreme of taking the Philippine Islands and thus force us into war," the letter added, "we should find ourselves in a deplorable condition because of the lack of trained men as well as other requisites."

WINDSOR, Ont., June 3.—University graduates, British war pensioners, college students and retired citizens are among the eighty applicants for the position of caretaker of the city hall at a salary of $100 a month.

SENATE GROUP ASKS MILLERAND TO RESIGN; HE PROBABLY WILL

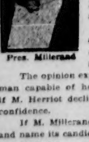
PARIS, June 3.—One hundred and twenty two Senators of the Democratic Left which is the most important group in the Senate, adopted a resolution this afternoon declaring that M. Millerand must resign from the Presidency. The Senate numbers 300.



Pres. Millerand

The Republican Union at a caucus adopted a motion deprecating the agitation against the chief of state and affirming the principle that the President ought to be allowed to fill out his term of office.

The Senators' action is regarded in parliamentary circles as making the situation untenable for M. Millerand. The President's friends still maintain that he will stand firmly on his constitutional rights and wait for Parliament to take a formal vote on the question before resigning.

M. Herriot has kept secret thus far whether he will accept the mission to form a ministry from M. Millerand. If he does, the final issue will come when the new cabinet appears before the chamber.

The opinion expressed in the lobbies of the chamber today was that no man capable of heading the government would undertake such a task if M. Herriot declines, or if the chamber refuses to give him a vote of confidence.

M. Painleve seems to be the favorite of the chamber, while M. Doumergue has the lead in the Senate.

VATICAN IS CONCERNED

ROME, June 3.—The Vatican has learned with regret of Mr. Herriot's intention, if he becomes head of the new French ministry, to suppress the French embassy to the Holy See. This is an unlooked for move so far as the Vatican is concerned.

PRESS PARTY IS AT VANCOUVER

READY FOR MEETING

King's Birthday Decorations Add Gaiety to Scene on Arrival

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 3.—Vancouver put on its best attire to welcome the visiting newspaper editors and publishers, members of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association and the Canadian Press, who reached here at two o'clock this afternoon on board the Canadian National steamer Prince George, for their annual meeting.

All the way from Prince Rupert the visitors journeyed under smiling skies and over blue seas. They were untiring in the praises of the beauty of the coast. The ships in port here were generally decorated in honor of the King's birthday, and this added a note of gaiety to the arrival.

British Columbia undoubtedly has captured the hearts of these eastern and prairie visitors. They cannot speak too highly of it. The trip by steamer south came as a pleasant change after ten days of rail travel.

Many of them are paying their first visit to British Columbia, but they are unusually well informed of problems and aspirations here. Vancouver and Victoria people will feel encouraged to hear their sympathetic views and to experience their kindly and intelligent interest. They regard the tour as a pleasurable educational task, for they are determined to become acquainted with the west, of which they have heard so much.

They were given real western welcomes in Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton, and lost their hearts to the magnificent beauty of Jasper Park. From then on they were won over to the west.

T. H. Preston, president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association, gave the following message:

"To know Canada is to love her.

"Believing this, members of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association have gladly accepted the invitation of their Vancouver members to cross mountain and prairie to hold their annual meeting in your gateway city. It is a city which faces both east and west and levies tribute both from the Occident and the Orient."

"How did Simpkins happen to make a failure of that drug store he opened?"

"He was too conservative; he refused to carry a stock of automobile accessories, lingerie, Venetian glassware or structural steel bridges."—New York Sun.

Europe's Tallest Monarch

Latest photo of Gustav V., King of Sweden, who has become known as Europe's tallest monarch, though Denmark laid some claim to this distinction. This slender, lithe monarch, despite his 66 years, is said to be lightest of step of the monarchs. He was snapped for this picture as he was being greeted at a Stockholm exposition.

"TOO MANY FOXES," COMPLAINT OF ENGLISH SPORTSMEN TODAY

LONDON.

It has been stated in some quarters that at present the country generally is suffering from a plethora of foxes, owing to the prevalence of foot-and-mouth disease and the consequent interference with hunting. It may be so, more particularly in those countries which have gone through a long period of abstinence, but it may be also suggested that in modern times there always are those who are ready to urge that the fox supply is too large, and in comparatively modern times there have been men in almost all the provincial countries who never missed an opportunity of killing a fox by what are known in hunting circles as legitimate means. Last summer at a puppy show in a country where there are frequent blank days, and where long draws are common enough in the latter part of the season, the present writer heard a man state that seven foxes had been "put down" in the neighborhood where he lived, and that he also knew of four others which had been destroyed not far away, on the boundary of two hunts. Time was when vulpecide was nothing more or less than a crime in many a countryside where hunting took place, and the man who was known to have killed or even was suspected of killing a fox was ostracized by many of his neighbors, and at times lost his work in consequence. But the position has greatly changed since those days, and a quarter of a century ago the fox supply was so low that for a considerable period many hunts pased through very poor times, in which the blank day was of almost weekly occurrence. This was almost entirely due to the mange epidemic, which raged with great severity throughout the length and breadth of the land, and which in the worst afflicted countries made hunting only a farce. With one hunt the writer saw a single fox found in three consecutive days, and it was mangy; in another hunt the master stated that he did not think he had killed a single fox that was absolutely clean throughout the season, while another master, who then hunted a large country in which a lot of foxes are usually killed, admitted that not more than two and a half brace of the foxes he brought to hand had been clear of the disease. All sorts of steps were taken: old earths were blown up, drains where foxes were known to lie were as far as possible disinfected, and keepers, game watchers, and even farmers knocked on the head all the mangy foxes they could, such foxes being generally too weak to hunt for their food, and only able to prowl about the hamlets, farmhouses, and cottages in search of something to eat.

Results of the War

Yet by degrees the disease wore itself out, and, by the way, it is to be hoped that foot-and-mouth disease will act in similar fashion and gradualy disappear. Then, to go on with the story, steps were taken—but only in some countries and not everywhere—to get the fox supply up to the mark again. Foxes were brought from the Highlands of Scotland and from English moorland districts where there is no hunting, and gradually there came to be enough foxes in the country to serve the existing packs of hounds. So matters went on during the early years of the present century, but then the war came, and hunting decreased in volume everywhere, owing to a variety of causes. First of all the horses went, willingly surrendered to the Army by hunting men and women from every part of the country. Then after a time the grooms and hunt servants began to disappear, and it became a serious and difficult matter to maintain many of the packs. And from the very first half of the average "field" had joined the ranks, the first lot being the soldiers, the ex-soldiers, and those who were actually members of some Yeomanry or Territorial unit. For a time, a very short period, the pinch was not so greatly felt, though the followers of every pack were veterans or ladies. But in due course great numbers of these discontinued what little hunting they were having, some because they had no horses left, others because the age limit of serving had been raised, while in the case of the ladies war work of a hundred descriptions claimed their time. Several hunts closed down altogether in the last two years of the war—others snatched an odd day— a very short day —when they could, while in some of the bigger establishments the shortage or horses and men caused the hunting to be a mere shadows of its proper self. It should be added, too that the packs were cut down to half their usual strength.

By this time horses in the average hunt were veterans who had to work on reduced rations, and hounds were suffering from the same complaint, while, worst of all, earths were left open because the men who had been in the habit of stopping them had joined up, or if of mature age, had been put to jobs which were more in the national interest. Thus the tally of kills was reduced to lower limits than had ever been known before, and no doubt foxes increased in number. But where it was thought that they were increasing too quickly steps were taken to reduce the number, and the work was carried out by those in authority in each hunt. And in some hunts no reduction was necessary, because there had never been any superfluity of foxes. It may also be mentioned that a good many people who were not in sympathy with sport took the opportunity of doing a little vulpicide on their own account, and, all things considered, it is more than probable that during the latter period of the war quite as many foxes were killed by hounds, by whole litters being destroyed officially, and by persons who acted on their own responsibility, as there are in any ordinary season in any ordinary country. Then, too, it must be borne in mind that it is a most difficult matter for anyone to know how many foxes there may be in any country at any particular time. It is not so difficult to reckon up the number of known litters in the late spring, but even then there is not much certainty about the matter, and how often does one hear a Master remark that "there was supposed to be a litter here, but we have never been able to find them." Again, foxes are strange creatures, and at times hounds will find half a dozen in one covert, and draw the place a blank a month later. Or it may be the other way about, as the writer saw for himself last season, viz., a chain of coverts drawn blank one day, and the same coverts full of foxes three weeks later. When a lot of foxes are found in the same covert or close together someone is sure to say that there are far too many foxes in the country, whereas it is quite on the cards that the foxes of a big district were collected there for some reason which would puzzle a naturalist. In this connection it should be mentioned that early cub-hunting is not being considered, but the later season, after foxes have been well hunted.

As regards what, if anything, is to be done, it must first be said that cub-hunting was little interfered with, and that in many hunts as many, and sometimes even more, the packs got a good cub-hunting ing period than are brought to hand during the regular season. Most of the packs got a good cu-hunting season, and now if certain countries are over-foxed it would appear that there is only one thing to be done, and that is where any complaints may be made and excess of foxes fairly proved, the master of the pack and his subordinates should take the matter in hand, and, if it is thought to be necessary, destroy certain litters of cubs. The one and only way is to have the decision in the hands of the authorities, in any hunt where it is proved that there are too many foxes, and for no one else to interfere. There are, of course, many new masters every spring, but such gentlemen will have no difficulty in procuring full knowledge of the situation with regard to any particular district, while the master of some years' standing will of his own knowledge be in a position to act, if necessary. But it is quite probable that hunt authorities in countries which have lost the greater part of the season will take steps to ascertain the number of litters which are bred this spring, and will, if they think there are likely to be many foxes next autumn, see that certain litters are destroyed. The disposing of litters of cubs is by far the simplest way to reduce the number of foxes in any country, and, moreover, it is in most places a comparatively easy job. Even where foxes are bred in rocks the cubs can be watched and caught in nets, but the average earth in the average English hunting country can be dug out, and the cubs readily brought to hand."

FLAGSHIP TO LOSE POSITION

LONDON

A change that will be of interest all over the world is about to be made in the British navy. The Queen Elizabeth, which, from 1916 to the present, has been senior flagship in the British fleet, is to be deposed from that high position and will become simply a "private ship," or, in other words, just a captain's command instead of the headquarters of an admiral.

With the exception of Lord Nelson's Victory, the Queen Elizabeth is the most famous flagship of the British navy. She was the first battleship built for it that was equipped to burn oil fuel only and was armed with 15-inch guns. Laid down at Portsmouth navy yard in 1912, she was completed in December, 1914, and by Lord Fisher's orders was at once secretly commissioned for service at the Dardanelles. Her unexpected arrival there and her bombardment of the forts constituted one of the sensations of the early part of the war.

She remained at the Dardanelles for three months and was then secretly withdrawn from this sphere of operations and sent into the North Sea to join the Grand Fleet. Of this she became principal flagship in 1916.

The Queen Elizabeth did not take part in the Battle of Jutland, as she happened to be in dock at the time it was fought, but her position as administrative headquarters of the naval operations in the North Sea made her name famous throughout the world. At this period she was fitted as no other warship ever has been. In her equipment were included an extremely powerful wireless installation that enabled her to keep in constant touch with the Admiralty in London—in fact, to "speak round the world" if necessary, a large photographic plant, and other appliances, then novelties in sea warfare. She was often, and not inaptly, said to carry "a cargo of secrets." But the principal factor in giving the Queen Elizabeth a name that will endure in naval history was that aboard her Lord Beatty dictated to the German delegates the terms for the surrender of the High Seas Fleet. This event took place in the fore cabin of the Admiral's apartments, and the room remains to this day much as it was when Admiral Beatty received the German Admiral and gave him orders to hand over his fleet, for that is what the proceedings practically amounted to.

When the German fleet was actually surrendered, the Queen Elizabeth led the Grand Fleet to sea to bring in the captives, and past her the British and American warships steamed in single file to "cheer Beatty" after the German squadron had been conducted into the Firth of Forth.

After the Grand Fleet dispersed the Queen Elizabeth became flagship of the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet. In that capacity she has figured in some notable pageants and has had the honor of carrying the King's standard when he was afloat as Head of the Navy. Under the redistribution scheme which comes into effect next August the Atlantic Fleet will lose most of its best ships. These are being transferred to the Mediterranean, where the largest British fleet will be located in future. In preparation for the change Admiral Sir John de Robeck, who flew his flag in the Queen Elizabeth while she was at the Dardanelles and was the first admiral to hoist his flag in her, is about to hand over command of the Atlantic Fleet to Admiral Sir Henry Oliver. When he does that the Queen Elizabeth will cease to be a flagship and her place will be taken by the battleship Revenge, which is a newer though a slower ship.

In the Queen Elizabeth there is a wonderful collection of silver trophies the gift of the City of Paris, of American admirers of the vessel, and so on.

KLAN EDICT MAKES EXILES OF HUNDRED

Gamblers, Moonshiners and Bootleggers Have Short Shrift in Virginia Town

WILLIAMSON, W. Va.—More than 100 men and women, listed as undesirables by the Ku-Klux Klan, left here today following an edict issued last night by the Klansmen, giving all gamblers, bootleggers, moonshiners and disreputable women forty-eight hours in which to get out of town.

The drive to clean up was begun by city and county officials. Klansmen, apparently believing the exodus of undesirables was not progressing as it should, took the matter into their own hands and visited five of the leading hotels here, notifying the proprietors that they must order all undesirables to quit their places.

The Klansmen made their incursions into the domains of the undesirables minus their regalia, but no effort was made to disguise the fact that they were members of the hooded order.

Klansmen were at the railroad station and on the principal highways leading from the city to make sure of the departure of those who had come under the ban.

ASKS AIRPLANE TO COVER LARGE PARISH

"Sky Pilot" as Name for a Clergyman May Have a Definite Significance

LONDON—"Sky pilot" as a nick name for a clergyman will soon have more definite significance if the example of the Rev. L. Daniels, formerly a London curate, now in charge of a parish in New South Wales, Australia, is widely followed. The minister is here to make an appeal for a single-seat airplane to enable him effectively to travel among the members of his congregation scattered over a parish as large as all of England.

His district, Wilcannia, in the far west corner of the Australian state, has an area of 40,000 square miles. It consists of a number of small townships, many of which are about 200 miles away from his home station. Then too, there are scattered sheep farms and isolated homesteads.

The Rev. Mr. Daniels will be able to manage his own plane if he gets it, for he was trained as a pilot during the war.

THERE'S A LOT OF TRAINING IN A BLITHE "NUMBER, PLEASE"

Telephone Operator's Voice Also Her Fortune—Must Study Tone, Enunciation aond Other Courses at a Special School

NEW YORK.

Being a telephone operator in New York means much more than sharing the 9,500,000 telephone calls made each day. It means more than uttering a fair proportion of the 225,000,000 words spoken daily in the mere establishing of connections, at least 90,000,000 of which fall to the operator's lot. It a girl wishes to hold her job at the exchange, she must play her part at the switchboard with a clarity, a courtesy and a cheerfulness that come only through arduous training and constant practice in "speaking with a smile."

In the early days of the telephone, strength of vocal chords was the criterion by which operators were picked. A boy invariably got the job, and learned in the school of experience to shout through the wooden instrument called a "butter stamp," which served as both transmitter and receiver. Today shouting has gone out and training has come in, so that "Number, please?" and "The line is busy" may become easier and more natural instead of harder and more monotonous at each repetition.

Girls on other jobs may bid for the favor of customers in a variety of ways. With the telepohne operator her voice alone is her fortune, and so the company sees that she makes the best of it. Every operator must go to the voice school. Tone, enunciation, and voice placement are the courses she must take. The tone of her voice, she is told, must be as carefully selected as the color of her frock. Enunciation must be watched as painstakingly as the cut and style of her costume.

It is up to the operator who speaks first with her "Number, please?" to pour the lubricating oil of pleasantness upon the business of getting a phone connection. Her tone will strike the keynote, her instructor points out. Thus she can be almost sure to strike a responsive chord in her listener. The importance of enunciation, too, is stressed. If she enunciates correctly the chances are that the person at the other end of the wire will imitate her example unconsciously.

"This is especially important to an operator in New York City," explained one of the instructors in the voice school. "Any one who lifts the receiver may ask for a telephone served by some one of more than 500 central offices within the metropolitan area. The operator must recognize the names of these offices, spoken in any accent of the twenty-six nationalities represented in the population of New York. Such central office names as Blythebourne and Decatur often become Blitabore and Decaktour. At these times the operator must summon her imagination and intuition as well as her best vocal technic."

The class in enunciation is first told to delve into its pockets for tiny mirrors and watch itself talk. Then are laid down the rules for a special "daily dozen," to be practiced at home, in some secluded spot out of range of small brother's charges that "sister is making faces at herself." The first essentials of proper enunciation are laid down as flexible lips, tongue and jaw.

"Reading aloud at home is another good way to develop this flexibility of voice," the instructor continued. "And the young voice students are schooled in the principles of resonance. It is proper formation of tones that allows the future operators to keep the smile in the 999th "number, please?" without getting tired. A voice which for lack of resonance is forced in the throat is likely to tire."

BRITISH EXPENSE DWINDLES IN EAST

Distribution of Largesse Will Cease in Arabian Peninsula

LONDON

The amount which Great Britain expects to spend in the middle east in the financial year 1924-25 is £5,719,000. This is the burden of the estimates for the middle east department of the Colonial Office which have just been laid before parliament. The anticipated expenditure is still considerable, but it shows a large reduction as compared with 1923-24, when the corresponding figure was £8,668,500. In 1922-23 it exceeded £11,600,000. The midddle east is thus a diminishing charge upon the British taxpayer, and it is hoped that if and when Irak has been set on its feet as an independent state the burden will dwindle to insignificance.

The middle eastern estimates fall under three main heads — Irak, Palestine and Arabia. Of the total of £5,750,000, all but £1,000,000 goes to Irak. The civil administration is now self-supporting, except for a small grant toward the expenses of the British high commissioner. On the other hand, the garrison, consisting mainly of air force units and Indian troops, accounts for an expenditure of nearly £5,000,000. In addition Great Britain provides £580,000 for the maintenance of the so-called "native levies." These constitute an Arab force between 5,000 and 6,000 strong, under the orders of the high commissioner, and distinct from the Irak army, the whole cost of which falls upon the Irak government. The "native levies" are really auxiliary troops attached to the British garrison, and as they release a certain number of British troops which would otherwise have to be provided, their cost is, at present, borne by the British taxpayer.

Palestine is this year to cost the British taxpayer only £990,000, as compared with £1,555,000 in 1923-24. There has been a substantial reduction in the size and cost of the garrison, which now consists only of some air force units and armored cars, together with a British cavalry regiment. A further saving has been effected by the discontinuance of the British contribution to the exchequer of the Transjordanian government. Emir Abdullah is now left to rely upon his own financial resources.

"So you propose to take my daughter from me without any warning?"

STONE PREDICTS 1,000 LABOR BANKS IN STATES

CLEVELAND, O., June 3—"Inside of five years there will be 1000 labor banks in the United States.

"They will stabilize the country's financial market."

Mr. Stone introduced the country to co-operative banking. He is now director in nine labor banks and is organizing two more.

WOULD TEST THEORY BY USE OF BIG ROCKET

Dr. Goddard Plans to Send Missel to Record Height in Test

WORCESTER, Mass.—Dr. Robert H. Goddard, of Clark University, will send up his test rocket late this summer.

"It is now being constructed, but will not be ready for its flight into the clouds until August at the earliest. It is designed to ascend ten miles above the earth, perhaps a little more than that, perhaps a little less, but higher than any rocket has yet gone," Dr. Goddard said today. "The contrivance will be about five feet high and six inches in diameter. It will be loaded with a series of explosive charges, which will be ignited at pre-determined intervals in the flight of the projectile, each giving a powerful 'kick' to accelerate the rushing motion through the air. The height attained will be measured by triangulation.

"The rocket will do on a small scale what one of the same type, but of large size, would accomplish in making a flight even to the moon. Upon the success of the experimental projectile may depend my effort to reach the lunar satellite."

TONS OF QUININE USED IN PLAGUE

Malaria Has a Tremendous Start in Siberia, Urals and South Provinces

MOSCOW

The tremendous epidemic of malaria, of which more than five and a half million cases were registered last year, promises to develop into a scourge of ten-fold proportions this year. The disease has already a tremendous start in Siberia, the Urals and the southern provinces, eleven times as many cases being reported as at the same time in 1923, and it is getting into its stride in similar fashion along the Volga and in the northern provinces.

Tons of Quinine

Literally tons of quinine are being used to combat the epidemic, the Ukraine Government alone having distributed 2,500 kilograms for anti-malarial work, and some attempt is being made to apply modern methods in combating mosquitos by draining pools in the vicinity of cities. The quantity of quinine is inadequate and it is difficult to distribute to remote villages.

Grave Form

Malaria is in a very grave form, and with a high death rate raging both among urban workers and the peasant population. The health authorities have had far greater success in dealing with typhus and cholera, the latter being almost stamped out completely, only one minor outbreak with 70 cases being reported at Rostoff.

The 1923 campaign against coolies as typhus carriers reduced the disease, which claimed 4 per cent of the total population as victims in 1920, to manageable proportions. Its prevalency, however, is still four times the pre-war rate. The cases occur largely in children's homes.

BARES SOUL TO SAVE MURDERER

Paris Woman Deserted Son When a Baby to Shield Her Name

PARIS

Here is a "movie" reel from real life in Paris.

Emile Deresbourg, a scene shifter and "super" in a Paris theatre, meets a modest employee of the playhouse, and is tempted by her. He is a weak character, a criminal type. He discovers that the woman has saved considerable money. He robs her, and when she threatens him, he kills her.

The murderer is arrested. He confesses, and is sent to the Sante prison to await preliminary examination by the Corbeil magistrate.

In the Courtroom

The scene now shifts to the dingy little room of M. Brisson, the magistrate. The culprit is brought in between gendarmes. He is shackled and defiant. He replies to interrogation with bad grace, expresses contempt for the law and society in general. He discloses that he never has known his parents; he never had seen his mother within the age of memory, and his father was a mystery.

A commotion is heard outside the magistrate's room. A gendarme announces that a woman insists upon seeing the dignitary. She is bidden to enter. She is a neat little woman of middle age. Her station in life is apparently above the ordinary. In her hand she clutches a small black bag. She is at first too filled with emotion to talk. She forces the bag upon the magistrate. She glances at the culprit, standing aside without show of interest, and there is deep sorrow in her eyes. A tear glistens.

She speaks:

"He is my son! If he is a criminal and murderer it is all my fault—my fault alone. I abandoned him when he was a tiny baby and left him without a mother's love and guidance."

The Mother's Story

Shift the scene back twenty years—the young girl arriving from the country into the big metropolis of France. She seeks work and finds the only position open to her — domestic service. She is betrayed by a handsome young courtier. She is discharged by her employer. All alone in the world, she seeks charitable help of the poor law authorities.

The child is born, and she intrusts it to the care of official strangers while she seeks work. The child is registered under a fictitious name — "Deresbourg." Then the young country girl, who dares not again see her parents under the disgrace which she keeps secret, meets a young workman. They fall in love and are married, but she keeps her secret from his also.

The son gradually is forgotten by the mother. Fear for her happiness in a modest cottage is the cause.

Then suddenly retribution and remorse. The Paris newspapers tell the story of a brutal murder and describe the criminal. It is a youth who fought well and bravely during the great war, winning two medals for valor on the field in the face of the enemy. It is "Deresbourg," a graduate from a Paris charitable institution. Nothing more is known.

But there is one who knows. She confesses all to her husband. He is loyal, and they place all their savings of years in a little black bag, which the sorrowful mother places before the Corbeil magistrate.

"I went to the poor law offices, and after some days of searching I found it was true," she tells the grizzled old magistrate. "Now I have come to ask you what I can do. My husband and I want to have the best lawyer to defend my poor boy."

Mother and Son

The murderer is left alone for a time with his mother, while the old magistrate retires, his eyes damp with emotion. The trial is postponed until a well known Paris lawyer, who is chosen to take the case, has time to prepare the defence.

Young "Deresbourg" was badly wounded in the head during the war. Medical experts are asked to examine the youth. The defence is insanity.

The grim shadow of the guillotine in the courtroom. The anxious mother with her faithful husband watching the boy and listening to every shred of evidence. The anxious moment when the jury files in. Grief stricken, remorse shattered, broken old woman? Mother love vindicated? Which?

CANADIAN SPEAKER PRAISES SPIRIT OF SCHOOLS IN FRANCE

Fred Ney of Winnipeg, Talking in London, Says British Do Not Develop Sense of Nationality as Much as the French

LONDON, June 3 (Canadian Press Cable)—Fred Ney, of Winnipeg, the principal speaker at a meeting of the Colonial Institute here this afternoon, contrasted the British and French systems of education, especially with regard to citizenship in the light of a recent visit he made to France. He said it was not an easy thing to develop a sense of responsibility in the English schools, but the sense of nationality generated across the channel was striking.

There, the name of France was made to live vividly, and a real feeling of duty towards their own country was fostered in the schools, Mr. Ney said.

Mr. Ney asked the British people not to be too hard in their judgment of certain signs pointing to a growing similarity between Canada and the United States. If the similarity continued it would be due to lack of duty and interests on the part of the people on this side of the ocean towards Canadians, he said.

Professor W. F. Osborne, of the University of Manitoba, said he believed it was due to the grace of God and good luck that Canada was now British. Canada, he said, was losing the cream of the country to the United States, but he was not afraid of her devotion to the empire if the people of Great Britain had imagination as to the potentialities and significance of the empire.

Mrs. C. Stone, Nanticoke, Ont., writes: "Some time ago I had a very serious attack of dyspepsia, and was also troubled with gas on my stomach. I could hardly eat anything, and very often had pains after meals. I had used different medicines, but they didn't seem to do me any good. At last I happened to run on the track of Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it for a short time I felt a lot better. I continued its use until I was completely relieved and now I am ready to recommend it to anyone troubled as I was."

FRENCH MONOCLE BAN AROUSES HUN WRATH

Military Order Terming It Badge of Prussian Militarism Is Resented

BERLIN — When the French commandant in Wiesbaden recently ordered all French officers to cease wearing the monocle because it was a badge of "Prussian militarism," he aroused the ire of German editors, who declined to have the monocle saddled upon Germany. The editors call attention to the French name of the single eyeglass.

Dr. A. von Wilke, reviewing the history of the monocle, says the old Prince of Sagan, whose principality was in Germany, but who lived most of his time on the Paris Boulevards, won wider attention perhaps than any other man through the constant wearing of a monocle. General von Seeckt, the present chief of staff of the Reichswehr, is never seen without a monocle. The German editors declare the horn rimmed spectacles to be just as much the badge of the poseur as the single eyeglass.

MAN WHO SHOT SELF LIKELY TO RECOVER

Girl Says Man Was Angry Because She Bobbed Her Hair

SASKATOON, Sask., June 3.—Dana C. Stewart, Liberty, Sask., farmer, who shot himself Monday at Los Angeles in the home of Lilian Warnes, whom he hoped to marry, is likely to recover unless complications set in, a special despatch from Los Angeles to the Saskatoon Phoenix stated tonight.

It further stated that police are investigating Stewart's claim that his visit to the girl's home was for the purpose of recovering deeds to property belonging to him which he turned over to the girl when they were engaged. Miss Warnes, however, denies he ever gave her anything.

The girl told the police she recently had her hair bobbed and said this was one of the reasons Stewart was angry with her.

TRUST FIRMS TO BE ASSESSED

Tax Will Also Be Levied Against Trust and Loan Concerns

OTTAWA, June 3—The assessment of insurance, trust and loan companies to recover the expenditure incurred by the government in the operation of acts relating to such companies is proposed in legislation introduced into the House of Commons.

The assessments are to be based on the income of the companies, ascertained in certain ways specified by law, and the finding of the superintendent of insurance is to be final in fixing them.

In the case of insurance, the rate of assessment is to be based on the proportion borne by the expenditure of the government in connection with the Insurance Act to the gross premiums income of all insurance companies transacting business under the act, less the amount paid by all companies in dividends to policy-holders. The rate thus arrived at is, in turn, applied to each company in a similar manner to ascertain the assessment due from the company to the government.

In the case of trust companies the assessable fund is the total income of the company. The rate is struck by calculating the ratio between the expenditure of the government in connection with the Trust Companies Act to the total income of all the companies, and this rate is then applied to each company to ascertain the amount of assessment due.

The procedure in the case of loan companies is similar to that in trust companies.

PROPERTY OWNERS INSPECT CITY PLANT

First-Hand Information Is Sought on Proposed Extension of Filtration

With a view to securing first-hand information about the proposed extension to the filtration plant, the executive of the Property Owners' Association paid a visit yesterday afternoon to the city power plant and filtration system. They were accompanied by Commissioner C. J. Yorath and Acting Mayor J. T. J. Collisson.

Upon the information they secured about the proposed expenditure of $65,000 for filtration and sedimentation basin, the executive will make a report to the association at the next general meeting. Among those making the inspection were N. A. Kilburn, W. W. Prevey, A. H. Skenfield, J. G. Suss and Harry Rendall.

WAR WITH JAPANESE THOUGHT UNLIKELY

Adimarl Hideo Takeda, Returning from East, Appreciates American Racial Problem

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 3.—"Japan will not go to war with the United States over the exclusion differences. Those two countries would be foolish to fight over such a thing. After all, the United States has a big racial problem which Japan has not. Japan is one united nation."

This was the opinion expressed this morning by Admiral Hideo Takeda, who retired from the navy in 1914 and is now chairman of the board of directors of a large shipbuilding and electrical appliance company in Tokio. The admiral arrived from the East this morning, having spent the last six weeks in the United States, and will sail for home on Thursday on the Canadian Pacific S.S. Empress of Asia. He was on private business only, he said.

SAYS CANADA IMPOSED UPON

Miss Charlotte Whitton Charges "Certain Institution" Is Doing Wrongly

URGES A PROTEST

Declares Offspring of Unmarried Parent Are Flooded on Dominion

TORONTO, June 3—"Most of the juvenile immigrants from the British Isles who are children of unmarried parents, are sent out here by a certain prominent institution," declared Miss Charlotte Whitton, Ottawa, in addressing the annual convention of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire here this afternoon on child welfare work. Miss Whitton levelled innumerable strictures at this "certain institution," saying:

"That institution is continuing to force those children on this dominion. The women of Canada should not tolerate the gross imposition of this 'well known Home'."

Between the provincial governments and the federal department, there is an utter lack of co-operation on the question of immigration, she said. Responsible authorities in Quebec alone said that they already had 15,657 dependent children on their hands. They had such large families, they were unable to take in more children. The federal department should appreciate the truth of this.

Juvenile immigration, she said, was not a natural social procedure. Usually it is the result of a grave social complex in the source of immigration.

From Factory to Farm

As far as Canada is concerned it was largely a question of immigration from the British Isles. It was a question whether these children were merely being brought from the factory benches of England to farm labor in Canada. Generally, these children were dependent institutional children, and there was a decided minority from poor homes in over crowded centres of population.

Miss Whitton quoted J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., of Winnipeg, to the effect that the poorest homes in Canada was for these children palatial compared to the ones left in England.

The provincial chapters were practically active in child welfare work. In British Columbia, one chapter alone spent $12,000 in providing milk for under-developed school children.

The treasurer of the Daughters of the Empire presented a report showing a surplus of $370,424.25 in investments, bank balances and other interests and a disbursement of $35, 820.95 for the year.

"Echoes," the national organ of the Order, was reported to have reached a sound basis with a subscription list of 9,308, and a profit of $234.10 for the year.

Children are Placed

Work as summarized from the provinces include home placing and advanced legislation for the children purchase of books and pictures for the schools, northern Ontario fire relief, care of tubercular patients and of children in the homes during illness of the mother. The outstanding work, educationally, is the war memorial giving secondary and higher education to the sons and daughters of dead or disabled soldiers and sailors. For this, the sum of $16,461.53 had been spent during the year.

The organizing secretary reported one new provincial chapter, Quebec; thirty-two primary chapters, two children's chapters and fourteen new life members.

KIWANIANS HOLD DAY OF SPORTS

Dr. Anderson and Harry Parlee Win Distinction at Quoits

Local Kiwanians and their wives and families joined in a most successful picnic at Borden Park yesterday. High top paper hats were in order with the members of the sports committee, who announced to all and sundry the various events.

Baseball, races, whistling contests, a cocoanut shie, and other games requiring pitching skill were on the program. Grant Pemberton captained a successful baseball team in a game against a team led by George Booth, winning to the tune of 15 to 12.

Novelty races were the order of the day, notable among these being the race for bald-headed men, in which the winner, Mr. G. S. Cairs, received a bottle of hair restorer for his prowess. The winner of the fat man's race, William McLennan, was presented with a bottle of patent reducing medicine.

At the quoits competition Dr. Anderson and Harry Parlee carried off the winning total, and were so adept at the pastime that they must have got their training in the good old days, behind the livery barn. George Findlay and George Steer carried off the honors in the golf putting competition, while Mrs. G. Findlay and Mrs. Dell McFarlane were successful in the ladies competition.

L. Lynch was the unfortunate victim of an accident during the afternoon. While the baseball game was in progress the bat flew from the batter's hands striking Mr. Lynch on the head. He was removed to a local hospital for medical attention.

The committee in charge of the arrangements consisted of Messrs. William McLennan, James Carmichael, W. Fawcet, Gilbert, J. Slade and many assistants.

"Ma wants two pounds of butter exactly like what you sent us last week. If it ain't exactly like that she won't take it." The grocer turned to his customers and remarked blandly, "Some people don't like particular customers, but I do. It's my delight to get them just what they want. I will attend to you in a moment, my boy." "All right," said the boy, "but be sure and get the same kind. A lot of dad's relations are visiting our house, and ma doesn't want 'em to come again."

NORTH DAKOTA BANK IS FORCED TO CLOSE

Grand Forks Institution Hopes to Pay Depositors in Near Future

GRAND FORKS, N.D., June 3—The First Savings Bank of Grand Forks suspended payments today and will be placed on a special deposit list Tuesday, it was decided at a meeting of representatives of the institution with those of three other banks here and a representative of the State Depositors' Guarantee Commission.

The bankers authorized the statement that negotiations are under way which, it is believed, will insure payment of depositors in the near future.

Depletion of reserve was the chief cause of the suspension. The bank is capitalized at $50,000 and its deposits amount to $296,273.

MARCONI WILL VISIT TORONTO

Accepts Invitation to Attend Mathematical Congress Early in August

TORONTO, Ont., June 3. — (By Canadian Press.) — Guglielmo Marconi is among European radio experts who have accepted invitations to take part in the sessions of the International Mathematical Congress and the British Association for the Advancement of Science, to be held here in August, according to a cable received from Prof J. C. Fields, who is arranging affairs in Europe for the mathematicians' gathering.

G. W. O. Howe, chairman of the wireless section of the Institute of Electrical Engineers, and member of the Radio Research Board of Great Britain, who is regarded as one of the leaders in this aspect of physical research in the British Isles, will deliver an address at the British Association sessions as chairman of the section devoted to engineering. Prof. Howe is editor of the Radio Review, and professor of electrical engineering at the University of Glasgow.

Richard Whiddington, Cavendish professor of physics in the University of Leeds, is another wireless expert from Great Britain who will contribute to the conference. Dr. Whiddington conducted research on wireless communication for the Air Force and the Flying Corps during the war, and is the author of publications in the field of wireless telegraphy of practical significance.

Senator Marconi is associated especially with the practical development of radio, as he was the first to incorporate the ideas of earlier scientific workers into an apparatus which was successful over an appreciable distance. Later, he was directly instrumental in inaugurating regular trans-Atlantic service, and communication with ships at sea.

To Marconi is due also a share of the credit for the perfection of the thermionic valve of "tube" now indispensable for transmission and reception of telephone, as he collaborated with Professor Fleming in the development of this device.

The visit of the European authorities is of particular interest in view of the tremendous development which has taken place in the broadcasting business in European countries during the past twelve months. Removal of the ban on home-made receiving sets in Great Britain recently has given an impetus to radio there, with the result that in the opinion of experts, English stations are now in advance of the larger corporations in the United States in carrying out ambitious programs successfully.

The discussions at the forthcoming scientific conference are expected to throw light on questions which are of prime importance to radio-telephony, such as the elimination of atmospheric disturbance.

BISHOP'S MOTHER DIES

LONDON, Ont., June 3.—Mrs. Bridget Fallon, mother of Bishop Fallon of the Roman Diocese of London, is dead, aged 75.

ADJOURNMENT DATE IS FIXED

Tentative Plan of United States Farm Relief Bill Drawn Up

WASHINGTON, June 3—By a non-partisan vote of 54 to 36 the Senate today adopted the House resolution fixing seven o'clock next Saturday night for final adjournment of the first session of the 68th congress.

Less than two hours after the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill had been sent into the discard today by a vote of 224 to 154, Republican leaders in the House had tentatively agreed on a substitute. The comprimise probably will be outlined to President Coolidge tomorrow and it was indicated that if it reaches his approval an attempt will be made to enact it into law before congress adjourns Saturday.

Details remain to be worked out, but a rough draft of the new plans would place the marketing abroad of certain surplus farm products, limited to wheat, flour, livestock and meat products, in the hands of the War Finance Corporation, which would be authorized to buy from farmers at prices in advance of market quotations.

Funds of the corporation would be available for purchase and losses sustained in foreign sales would be charged against them. The life of the emergency act would be limited to July 1, 1935.

ALWAYS SOMETHING IN PICTURE WORK

Mrs. Ida Waterman, Despite long Stage Career, Prefers Movie Life

Mrs. Ida Waterman, who plays the role of Mrs. Marturin Colbert in "A Society Scandal," Paramount's screen version of Alfred Sutro's play, "The Laughing Lady," starring Gloria Swanson and produced by Alan Dwan, began her screen career in the old Biograph's Co.'s production of "Classmates," with a cast which included Henry B. Walthall, Marshall Neilan and Blanche Sweet. She had scorned pictures as did most of legitimate stage actors until the filmed record of the Messina disaster convinced her of their limitless future.

Mrs. Waterman, despite her rather long career behind the footlights, prefers pictures to the stage. "There is always something new in pictures," she says. "I'm glad I capitulated even though it took the Messina earthquake to overcome my prejudices against the movies."

"A Society Scandal" will be shown at the Empress for the last times today. Rod La Rocque, Ricardo Cortez, Allan Simpson, Fraser Coalter, Yvonne Hughes and many others are included in the strong supporting cast.

MENNONITES LEAVE FOR MEXICAN FARMS

They are being transported in a special train of 18 freight cars, three passenger coaches and a baggage car. Each family has enough provisions to feed them for one year and is taking a few head of livestock and some machinery.

Extract from an essay by a Cape Town schoolboy after visiting a sitting of the House of Assembly:

"Then a man called the Speaker came in with a wig on, and other men with wigs on and a man called a sergeant with a gold club. Mr Speaker sat in a great chair, and looked very carefully at the side where the Government sit and then at the other side and round at all the members, and then he got up and prayed for his country."

COOLIDGE FORGETS HIS CARES; FINDS AMUSEMENT AT CIRCUS

Trained Elephants, Tight-Rope Walkers Drive Taxation, Jap Exclusion and Bonus Completely Out of the President's Mind

WASHINGTON.

Trapeze performers, tight-rope walkers, trained elephants, horses, dogs and bears, and the other youthful delights of the sawdust ring crowded taxation, Japanese exclusion and the bonus completely out of the Presidential mind for more than two hours today while Calvin Coolidge enjoyed himself at the circus.

It was "circus day" in Washington and President Coolidge, who somewhat proudly admits that he comes from a family of "inveterate attenders of circuses," abandoned his office in the White House and all attached to it, and with Mrs Coolidge drove out to the edge of the city and took his place "under the big top."

Mr. Coolidge did not eat any peanuts, nor drink any red lemonade, nor did he join the general laughter of the crowd at the anti-prohibition jokes of the circus clowns, but otherwise he forgot the dignity of his office and his official troubles gave way to the one trouble of everybody at a circus—that of trying to see everything with performances going on in five rings at a time.

An observer of the President at the circus came away with the impression that he likes bareback riding, trapeze performances and trained dog acts better than all the rest of the things that go to make up a circus. At least he applauded those portions of the show more than the others.

Before going out to the circus the President got to reminescing about the days when, as a Vermont boy, he used to go to circuses, although admitting that his desire to go was never gratified to the extent that he thought his interest in circuses justified. He mentioned that his grandfather and father seldom missed a circus and recalled having been told by his grandmother that his grandfather once rode horseback to Brattleboro, sixty-five miles from Plymouth, to see a circus performance.

The President said he saw his first circus at Ludlow, six miles from Plymouth and the nearest railroad town to his home. He was six years old then, but he said he could remember distinctly seeing Adam Forepaugh—he recalled it was Forepaugh's old horse and wagon circus—sitting at the ticket wagon watching the sale of tickets.

That circus sufficed until he got a little older, Mr. Coolidge said, and the next one he saw was not a one-ring show, but the big three-ring Barnum & Bailey Circus, which used to come occasionally to Rutland. On the occasions when he went to Rutland he recalled that it was necessary to get up at 3 o'clock in the morning and drive over the mountains to arrive by the time the circus unloaded. Mr. Coolidge added that quite often he was disappointed because of arriving too late to see the tents go up.

Memories of those days plainly came back to the President today as he sat in the big tent beside John Ringling and gave himself over to the enjoyment of an acknowledged American institution. Mrs. Coolidge enjoyed the performance as much as the President and seemed to get even more enjoyment than he out of the circus.

BRITISH HOUSING PLAN OUTLINED BY LABOR

Expenditure of £34,000,000 Annually Is Contemplated

LONDON, June 3.—In the House of Commons tonight John Wheatley health minister, outlined the Labor government's vast plan for solving the housing problem. It comprises a system of state subsidies of £34,000,000 annually, extending over a long period of years. An ultimate expenditure of approximately £1,378,000,000 is involved in the project.

Mr. Wheatley pointed out that the growth in the population imposed the necessity to build 100,000 new houses annually, and that this number under present conditions was not nearly being attained. Housing conditions throughout the country, owing to lack of buildings, consequently, was rapidly becoming more acute.

CHICAGO ACTION UNDER PROTEST

Canadian House of Commons Hears Denunciation of Diversion of Water

OTTAWA, June 3.—(Canadian Press)—Warm protests against the diversion of water from the Great Lakes by the Chicago Sanitary District were heard in the House of Commons tonight.

The Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, opposition leader, declared that the "utter callousness" of the proceeding was "becoming more and more brazen and surely we must now realise that any matter of mere words, particularly in the matter of letter writing, is not going to get us anywhere in rescuing us from the position we are in." Mr. Meighen charged that the district, in lowering the level of lakes and rivers, was costing millions to shipping and the upkeep of canals, paid for by the sweat of the Canadian people.

The Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, gave a review of the question. Canada, he said, had never admitted that Chicago had the right to divert a foot of water from Lake Michigan. The right to divert 4,600 second cubic feet had been granted to Chicago by the Secretary for War for the United States many years ago. This amount had been increased until now Chicago was diverting 10,000 second cubic feet. At present there was a controversy going on between Chicago and neighboring states in regard to this water diversion. The Canadian government had repeatedly protested, maintaining that it had agreed to no diversion and did not intend to. The best information that the government now has was that there was not a very serious likelihood of Chicago being able to maintain its position.

EXTRA STREET CAR SERVICE TO START

Starting this morning, extra street car service is being put on at the rush hours to Calder to provide for the extra transportation demand occasioned by the large number of workmen at the new elevator.

From 101st Street and Jasper a fifteen-minute service will be maintained from 6:49 a.m. to 8:19 a.m. and again during the afternoon from 3:49 to 6:19. There will be the usual thirty-minute service at other times, with the early and late cars as usual.

MAY DEPORT FINNISH REDS

Investigation of Activities Shifts to Their Homeland; Preach Sedition

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., June 3.—Deportation of several Finlanders, resident in this district, who are said to have been active in "red" circles, and who have, it is alleged, preached the gospel of sedition and overthrow of local government since their arrival in Canada, may be the result of an investigation by immigration authorities.

Endeavoring to obtain sufficient evidence to warrant the deportation of the men, it is said, the investigation has now shifted overseas to Finland.

It has been learned that Finns who have not sworn allegiance to the "cause" are hounded and that intimidation of employers of men not in the ranks of the "red" party has been resorted to.

The probe resulting from the revelations in the Society Prosvita investigation and the suicide of a Finn, who had declared he had been hounded to desperation by the "reds."

THE 1500 CLUB OF EDMONTON DISTRICT

The trustees of the 1500 Club held their usual monthly meeting recently when a number of new members were admitted. The Society has now been in existence since October, 1922, and has a membership of over 1200 men.

Applications are numbered as received at the Office of the Society. The first 1500 will become members, subject to approval of the officers. Applications received after 1500 limit has been reached will be placed on a waiting list and moved up as vacancies occur either from death or non-payment of dues or assessments. Notice of such vacancy occurring will be mailed immediately to the next applicant in order on the waiting list. The age limit for new members now is between the ages 18 to 45 years.

Since the organization of the Club only three of its members have died, and there has been a total of $2541.00 paid to their beneficiaries. The object of the Club is to furnish protection to the beneficiaries of its members. Those already members are enthusiastic, and this is easily understood as when, unfortunately, a death occurs, the relatives or depetndents receive a cheque for a substaontial sum to take care of any pressing and immediate obligations.

The Secretary-Treasurer of the Society, J. J. Anderson, Union Bank Building, Edmonton, is always ready and willing to explain the aims and objects of the Society, and to answer any written enquiries.

Post Office Defeats North Edmonton in Third Division

TWO INTERESTING GAMES PLAYED IN INTERMEDIATE BASEBALL LEAGUE

POST OFFICE ELEVEN BEATS N. EDMONTON

Posties Put Up Splendid Exhibition—Fine Crowd Turns Out to See Fixture—North Edmonton Scores Only Goal on Penalty Kick

The Post Office eleven defeated North Edmonton in a hard fought Third Division football game at Renfrew Park last night, by a score of two to one. F. Green scored the Postmen's first goal, and Hakin accounted for the second one, on a penalty shot.

Conlin scored North Edmonton's only goal on a nice corner by Percy Duke. A strong wind favored North Edmonton in the first half, but although this team had several beautiful chances, they went through this period scoreless. The Mail men played a nice consistent game, worrying the opposing defence at all times, and allowing few chances on their own goal. The Posties started the second with a one goal lead, which was soon increased to two goals, holding North Edmonton scoreless until the dying moments of the game, when Conlin headed in their only counter.

First Half

For the first fifteen minutes of the first half play was very even considering the advantage North Edmonton enjoyed in having such a strong breeze behind them. On a nice pass from Grant, Green drove the ball past Houghton for the Post Men's first counter. North Edmonton then had a swell chance to get an equalizer, but nobody was there, and for the rest of the period the Post Office crew kept their goal out of danger. The period ended with both teams playing even and the score standing Post Office 1 and North Edmonton 0.

Houghton Stars

In the second half neither team had much of an advantage for the first ten minutes or so, but then the Post Office came to life and drove in shot after shot on Houghton, who made some pdetty saves. The Posties were awarded a penalty kick, and Hakin scored, giving Houghton no chance to save. North Edmonton played a losing game right up to the close of the period, when Conlin headed a perfect corner by Percy Duke into the nets for their only score.

Tom Hughes refereed the game to the satisfaction of everybody.

Post Office	Position	N. Edmonton

ALL-STARS WIN SOCCER MATCH

Administer Handy Beating to "Rep" Team of Queensland

BRISBANE, June 3.—Canada's soccer football team, touring the Antipodes, this afternoon administered a crushing defeat to a picked team representing the state of Queensland, scoring four goals while their opponents failed to tally. In holding the Queenslanders scoreless the Canadian All-Stars displayed splendid form. Another large crowd of 10,000 persons saw today's game. Two of the goals were scored by Linning, while Fred and Stobbart scored one each. Mosher, Anderson and McLean put up a stonewall defence, and Stobbart, Linning and Forrest were the stars of the forward line.

Noseworthy, Hood, Sandford, Wilson and Chapman did not play. The Canucks have rounded into form and are now in the pink of condition. The first test game of the tour to be played here on Saturday is arousing great interest. Members of parliament are tendering a reception to the visitors on Thursday.

The tour of Australia commenced on May 10. The Canadians have now won three games, lost one and four have been drawn.

CARPENTIER TO FIGHT TUNNEY

Evidently the Gorgeous One Has Not Had Enough

CHICAGO, June 3—Georges Carpentier, French light-heavyweight, who lost to Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, at Michigan City, Ind., Saturday plans to leave today for New York where negotiations will be continued with Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, United States light-heavyweight title-holder for a bout at an early date.

Dempsey May Have Hard Time When He Meets Wills

If Harry Wills had two good hands, sound and true, we'd pick him to give Jack Dempsey the fight of his life. But the negro's hands are brittle, susceptible to sudden and serious hurts, and for that reason it is hard to figure him.

Wills has more genuine fighting ability, natural and otherwise, than any man Dempsey has ever faced. He can hit harder than Willard, Brennan, Miske or Carpentier. Being a two-handed fighter, he is more dangerous than Firpo, whose left is as useless as a fork in a soup bowl.

Gibbins is the only big fellow who is as skilled in defensive tactics as the Brown Panther. Wills, however, is in the lamentable position of a gunner with plenty of high-class ammunition and no weapons. What will it profit him if he puts all he has behind a sound wallop and pulls up with a busted mitten?

Wills' Hands Are Brittle

Wills runs the risk of a broken hand whenever he lands solidly. Probably no fighter has suffered as many breaks as the New Orleans man. Many of these occurred in days gone by when he mingled exclusively with the colored heavies. Next to Vermont granite there is nothing so trying on the human hand as a colored gent's hard noodle.

Only recently Wills broke his hand in the gymnasium and was forced to postpone a fight with Bartley Madden, one of the ring's distinguished stuffed shirts. This fight, by the way, is set for May 12. It ought to give the bugs a good line on the condition of Wills' hands, if nothing else. Madden is tougher than a longshoreman's vocabulary, and Wills will have to saturate him with punishment to knock him out.

Dempsey Rocks the Giants

Willis is taller and heavier than Dempsey. His reach is longer, and he is only three years older. You can throw Wills' physical superiorities out in considering Dempsey. As the world knows, the champion is always at his best when fighting bigger men. He demolished the huge Willard and battered the giant Firpo into a hulk.

But Gibbons, the light heavyweight, held him off for fifteen rounds. An exception was Carpentier, also a light heavyweight, who went out in four rounds. The Frenchman, however, had little real ability aside from a fine straight right-hand punch, and he fought a rash, heedless fight besides. The bigness of Wills will have no bearing on the outcome of a Dempsey fight.

Wills May Lose on Foul

Of late years Wills has developed a habit of holding with one hand and hitting with the other. In this style of fighting he is most effective. Holding and hitting, of course, constitute foul tactics. No alert referee will tolerate it.

Dempsey and his manager, Kearns, will probably have much to say in the selection of the referee. They may be counted on to select one who not only knows a foul when he sees it, but will not hesitate to act.

I look for Wills to give Dempsey a hard fight if his hands hold out. If not, I look for Dempsey to win off by himself in one of the early rounds. I wouldn't be surprised, either, if Wills lost on a foul.

Three Rookies Have Won Regular Berths

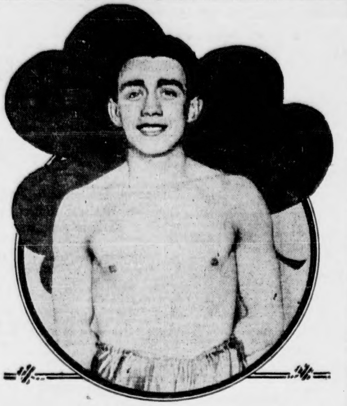
Willie Kamm, high-priced third sacker of the Chicago White Sox cinched his job, while Summa of Cleveland and Manush of Detroit played regularly in the outfield.

IRISH CHAMP!

Mr. Gilmore of Dublin Confounds Reporters by Spurning Corned Beef and Cabbage, to Say Nothing of "Begorra"



BILLY GILMORE

The trouble, if any, with Billy Gilmore, recently arrived from Dublin with the lightweight championship of Ireland, is that he fails to sustain any of the popular illusions which fictionists have associated with that country, and its picturesque citizenry.

For instance, Mr. Gilmore does not smoke a clay pipe. On greeting reporters and other undesirables, he does not say, "Begorra, I'm glad to meet you, bye." He expresses no uncontrollable passion for corned beef and cabbage and mention of the king of England does not bring the flush of anger to his face.

It is going to be hard for us who take our romance from printed papers to warm up to Mr. Gilmore as a legitimate representative of the Emerald Isle. Aside from his rich, dulcet brogue, the young gent seems to be just an average person. He even lacks the belligerent note you expect to find in a champion fighter from a champion fighting country.

• • •

Beat One of the Maloney Boys

Mr. Gilmore is here looking for digital business. He thinks he would like to take on Charley White or Pal Maran as a starter and then advance by easy stages to a championship match with Benny Leonard.

Mr. Gilmore admits considering Leonard an excellent fighter. "Most of the Jewish fighters are for that matter," he adds, by way of further astonishing you.

Gilmore won the Irish championship last October by defeating Tommy Malony—and sure you've heard of the Maloneys on points in Dublin. Apparently the newcomer runs largely to science as distinguished from walloping, a characteristic acquired from the Britishers with whom he got his early fistic training. His unmarred features attest to his fine defensive skill.

An Irish Lightweight Needed

It has been a long time since the ring had an outstanding Irish lightweight, and ages since an Irishman ruled the division as champion. This is strange, too, for the division has a glorious tradition. McAuliffe, for instance, emphatically Irish, retired undefeated, a distinction owned by no other champion.

Gans the negro, Nelson the Dane and Wolgast the Dutchman made unforgettable ring history in subsequent years. There was some Irish Ritchie, who succeeded Wolgast. Welsh, who came next, was from Wales, and Leonard is a business man, and a darned good one, as most Hebrew lads are.

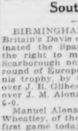
Plenty of Them in Amateur Field, with Knepper, Von Elm, Cummings and McHugh Heading List



Joe Lynch

NEW YORK, June 3.—Phil Glassman, of Philadelphia, manager of Lew Tendler, and Joe Lynch, former bantamweight champion, were today indefinitely suspended by the State Athletic Commission, and Harry Martone, of Jersey City, boxer, was suspended for thirty days.

The ruling against Glassman was taken due to his action in allowing Tendler to meet Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, in Philadelphia, last night. Walker is on the suspended list in this state, due to his failure to answer Dave Shade's challenge.

Lynch was set down following similar action taken against him in Connecticut for the failure to fulfill a contract to box in Meriden, Conn., May 22. Martone was suspended for fouling Phil Kaplan in his match at Madison Square Garden last night.

BRITAIN'S DAVIS CUP TEAM WINS

British Stars Next Play in South Africa

BIRMINGHAM, June 3.—Great Britain's Davis cup team today eliminated the Spanish team and won the right to meet South Africa at Scarborough next week in the third round of European play for the tennis trophy, by virtue of the victory over J. B. Gilbert of the British team over J. M. Alonzo, of Spain, 6-0, 6-4, 6-0.

Manuel Alonzo had defeated J. B. Wheatley, of the British team, in the first game today, bringing the score in the British-Spanish contest to two all. Spain having won two singles matches and Great Britain the doubles and one single. The score in the Manuel Alonzo-Wheatley match was 6-3, 9-7, 2-6, 6-4.

Miss Collett Wins Golf Championship

NEWTON, Mass., June 3.—Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, won the women's eastern golf championship for the third time in as many years at the Braeburn Coutry Club today. Her total for the 36 holes was 163.

McGRAW LIKES HIS ROOKIES

Boxing Entries for The Olympiad Close

PARIS, June 3—The entries for the boxing events in the Olympic games closed tonight. France, Australia, New Zealand, Denmark, Great Britain, Argentina, Norway and Hungary and the United States will be represented in the various classes.

Swedish Olympic Tryouts Disappoint

STOCKHOLM, June 3.—Elimination try-outs for the Swedish Olympic games team, just held here, provided disappointment, except among the hammer, discus and javelin throwers, while the long distance runners were promising. The jumpers were considered weak.

Firpo Withholds His Signature

BUENOS AIRES, June 3.—Luis Firpo is withholding his signature from articles of agreement to fight Harry Wills, pending the settlement of the date on which the fight is to take place. This Firpo insists must not be earlier than August 20. Preferably he would like some day in September.

BELMONT'S FREAK

St. Illilier, a four-year-old French horse, trained at Belmont, is described as being the most unimpressive looking horse in appearance ever seen at the track, and the most impressive looking when it comes to speed.

REGINA HOLDS VERY FINE MEET

Outsiders Carry Off Most of Spoils

REGINA, Sask., June 3.—After lying almost dormant here for almost ten years, harness racing was successfully revived today by the Matinee Driving Club.

Outsiders carried off first money in all four first events, Calgary horses winning two races and the others going to Saskatchewan entries. With the exception of the 2:35 pace, which opened the card, the races were won in straight heats.

Possibly the outstanding feature of the afternoon was Russ McGirr's triumph with Diamond D., the Maple Creek pacer, in the 2:12 pace.

Hal Harden, owned by Haffner, of Craven was easily Diamond D's foremost rival for the honor position of the day, by his straight-heat victory in the 2:20 pace.

Esmeralda, the Matheson entry, from Calgary, was the only winner to lose a heat, following Kid Gano under the wire in the first heat of the 2:35 pace. McGirr achieved his second victory when he piloted his Belle Bird to glory in the matched pace with Onward R., the Regina horse, driven by Annis.

Tom Taylor won the race for local horses in two straight heats with his Pal O' Mine.

Fire Department Lifts Its Ban

NEW YORK, June 3.—The fire department ban against the Queensboro A.C. and its Long Island City boxing arena was temporarily lifted today when the board of standards and appeals granted a thirty day permit to officials of the club to conduct baxing contests.

Following this ruling officials of the club announced that the Willis-Madden heavyweight would be held there Monday night, providing the State Athletic Commission issued a license to the club.

WILL SUCCEED TERRY

LONDON — The successor to Sir Richard Terry as director of music at Westminster Cathedral will be the Rev. Vernon Russell, who has for several years been attached to Westminster Cathedral. During the past month Mr. Vernon Russell, who was a student at Trinity College of Music, has had the assistance of the Rev. Lancelot Long, who is also one of the Cathedral clergy.

GIBBONS TO FIGHT TUNNEY

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 3.—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul light-heavyweight, today accepted terms, through his manager, Eddie Kane, who is in Chicago, for a championship bout with Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight title-holder, to be held in New York, June 23 or 25.

SHILOH WINS FROM YOUTHFUL BEARCATS

Calders Administer First Defeat of Season to Radials—Many Bubbles Mar Both Teams' Play—Fine Crowd Turns Out to Diamond Park

Shiloh took the measure of the Bearcats ball club in a hotly contested fracas, putting a 10-to-7 defeat over them before a large crowd of enthusiastic fans at Diamond Park last night.

The game was a real contest all the way through, but several errors marred the evening's play. The youngsters who represented the losers put up a game fight to their much older opponents. The crowd was on its feet all the time at the closeness of the struggle, and only the third inning was loosely played by the Bearcats. At all other stages they tried all the time. Johnson, schoolboy hurler for the losers pitched a steady game but several times foozzled plays on the part of the fielders robbed him of a perfect day. Four of the ten hits registered against him came when short flies between the infield and outfield were allowed to land safe owing to the inability of the players to figure which one should take it.

Several nice catches were pulled out of the horizon by the fielders, however. In the fifth Lee, playing centre field for the winners, made a great run in from the far end of the meadow and picked up a fly from Johnson's bat.

In the sixth inning with the Bearcats at bat, Carruthers only needed to fling the ball towards the plate three times before the side was retired. Gowda was thrown out at first on the first ball, Williamson flied out to left field and Onions lost in a close race for first in this inning.

In the final inning the game was brought to a close when the second and third basemen of Shiloh spent some time throwing the ball back and forth to retire Wynnechuk, who tried to steal third.

Carruthers pitched great ball for the winners up to the seventh, allowing only one hit in the first six innings, in the seventh everybody hit him, but the bingles were not counted against him owing to poor support in the field. He was yanked and King replaced Carruthers after allowing four runs to be registered against him. The relieving flinger allowed three hits.

The Bearcat aggregation is a much younger troupe of players than the Shiloh Club, but they put up a fine argument. With a little more experience several of their number should develop into first class ball players.

The score:

Shiloh	105 020 11—	10	10	8
Bear Cats	003 000 40—	7	3	5

Shiloh—Carruthers, King and Bowens. Bear Cats—Johnson and Onions. Umpire, Frank Drayton.

Calder Wins

Calder defeated the Radials in an Intermediate baseball game last night by the score of 16 to 9. The weather was pretty cold for real fast ball, but at that some nice playing was witnessed. Calder took the lead in the second inning, and outscored the Radials in each succeeding one, up till the sixth, when the game was called on account of darkness. The batteries and score were as follows:

Radials	004 032—	9
Calder	025 801—	16

Dadsguard and Cody; Geddes and Dollinghan. McConnachie umpired the game to the satisfaction of both sides.

Connaught Cup Games Start This Evening

The first Connaught Cup game will be played tonight at Renfrew Park between Clover Bar and Revillons at 7 p.m., sharp. These two teams are evenly matched and a first class contest is looked forward to. Elizabeth Wagemaker, captain of the Cleveland Favorite Knits, will take the initial kick-off, and with such a start no doubt both teams will battle to the last whistle. The following players are expected to turn out for the two teams:

Clover Bar—A. Moffat, D. Nesbet, T. Trotter, W. Ramage, W. McLelland, J. Hardy, T. Hunter, A. Varley, C. Field, D. Hutton, R. Davidson, J. Hunter, J. Grey and T. Cochrane.

Revillons—Garner, Parker, Price, Harrison, Bell, Stevens, Jones, Primrose, Freeman, Pyper and Hughes.

CITY TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS TO BE DECIDED AT HOLY TRINITY COURTS

City Tennis Tournament

Holy Trinity Courts Have Been Secured For the Tournament

ENTRIES CLOSE 1 P. M., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11

Junior Age Limit Will Include Only Those Under Eighteen Years

Committee in charge of the Annual City of Edmonton Tennis Tournament met recently and concluded arrangements for the holding of this Tournament commencing Saturday, June 14, at the Holy Trinity Courts. The committee in charge are H. H. Nash, Frank McCarthy, Dr. Dunsworth, J. Bill, W. E. Morris and Harry Patriquin, to which have been added from the Holy Trinity Club in an advisory capacity, W. H. McMahon, E. E. Boon and G. C. Montgomery. Jimmy Bill is official referee and W. E. Morris, secretary.

All entries close at one o'clock, Wednesday, June 11, and must be handed in before that time to either W. E. Morris c/o Western Canada Flour Mills or to Harry Patriquin, 431 Tegler Building. Entry blanks are now in the hands of the different club secretaries. There is a complete list of open and handicap events including junior singles on which the age limit has been reduced to include only those under eighteen years of age on June 14, 1924.

There are several new departures from the usual custom this year, chief of which is the combining of the Singles, Open and Handicap events. All players entering in a singles event will first play in the open event until eliminated or until this event has reached either the sixteen or eights stage when those remaining will complete the open event, and the others will play out the handicap event. The benefits expected are that the best players will be excluded from the Handicap event, giving the others a better chance, the impossibility of the same player competing in the semi-finals or finals of both events and congesting the draw, and the cutting down the extremes of handicap. As the open draw will be "seeded" the last few rounds should bring forth some of the best tennis seen in Edmonton for some time.

A charge of ten cents is being made for each entry which with an additional two-and-one-half cents will be remitted to the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association under their regulations. These regulations call for a similar amount to the Alberta Lawn Tennis Association but they are foregoing their portion of this levy.

Spectators may secure admission to the ground for a fee of ten cents per day until the last two days when the fee will be twenty-five bers of Holy Trinity Club will be welcomed at all other city clubs.

WOULD ARRANGE BENEFIT MATCH

Bill Adams Has Scheme to Help Newsies

A proposition has been placed before the Edmonton Football Association by Bill Adams, that he choose a team of old-time football players, who have not played the game for ten years, and that this team compete in an exhibition match with a team to be chosen from the three divisions, governed by the Football Association; the proceeds to be given to the Edmonton Newsboys' Band Overseas Fund. This proposition has been laid before the Association, but as yet, has not been accepted.

REVILLONS TO PLAY BAY

Revillons and Hudson's Bay ladies Mercantile basketball teams will play a scheduled game this evening at the old hunting grounds, Hudson's Bay Athletic Grounds, the game gets away at 7.45 o'clock.

Foresters Will Play Shiloh, Diamond Park

Two splendid baseball games will be played this evening. The Shilohs are to play with the Independent Order of Foresters Club and it will prove to be the stellar ball attraction of the season. The game is an exhibition affair and both teams are out to win. Shilohs were the Intermediate League champions last year while the Foresters were the runners-up. This season the Foresters have not been going good—but they nevertheless figure they can hand the Shiloh crowd a licking. On the other hand the Shiloh boys are going fairly well this year and they not only figure they can win, but they are sure they can. Max Mays and either Mountfield or McConnell will be the battery for the Foresters. "Shutout Wagner and Bracton will form the Shiloh battery. The Radials are expected to have an easy task tonight when they play at the Exhibition Grounds against the Bearcats. Foresters-Shiloh game starts at 6.30 o'clock, and will be played at Diamond Park. Radials-Bearcat tilt gets away at 7 o'clock.

JACK DEMPSEY K.O.'S 3 IN ROW

He Laid Out His Men With Ease

LOS ANGELES, June 3.—Jack Harrison Dempsey, leading man in motion pictures and world's heavyweight champion in the ring, Knockout three heavyweights for the entertainment of a capacity crowd at Vernon arena tonight.

Only one of the champion's opponents was able to come back for the second round of punishment. Dempsey, cooly an dtastefully attired in lavender trunks, laid out his men with ease, grace and precision and incidentally aided in raising an estimated total of $35,000 for the Milk Fund of the Los Angeles Philanthropy and Civics Club, which promoted the card.

Rocco Lost His Ambitions

Rocco Stragmalia, the impulsive Italian, who last summer was credited with blackening Dempsey's eye during a training camp bout, was the first to enter the ring against the champion.

Dempsey belabored him with both fists, assaulted him on all sides and had him crawling for cover before the gong ended the first round. Stragmalia came up groggy for the second session and was again clouted relentlessly. He seemed anxious to avoid further punishment and Dempsey humored him for a time, but after a minute had ticked off he put the Italian to sleep with a solar plexus punch. Efforts to revive Rosso were successful after several minutes.

Ryon Decides to Quit

Tall and strapping, he looked the conquering hero until a handful of Dempsey's vigor smote him. He was on the canvas in a few seconds and seemed inclined to stay there, but the champion courteously lifted him to his feet, later flattening him to the floor again. Once more Dempsey stood the big lad on his feet uand this time Ryan stood up until the bell. He refused to come out for the second round, however.

Eli Goes Out Via Left Hook

Then Eli Stanton, third and last heavyweight to be led out to the slaughter, stepped lightly into the ring and began dancing about the champion. Dempsey backed off, measured his man carefully, and finally, with painstaking, placed a smashing left hook on Eli's chin. It was a knockout.

NORMAN LEE IS GOLF CHAMPION

Defeats Jim Mountifield in Hotly Contested Match

One of the most hotly contested golf matches that has ever taken place in this city was played yesterday afternoon at the Country Golf Club when the club championship was decided between Norman Lee and Jim Mountifield. When the players had reached the thirty-sixth hole they were tied and it took four more holes before the contest was decided in favor of Norman Lee. Although he was beaten Jim Mountifield the youthful golfer of this city was not by any means outclassed. Just give this young man a few more years at the game and watch him step with the best of them. In the second flight Julien Garrett and Morris Judith played their match, Garrett being returned the victor six to five.

SPORT IS MY SUBJECT

By DEACON WHITE

Cleveland's mystery team, a dashing, snappy collection of basketball sharps, clothed in raiment that rivaled the lillies of the field, failed to competely mystify Coach Page's whirlwind cluster of world champions, the illustrious Grads, and went down to defeat in a close checking conflict last night by the count of 22 to 7.

The principal margin of difference between the two teams was a superior brand of team work on the part of the Grads and superior height. In shooting baskets, also, Captain Winnie Martin's crowd from forwards to guards had a distinct edge, with the captain herself displaying a marked ability.

Coach Kemeny's outfit however showed up the best of any visiting team this year, and battled the Grads to the very last, going down with colors flying. They are a stocky built bunch of fair ladies, fast on their feet, and can glom that ball once they get their hands on it, but being shorter than the Grads their opportunities of securing the ball were cut down to a whisper.

The score of the game would seem to indicate that the farther the Cleveland crew went, the better they got; and in the final stanza of the game they were playing on level terms with the Grads. Possibly and very probably the Grads slowed up a bit with Captain Martin, Dot Johnson, and Abbie Scott on the side lines. These three girls are masterpieces at the game, and all three of them played in more than ordinary bad luck in ringing up baskets last night.

Miss Marie Haas was the bright and shining light of the Cleveland team. She was responsible for five of their seven points, two field baskets and a free throw. Her lightning sallies up the floor on dribbles were high lights in the game. The first basket that she shot from the field was the result of a spectacular piece of dribbling, a beautiful side step when she sensed that she was overtaken from behind, and a quick flip at the backboard with the right English to snare the ball in the basket.

Miss McAleer and Miss Stepnicka held down our stellar pair of forwards, Abbie Scott and Dot Johnson, to three field baskets between them, Miss Scott getting two and Dot one. This really speaks volumes for the ability of the two Cleveland guards. It is head and shoulders above the work of any other pair of guards that have appeared against the Grads.

Miss Wagemaker had the difficult assignment of battling with Coach Page's stalwart ace Miss Connie Smith. No player has yet appeared upon the horizon who is able to hold Connie to level terms, to say nothing about outplaying her.

Connie along with Captain Winifred Martin were the big scorers for the Grads last night, Connie getting four field baskets, some of them worth raving about, and Miss Martin three in the two periods that she played.

The real whiz on the floor was the little Scottish lassie that holds down a regular berth of guard for Coach Page's champs. Mary Dunn was the fastest bit of lightning in the game. Her hair-trigger brain worked just as fast as her feet. Intercepting passes was nothing for her. She saw them coming before they started with unerring intuition, and like a flash flew in and grabbed them.

Mr. Page should get a pair of spike shoes for Mary—if he can get a size small enough—and put her out on the cinder track. We haven't seen any of these visiting lady sprinters that have anything on Mary for thirty yards, and there has been some famous ones here with the various invading teams.

Giving the Cleveland team their dues they are the best team that have appeared in Edmonton to face the Grads, and they still have an outside chance to cary home the international championship. Fifteen points is the lowest margin that the Grads have run up this spring on a visiting team in the first game.

Giants Win Double-Header

NEW YORK, June 3—New York increased its season's successes over Brooklyn to nine victories in eleven games by winning both sections of a double-header today by scores of 9 to 2 and 3 to 2.

In the first game, Nehf lasted nine innings for the first time this season while New York knocked Reuther out in the first frame. Splendid support saved Bentley in the second game, which Jackson won by hitting a home run with Kelly on base.

First game:
Brooklyn .. 000 002 000 2 10 1

Reuther, Dickerman and Taylor, Nehf and Snyder.

the game in the third period and all gave highly creditable accounts of themselves.

For thevisitors Elizabeth Wagemaker, Marie Hass and Kathryn McAleer divided the honor. All three are experienced players and took advantage of any opening offered them. Lucille Stoll is as fast as thewind and proved herself a versatile player filling in on several positions. Bessie Stepnicka, Nellie Kyr and Loretta Summers gave of their best at all times.

George Parney and Chet English handled the whistles in splendid fashion. Between the first and second periods Betty Freeman and Myra Stafford gave exhibition dances.

Newsboys' Band Plays

In the interval between the second and third periods the Edmonton Newsboys' Band played Suppe's "Light Cavalry" overture in a most artistic manner and drew round after round of applause. As an encore the boys played the popular "Colonel Bogey" march.

The first period opened up with Connie Smith winning the toss. Winnie Martin got the ball and passed to Abbie Scott. Mary Dunn shoots but is short. Mary Dunn intercepts Wagemaker's pass, rushes length of floor but is stopped. Abbie Scott takes shot but misses. Dot Johnson shoots but is wide. Dot Johnson again shoots wide after some pretty combination with Winnie Martin. Elizabeth Wagemaker went down the floor but her shot was wild. Personal was called against Lucille Stoll. Abbie Scott took the two free throws allowed and scored on both of them. Dot Johnson misses shot. Connie Smith shoots wide. Nellie Kyr shoots wide. Personal called on Kathryn McAleer, Abbie Scott missed two free shots allowed. Connie Smith and Dot Johnson miss shots taken in succession. Marie Haas shoots wide. Mary Dunn misses. Nellie Kyr misses. Abbie Scott misses two shots after some pretty combination with Connie Smith. Marie Haas misses. Personal called on Marie Haas. Winnie Martin misses the one free shot allowed. Abbie Scott misses. Winnie Martin snares basket on fine pass from Connie Smith. Abbie Scott gets basket on pass from Dot Johnson. Cleveland takes two minutes off. Bessie Stepnicka goes on for Lucille Stoll. Connie gets ball on toss-up and goes down the floor, takes two shots in succession but misses both. Connie Smith gets fine basket when she shoots from centre of the floor. Kathryn McAleer has another personal called on her. Abbie Scott misses the two free shots allowed. Abbie Scott misses shot. Dot Johnson grabbed off a basket on nice bit of combination play with Abbie Scott and Mary Dunn. Dot Johnson misses shot. Dot Johnson and Connie Smith miss shots. Marie Haas gets basket. Mary Haas misses. Bessie Kyr gets swell basket on shot from long distance out. Score at the end of the first period was Grads 10; Favorite Knits 4.

Winnie Martin gets basket on combination play with Dot Johnson and Mary Dunn. Cleveland takes two minutes off. Abbie Scott misses. Abbie Scott misses again. Mary Dunn and Abbie Scott miss. Mary Dunn intercepts pass and Winnie Martin misses. Connie Smith misses long shot. Mary Dunn back-checks and gums up Haas' play when Haas is through. Abbie Scott gets basket on pass from Dot Johnson. Grads miss three shots in succession. Dot Johnson misses. After the whistle had blown Kathryn McAleer one of the "wee" ones on the Cleveland team hugged Abbie Scott affectionately and was booed by the crowd. Nellie Kyr shoots over boards. Connie Smith gets baskets on rebound from shot made by Abbie Scott. Personal called on Dot Johnson—and Clevelanders applaud. Elizabeth Wagemaker misses the one free throw allowed. The score at the end of the second period was Grads 18; Favorite Knits 4.

Third Period

Opening up the third period Daisy Johnson, Eleanor Mountifield and Nellie Perry went on for Dot Johnson, Winnie Martin and Abbie Scott. Personal on Daisy Johnson. Elizabeth Wagemaker takes free throw allowed and scores. Mary Dunn dribbles length of floor passes to Eleanor Mountifield who misses. Daisy Johnson misses. Connie Smith gets basket on pretty combination play with Eleanor Mountifield. Connie Smith tried to get a basket when she was in the air but misses narrowly Eleanor Mountifield misses. JACK DEMPSEY WILL BE WARY

LOS ANGELES, June 3—Rocco Stramaglia, Oakland heavyweight expects to meet Jack Dempsey, champion heavyweight, in one of the feature bouts of the benefit boxing show at Vernon Arena tonight.

"I think I have had Dempsey's goat since that training encounter at Shelby, Mont.," declared Stramaglia. "I'm not a champion, but I know how to beat one in a short bout."

He left Dempsey's camp after it was said he hit too hard in practice.

The champion will box opponents two rounds each at tonight's show, Fred Sullivan, of San Francisco, Pat Lester, of Arizona, Sam Eisman, of this city and Stramaglia.

One of the Pioneers

The late Mrs. Howard Douglas was one of the real Old Timers of Alberta. She came to the territory which is now a province more than forty years ago, and has been a continuous resident since that time. She is said to have been the first white woman living in the frontier settlement which grew into the city of Calgary, and enjoyed a wide circle of acquaintances there, at Banff, and in Edmonton.

An Efficient Brigade

A good deal of favorable comment has been made on the work of the fire brigade at the burning of the Cherrill riding academy early Monday morning. To save the building was not possible, and to prevent the fire spreading to neighboring residences was a difficult task. The brigade got on the scene promptly, and by well directed efforts succeeded in confining the damage to the academy building and the residence next door. That in the circumstances was all that could be expected.

The Turks in Alarm

The Turks profess to think that the Italian Government is planning to make war upon them. That is not very probable, though there has been a concentration of Italian troops that would be advantageous if hostilities should occur. Quite likely what has happened is that the Turks have been molesting Italian people or interests in some corner of the Levant and that Rome proposes to put a stop to it. When the Turks complain that any country is threatening to declare war on them it is in order to inquire first what the Turks have been doing to deserve the attention.

One Against Many

President Coolidge signed the tax reduction bill, and promptly denounced it. As in the case of the bonus bill and the Japanese exclusion clause, the President gave his official sanction against his judgment. If Congress had any idea that the new President was an irresolute man who could be loaded with responsibility for whatever it chose to do, the members have been given cause to change their views. Seemingly Mr. Coolidge does not in the least mind telling the public when he thinks Congress is wrong, and he has done it three times in that many weeks. And the reports from the primaries seem to show that the President has the voters with him.

Beating the Forecasts

The westward grain movement promises to exceed all expectations in the present shipping season. More than 55,000,000 bushels of wheat have been shipped from that port since last summer's crop was threshed. That is said to establish a new record for a single elevator, and is proof that the grain is handled with expedition and that there is no lack of ocean bottoms to carry it away. Approximately one-third of Alberta's bumper crop has already gone out by way of Vancouver and the railways are still hauling at the rate of thousands of cars per day. Perhaps by the time the present year's crop is ripe it will be found that an amount equal to one-half the Alberta yield of last year has gone through the Pacific outlet.

The King's Birthday

The birthday of the King follows too closely upon Victoria day to be marked by public demonstrations, or by even a general suspension of business. Government offices, schools and banks close on June 3rd, but all other activities are carried on as usual, here and elsewhere in Canada. It might be well to abandon even that measure of official observance, and to commemorate the birthday of the resigning sovereign on May 24th. The lack of popular celebrations does not denote any public disregard to the King or to the throne he occupies. The hope that he may long be spared to discharge the functions of his position in health and happiness would be quite as sincere if given expression on the day that is given over to commemoration of Victoria and to the greatness, prestige and worth of the Empire.

Where Bandittism Pays

Chinese bandits have rounded up another company of foreigners and are holding them for ransom. More than likely they will get it. And it is fairly probable that these are the same gang that made a "haul" by similar means a year ago. As the alleged authorities of China could do nothing on that occasion but bribe them to let the captives go, there is no reason why they and others should not repeat the performance whenever finances run low. Where bandittism is comparatively safe and fairly profitable it can only be expected to be common. It has been more or less common in China ever since foreigners began to make their way into the interior of that mysterious land, and the chaotic conditions at present prevailing are more than usually favorable to law-breakers. Tourists who want real thrills do well to go to China. Those who prefer a comparatively safe course of adventure had better do their exploring somewhere else.

Wriggling in the Pillory

Trustee Scott offers the explanation that the Norwood school was not built last year because the school board could not secure from the city council title to the old isolation hospital site. That explanation would be acceptable if the school board still had the money in the bank. As the money has been spent, it explains nothing except that the trustees responsible are hard-driven to find justification for their diversion of the funds. The one plain fact is that the taxpayers a year ago voted money to build a school in Norwood. That school is not built, nor started; and the money has gone. And now the board comes back and brazenly tells the people in the Norwood district that they will not get the school unless the money is voted over again.

Not content with that, board members launch an attack on the Property Owners' Association, and try to represent that body as "knocking" the proposal to build a school in Norwood because its members are in the majority residents of the west end of the city. As a matter of fact it happens that 53 per cent. of the Property Owners' Association members live west of First street and forty-seven per cent live east of that dividing line.

But what members of that association, or any other class or group of citizens, think about the present proposal to build a school in Norwood has nothing to do with the offence with which the school board stands condemned, and for which it can find no defence. If the present school in Norwood is over-crowded and a readjustment of pupils cannot be made, a new school will have to be built in that district. That goes as a matter of course. And it cannot be built unless the money is voted. But it will do no good for board members to accuse those who criticise their double-dealing of last year with trying to prevent Norwood having adequate school accommodation. The property-owners of the city last year voted the money to build a school in Norwood, as large and costly a school as the school board said was required there. The Public Utilities Commission gave the board permission to sell the bonds approved by the taxpayers, on the express condition that the stipulated sum of $95,000 was to be spent in the erection of the Norwood school. That school was not built; but the money has disappeared. The school board diverted it to other purposes. Incidentally, they spent it mainly in putting up a larger or more expensive building than had been planned in the much-condemned "west end" of the city.

For that diversion of trust funds, and the defiance of the authority of the Public Utilities Commission, it is no excuse to say that the board could not build the Norwood school last year. In that event their plain duty was to hold the $95,000 in the bank until title to the site was obtained, and to ask the taxpayers for a supplemental vote if it was desired to spend more than the plans called for on the Garneau and other schools. Instead, the board arrogated to itself the right to spend the proceeds of the whole bond issue where and how it pleased. With the net result that Norwood has not the school for which the taxpayers have mortgaged their property, that the debt upon the city has been increased by $95,000 for purposes which the taxpayers did not approve, and that the authority of the Public Utilities Commission has been treated with contempt.

Had the directors of a company diverted ear-marked funds in any such manner as that they would have been liable to prosecution, with a prospect that they would have to make restitution, if they did not have to go to jail. It is not probable that the members of the school board are liable to action. But they are guilty of a mis-use of funds, and cannot wriggle out of that responsibility by chattering about anyone but themselves being responsible for Norwood's lack of school accommodation.

THE RANK IS BUT THE GUINEA STAMP

Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Brown, who was a pit boy and miner is the representative of King George in opening the annual assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland. The Ramsay MacDonald Government of Great Britain got him that. He is, for the ceremonies, "his grace." The Scotch miner stepped into it with willingness of a Norman earl. There was no proletarian nonsense. Nothing of the ceremony was to be cut for him. Sound the fanfare and watch a flash of form and a burst of speed. Probably it requires a thousand years to do this. It's a gift and may never be developed on this side of the Atlantic . . . . American ceremonies are not an eyeful. The Senators could get away with a Maypole dance about as well.

CANADA NOT INVITED

Winnipeg Free Press.

Most of the adverse criticism of the course which Canada has taken with respect to the Lausanne treaty has rested upon the charge that Canada entered into an arrangement with Great Britain and then went back upon it. The public has been told by Canadian and English newspapers that Canada was asked to send representatives to the Conference at Lausanne but declined, agreeing that the representative of Great Britain should also represent Canada and that despite this Canada declined to ratify the treaty made by her representative. If these were the facts Canada's course undoubtedly called for a good deal of explanation. But these are not the facts; and it would be interesting if the newspapers which have employed them would tell the public where they got them.

The submission to Parliament of part of the papers bearing on the question makes it quite clear that Canada and the other Dominions were never invited to take part in the Lausanne Conference. Why they were not invited would doubtless be explained if the correspondence which has not been brought down, owing to inability to secure the consent of the British Government, were available. Instead of being invited Canada was notified that Lord Curzon would act for her and that the Canadian Government would be kept informed; it was clearly indicated that if a treaty resulted from the negotiations, Canada would be expected to sign it and accept its commitments.

Lacking all the correspondence it is not possible to appraise the responsibility, if any, of the British Government for this abandonment of the procedure which had been followed at Versailles. But, whatever the reason, the Canadian Government was asked to accept a reversion to the earlier practice, which would have wiped out the Versailles precedent. It was asked to agree with a policy by which the representative of the British Foreign Office would automatically represent us and bind us to any commitments to which he might subscribe. The sole part which the Canadian Government would play would be to receive such information as Lord Curzon might deem it desirable to send out.

BULLETIN'S MAIL BAG

WANTS TO KNOW

To the Editor of the Bulletin:

In order to get a better understanding of Mr. Cunningham's repodtion the water situation to the Mayor and City Commissioners, as reported in the Edmonton Bulletin of May 31st, I would like to have the first and last statement further explained.

The first statement is that "Practically the only difference between the city water and Pigeon Lake is the absence of Calcium Sulphate in the Lake water."

The last statement is that "Edmonton has a maximum turbidity of 10,000 p.p.m." as further compared with the dirtiest streams in the middle United States grading from 6,000 p.p.m. to 2,400 p.p.m.

Mr Cunningham being a mechanical engineer has probably underestimated the importance of turbidity, or in other words filth, except as it affects the power plant for which he is responsible, and only places importance on Calcium Sulphate which costs the power plant thousands of dollars annually in the removal of hard scale.

How Edmonton is going to make pure water even after the sedimentation basins proposed are put in ten to twenty times quicker than has been done in the cities mentioned should be of great interest to the people who must drink it.

FLOATING ISLANDS

NEW YORK

Floating islands, one of which consisted of seven acres and followed his ship like a pet whale, were seen off Borneo by Captain Jonas Pendelbury of the Dollar Line steamship President Adams, which docked recently at Pier 15, Staten Island, after her round-the-world cruise.

The floating islands temporarily upset the calculations of the circumnavigators, who were led to suppose that they were approaching land when their charts showed there was no land.

It was Captain Pendelbury's first experience with floating islands, save in the form of dessert and he has been a seafarer for thirty-six years. But, floating islands are not the rarest things in the world, according to members of the staff of the American Geographical Society, who explained yesterday that they have been sighted as far as fifty miles out from the mainlands from which they became detached.

Captain Pendelbury encountered the biggest of the floating islands first. He said its palm trees were higher than the wireless masts of his ship and in their tops were chattering monkeys and singing birds. Through marine glasses the skipper said he saw great masses of flowering vegetation and a large number of cobras, deadly reptiles.

The ship at that time was negotiating the Palawan Passage, which the Captain described as a "cut" in the Pacific between Borneo and the Malay Peninsula.

"It was our good fortune that we started through the passage in the day time," said Captain Pendelbury, who impressed ship news reporters with the importance of getting his first name, Jonas, and not Jonah. "I was on the bridge when I heard the call, 'Land right ahead, sir!'

"I at first thought our charts must be imperfect, as they sometimes are in those remote seas, because they showed no land at that point. I changed the course of the ship and slowed down. But the land kept getting closer and closer. It was then I observed that the island was floating. It came within forty feet of the President Adams and followed her for a considerable distance.

"We proceeded cautiously through the passage the rest of that day and before night we sighted eight or ten more floating islands, but none so large as the first one. We also passed a series of water-spouts, but they were not large enough to do any damage.

"In Hongkong I was informed that the floating islands form in the estuaries of rivers and frequently are washed far out to sea by spring floods. Finally they break up."

Members of the staff of the American Geographical Society explained that floating islands originate in the mouths or deltas of tidal rivers. Small inlets cut new channels and carve out the islands. The islands usually are an enormous tangle of tropical vegetation and roots which penetrate the soil to a great depth. They are as tightly woven as a grass rug, and in times of flood and unusual tidal disturbances they are torn loose and washed out to sea. Floating islands have been traced by geographers to the Famarinda and Mehakan Rivers on the east coast of Borneo, and they are also known to form in Barita the river on the south coast of Borneo. They also are washed out of the mouths of the Amazon and Orinoco Rivers in South America.

The President Adams sailed from Pier 4, Hoboken, on Feb. 7. She was the first passenger ship of the American merchant marine to sail from New York and circumnavigate the globe. She touched at twenty ports of call and passed through two canals, the Panama and Suez.

OPINIONS FROM UNITED STATES

By Albert Apple

South African diamond mines are working again after being almost entirely shut down for several years.

This means that the world is steadily recovering from the business depression caused by the war. When people begin to sport diamonds, they have money to spare.

Diamond headquarters in Kimberley reports that the revival of the diamond industry is chiefly due to demand for the cheaper or medium-grade stones. Indicating prosperity at the base.

FOOTBALL

Is college football becoming too commercialized? One university's profits from this sport last year were about $40,000. College heads are wondering if football isn't shaping as a business rather than an athletic game.

Professionalism in the boxoffice is as much a menace as professionalism among players. Sport for sport's sake is endangered when the sport becomes a medium for tapping the public pocketbook.

LEGACY

A laundry wagon driver inherits $50,000 in Trenton, N. J. He announces he'll keep on working. Which excites amazement, but shouldn't.

The $50,000 at 4 per cent interest would bring the driver $2000 a year. He couldn't do much with that, prices so high. Time was when $50,000 was a whale of a fortune and the house of the owner was pointed out with the buggy whip to visitors being driven around town. Those days are gone. Even a millionaire doesn't excite much interest now, they're so numerous.

LIMELIGHT

The wages of sin are publicity, says Dean Lee of New York University's school of journalism.

"Pitiless publicity" unquestionably punishes the guilty—especially those who are powerful enough to keep out of the clutches of the law. But a scolding isn't as effective as strapoil in the case of a bad boy. More jail sentences are needed.

The Chinese alone get full value from "pitiless publicity". They make convicted profiteers and other social crooks parade in front of their homes and places of business, ringing a bell and carrying a banner advertising their crimes.

FRENCH

One important development in Europe is that the French are taxing themselves more heavily. Recently tax receipts totaled a fifth more than a year ago.

The English for several years have been foaming about the low tax rate in France—lower per capita than in England, by far. That was because France was mortgaging the future, expecting to get more out of Germany than now appears possible.

LESS

Industrial profits are shrinking, a financial "expert" claims. He's been studying financial reports of about 100 leading corporations, finds profits from 7 to 43 per cent lower than a year ago.

Not necessarily. Bookkeepers and tax-dodging experts work wonders with many a financial statement. They are wizards at concealing profits. With exceptions, the expression "financial statement" doesn't mean what it used to—not by a long shot.

MAMMOTH CAVE SHUT

Owing to Strange Will of Owner, Caverns Are Closed to Public

Believing that the centuries old underground caverns known to the world as the Mammoth Cave were too marvellous to be hidden from the public, Dr. John Croghan, the owner of the phenomenon, drew a very elaborate will by which he thought to safeguard the interests of the American people. Little did he realize that the very terms of that will would be the undoing of his plans. Today, for the first time in 100 years, the Mammoth Cave is closed to the public, writes "The Milwaukee Journal."

For years the passageways were explored only for a distance of ten miles. Then Dr. Croghan went to Germany to complete his medical studies. While there he visited the famous caves along the Rhine, and upon one of these expeditions met a scientist who inquired about the Mammoth Cave in the United States.

Now Dr. Croghan had been born and lived all his life within 10 miles of the Kentucky wonderland, but had never seen it. The first thing he did upon arriving home was to visit the cave. He was overwhelmed with its greatness and beauty. Finding that the property was on the market, he bought it, and from that day on its popularity grew.

Upon the death of Dr. Croghan the estate passed into the hands of his seven nephews and nieces during their lifetime. As long as any one of them remained alive the project must be carried on by the trustee according to rigid laws promulgated by the deceased Croghan. As it was not possible for any man to foresee the change in conditions of travel, of living and of sightseeing, so it was not possible for him to plan a successful future for his beloved cave.

The last living heir is a niece, who is now over ninety. At her death the property must be put up for auction, advertised in the leading papers of six of the largest cities of the United States and six of the leading cities of Europe for a period of months before the sale, and then it must be sold to the highest bidder, with the provision that it must be kept open to the public.

A few years ago a new cave of wondrous beauty was discovered several miles from Mammoth Cave. The owners of the new cavern opened a route through six other caves into the original cave. Having no restrictions upon them as to advertising and management, they have succeeded in drawing the crowds away from the original and only real entrance to the cave itself in such numbers that the cave had been closed to the public.

The trustees are not in a position to enter into extensive litigation with the offenders, and it is likely that the bats and the beetles will have undisputed possession of the Bridal Chamber and the Bottomless Pit until the death of the lonely old lady, and the subsequent sale of the property.

Teacher—Children, can any of you tell me what is the most dangerous part of an automobile? Tommy—Yes, miss, I can! It's the driver!

"I hear that the De Joneses have bought a two-seater."

"Yes; I've seen the nursemaid pushing it with the twins inside."

"Were you seriously injured in that motor accident?"

"Well, I didn't think I was until I read about the smash in the newspaper."

Agent: "You've seen the front bedroom; now, this is the linen cupboard, sir."

Flat-hunter: "Yes, I understand—the cupboard is the one with the shelves."

First Schoolboy — "I say, Ralph, who on earth was Nero? Wasn't he the chap who was always cold?"

Second Schoolboy—"No; that was Zero—another man altogether."

Visitor—"I'm glad to hear it. When I saw her peeping through the window just now I feared she might be!"

Greenboy: Of course, I know marriage is a grave step.

Oldun: Step? My dear lad, it's more like a flight of steps, and every one of 'em greased!—"Pearson's Magazine."

"He is such a dear," said the pretty girl, praising a young man of her acquaintance; "he takes mother and me out to dinner nearly every week. We dote on him. In fact," she added with a smile, "we table d'hote on him."

"I'm sure that's not a ton of coal," said Mrs. Brown, as she surveyed the coal the merchant had just left. "That coal man is a highway robber."

"My dear," said her husband gently, "don't you mean a low-weigh robber?"

"And so your little baby brother can talk now, can he?" asked the lady visitor.

"Yes," said little Harold, "he can say some words very well."

"How nice. And what words are they?"

The colonel was delivering an address to junior officers up for examination. He dwelt with much emphasis on the fact that each officer should devote the intervening time to preparing for the final examination. "The examination papers are now in the hands of the printer. Are there any questions to be asked?" Silence prevailed. Suddenly a voice from the rear quietly inquired: —"Who's the printer, sir?"

At our railway station the other morning I overheard the following dialogue:

Porter (to sailor who had thrown a banana skin on platform): Hi! The company won't have that.

Sailor: Won't have what?

Porter (pointing to banana skin): Won't have that.

Sailor: Won't they? Well, never mond, old sport, share it between you and the ticket collector.

"Yes, doctor, but I have been asleep for two days and had no food till now."

"Two days! Have you been taking too much of the sleeping powder I gave you?"

"Well, doctor, you told me to take enough to cover a sovereign, but where could I get a sovereign these days? I used a pound note."

Uncle Joey kept a shoe store in the cotton belt, and had working for him a dusky youth who went by the name of "String Bean." String Bean was trying to sell a pair of shoes to a colored mammy of generous proportions. There being considerable argument, Uncle Joey called his assistant to the rear of the store and asked what the fuss was all about.

"Oh, nuffin," explained String Bean. "Dat ooman jest trying to put a gallon of feet into a pint of shoes."

An old Scotsman and a youth had spent the whole day on the golf links, and had had some remarkably close and exciting games. As they left for home the old man remarked:

"Hey, man, but it's been a grand day!"

"It has," the youth assented.

"Think ye could come again on the morrow, laddie?"

"Well," the young man answered, reflectively, "I was to be married, but I daresay I can put it off."

"The station of Savannah," says a traveller through the South, "is surrounded in all directions with a lot of saloons and cheap restaurants. In great illuminated letters over one of these saloons was the sign.

" 'Open all night'."

"Next to it was a restaurant bearing with equal prominence the legend:

" 'We never close.' "

"Third in order was a Chinese laundry in a tumbledown hovel, and upon the front of this building was the sign, in great scrawling letters:

" 'Me wakee, too'."

Gleanings from Old Country Mail

SCOTLAND

The funeral of Mr. William Hutchison, member for Kelvingrove division of Glasgow took place recently. The interment was attended only by relatives, but a public service in the Hillhead Congregational Church was attended by a large and representative assembly who included Lord Blythswood, Lord Glenarthur, Sir John Gilmour (Scottish Unionist Whip), and seven other members of Parliament, including Mr. George Buchanan (Labour member for Gorbals).

The Senate of Glasgow University has resolved in connection with the Lord Kelvin Centenary next month, to offer honorary degrees to a number of prominent personalities, among them the Prime Minister, whose late wife was a relative of Lord Kelvin, and Sir Alfred Yarrow.

Fishermen along the whole of the east coast of Scotland have agreed totally to suspend fishing for herring until next month. It is believed that this will result in fish of much better quality being netted when the season starts. Only twice before is there record of such a close time being observed in Scotland. Thousands of fishermen will be idle this month.

A three day's demonstration of the new double-acting two-cycle Diesel engine invented by J. C. M. Maclagan, of Glasgow, was given recently. The demonstration was for the purpose of giving shipowners and engineers an opportunity of seeing the working of the new type of propelling machinery which has been built for the new cargo ship Swanley.

Mr. Maclagan is the chief designer of the North British Diesel Engine Words, Ltd., Whiteinch. The engine has three cylinders, which are 24½ inches in diameter by 44 inches stroke, and develops 2000 brake horse power at 100 revolutions per minute. It derives the working impulse on the top and bottom of the piston every stroke, exactly as does the steam engine. It is claimed that it can obtain any given horsepower on smaller dimensions than can any other Diesel type. One of the novelties of the new engine lies in the employment of sliding cylinders, the covers at the top and bottom being fixed. The drive to the crank shaft is taken by means of a forked connecting rod in each case, the gudgeon pin being extended for the purpose.

Recently the engine underwent an exhaustive non-stop run for nine days and nights. The brake horsepower averaged about 1940, which is a reasonable margin above the sea power required for the ship. The fuel used was heavy Anglo-Mexican boiler fuel, with a specific gravity of .96. The fuel consumption was .445 to .45 pounds per brake horsepower per hour. The lubricating oil consumed was from 10 to 12 gallons per day of 24 hours. The revolutions were 94 per minute.

IRELAND

A sergeant of the Civic Guard gave evidence of the discovery of the girl and of the arrest of Duggan and Murray. Subsequently Duggan said, when charged with abducting her, that he did it to save her life. She had written to him saying that her father and mother were insisting on her marrying a man she did not want to marry and asked him to meet her at the chapel or she would do away with herself.

In discharging the prisoners the District Justice said the girl had made arrangements for her abduction herself. There might be a technical offence, but no jury would have much respect for a man who attempted to barter his daughter of 15 1-2 for £800. She had been under restraint for weeks and that was why she had given her consent to the marriage. A girl of her age could not make up her mind, and she certainly was not a fit subject to be married.

Four persons lost their lives in a boating disaster which occurred in Lough Beg, a small lake on the Lower Bann, about two miles from the northern end of Lough Neagh.

The victims are—Mrs. Kate O'Donnell and Annie O'Donnell, son and daughter of the deceased woman, and John O'Donnell (Toome) were rescued and brought ashore in an exhausted condition. The last sacraments were administered to them by the Rev. John Nolan, P.P.

The party with the exception of John O'Donnell, had been on a visit to relatives in Toomebridge. They were on their way to Church Island, which is situated in the centre of Lough Beg.

They had a sail erected, and were in the act of changing places, when the boat capsized.

Had it not been for the efforts of Mr. Hugh McErlean, who was ploughing close by, the entire party would probably have been drowned. He was assisted by two men named Lover from Belfast.

Owing to the crank of the engine giving way the passengers in a Letterkenny railway train travelling between Raphoe and Sallindrait were subjected to a rough shaking. Some were thrown on their faces, and for a brief space consternation prevailed. No one, said one of the passengers, could at first guess the cause of the accident.

The passengers, many of whom missed their train connections at Strabane, were later conveyed to Strabane Railway Station by motor cars. The railway sleepers were torn up for some distance. A short time afterwards the line was cleared.

A shocking fatality occurred in Enniskillen whereby a man named Robert Carrothers, sixty-one, an employee of the Urban Council, lost his life.

It appears that Carrothers on reaching home, proceeded to light the kitchen fire. For this purpose he procured a can of paraffine oil, which he poured over the coal and sticks.

Some of the oil spilled over his trousers, with the result that when he applied a match to the fire his clothing also went ablaze, and before the flames could be extinguished he was so terribly burned that he died almost immediately.

Very Rev. Patrick Canon O'Connor, P.P., Davidstown, Enniscorthy, died on April 6, after a protracted illness.

For eleven years Father O'Connor taught with conspicuous success in the diocesan college, and in 1886 was sent by the late Bishop Browne as C.C. of Enniscorthy Cathedral. In 1896 he was appointed Administrator. He effected many improvements in the Cathedral and, in 1898, was promoted to the pastorate of Adamstown. In Oct., 1921, he was given an assistant in the person of Rev. Pierce Power, who was appointed Adm. in Nov. 1923, Canon O'Connor developed a serious illness and his death was not unexpected.

ENGLAND

Remains of some four hundred and twenty yards of an old Roman wall have been uncovered by excavators at Folkestone.

The site is north of Copt Point, just inside East Wear Bay, on a gently sloping plateau which tops the gault, here nearly 100ft. deep. In Roman times a slope of not less than a quarter of a mile must have stretched down to sea level and a good landing-place, protected by Copt Point, just as Channel boats are protected by the mole of Folkestone harbor, from the south-west. Here the Saxon raiders of the third and fourth centuries could have landed and turned the positions of Dover and Lympne. Coast defense demanded a strong station, where signals could be transmitted from Dover to Lympne. At an elevation of 130 ft. to 150 ft., the plateau was grass land till 1914, and then used as allotments. But how few allotment-holders are two-spit diggers! The few who were found stone and pulled it out, not knowing its significance. Much red tile and other Roman debris was exposed on the surface, but this also escaped notice.

What has already been exposed is the walls of some dozen apartments, two long corridors, a hypocaust, an apse-ended building—probably a bath—a drain intake below the cliff edge, and a fine little Roman arch between a furnace chamber and another (20ft. square), the purpose of which is not yet clear. Nearly all the walls are in excellent preservation for several feet above the set-off, the footings of sea-worn boulder stones from the beach resting on the gault; and above are regular courses of faced stone from Folkestone quarries. The walls are, as usual, rubble-filled, and their standard widths 1ft. 11in. and 2ft. 1in.

Many chance finds help to fix the date and purpose of the buildings. British coins (one early, of tin) and British urn burials show early occupation by the British, as at Folkestone itself. A Hadrian coin and much decidedly Antonine "Samian" ware strongly indicate Roman occupation from early in the second century, if not before (some pieces of early coarse ware were found). Two coins of Constantine I. and a Theodora point to fourth-century habitation, which would also be inferred from three brick stamps of the Classiarii Britannici (British Marines), as found also at Dover, Lympne, Pevensey, and Etaples. Here, then, is the Litus Saxonicum, and all that this implies—especially restoration and strengthening early in the fourth century. As yet it is too soon to say that there has been added a tenth to the nine known fortresses, from Brancaster (Norfolk) to Porchester (Hants); but if it proves so, the natural importance of the Kentish coast will be emphasized. At present the military character of the site has no evidence beyond the brick stamps, its strategic value for defence against raiders, and as a signalling station and a general analogy to Lympne (though here there was also a port). On the other hand, there is no visible sign of great limiting walls, all the other forts except Brancaster showing walls above ground; but we must remember that the landslip at Lympne had buried its fine walls until they were unearthed some seventy years ago by Roach Smith. The absence of mention in the Antonine Iter or Notitia is no proof of non-existence in the early third or fourth century. If there was a station, its garrison, as at Dover, perhaps consisted of Tungrians from Belgium. If a villa, it was a very spacious and handsome one in a beautiful position, and may have been inhabited by the praepositus litoris Saxonici himself.

The finds are mostly of the usual Roman-British character: "Samian" pottery (fairly plentiful), coarser grey, buff and black wares, brick and chalk tesserae, much good fresco, bronze fibulae, bone hairpins and tin-burnished bronze mirror (fragment), iron stilus, window and vessel glass, and so on. Most interesting, perhaps, are the four cinerary urns, one broken beyond repair, the other three containing burnt bones and ornaments. They are of different shapes, and made of very friable candy material. These urns and their contents are British. When they built the two walls of a corridor seven feet to eight feet wide the Romans must have missed them by a few feet, as they lay in the gault just below the level of their wall footings.

It is hoped to resume excavation at the beginning of August. Within a short walk of Folkeston Harbour, on the way to the Warren, the site has already been visited by many thousands.

U. S. MARINES AT GUAM WAR AGAINST PESTS

AGANA, Guam, June 3.—United States marines, under the command of Captain W. Aiken, who is chief of police of this island, are leading parties of natives in a concerted attack on a most pernicious enemy. The enemy is aspidiotus destructir, a scale insect pest, recently discovered to be destroying cocoanut palms, banana trees, alligator pear trees and tare.

More than 9,000 trees were fo[illegible]d infected in widely separated loc[illegible]lities all over the island. The ins[illegible]ects are so small that the barely [illegible] are visible. They attack trees by [illegible]ucking the sap, causing the folia[illegible]e to turn a mottled yellow at firs[illegible], and in the last stages to assume th[illegible]e appearance of having been sc[illegible]rched by fire. The scale is one [illegible]f the most destructive known. It r[illegible]cently wiped out the cocoanut in[illegible]dustry of the island of Siapan, 120 [illegible] miles from Guam.

SMUGGLING HITS MANITOBA BUSINESS

WINNIPEG, June 3—Claiming that Manitoba merchants were being deprived of a business turnover of at least $1,500,000 annually through operations of a smuggling ring in and around Winnipeg, members of the executive of the Winnipeg Retail Merchants' Association have waited upon the Manitoba government, asking for assistance. They urged the government to undertake patrol of the border and to check up motor traffic.

An investigation committee of the Retail Merchants' association found that during May, the smugglers brought into the province silk, cigarettes, tobacco, cotton goods, hosiery, musical instruments, medicines, boots, jewelry and other dutiable articles to the extent of $250,000.

ONTARIO BLACK BASS FOR SASKATCHEWAN

REGINA, June 3—Information handed out today by W. Rowan, fisheries overseer at Silton, Sask., is to the effect that the fish hatcheries at Qu'Appelle are now engaged in the breeding of the famous Ontario black bass and it is hoped to secure the co-operation of anglers in properly stocking the waters of Saskatchewan with these game fish as the fry becomes available.

An attempt is also to be made to stock small lakes that are at present barren of fish life with perch.

MAURETANIA HOLDS STEAMING RECORD

SOTHAMPTON, England, June 3—When the Mauretania left for New York on May 31, she began her 305th crossing of the Atlantic and on docking will have completed one million miles of steaming.

It is claimed that the Mauretania has already steamed a greater distance and carried more passengers than any other trans-Atlantic liner in commission.

DEGREE FOR PRUD'HOMME

OTTAWA, June 3.—The honorary degree of doctor of laws will be conferred upon Rt. Rev. Bishop J. H. Prud'homme, of Prince Albert, Sask., by the University of Ottawa, his alma mater, at the Monument Nationale on June 17.

STOCK PRICES HAVE RALLY

New York Market Responds To President's Action on Tax Bill

NEW YORK, June 3—A vigorous rally in stock prices developed in today's market in response to the President's approval of the tax measure, of the prospective adjournment of congress this week and indications of the defeat of the McNary-Haugen Bill which was killed by the House shortly after the close of the market. Gains in the active issues ranged from 1 to 4 points.

Characterized by a progressive upward movement today's trading culminated in a broad demonstration of strength in which public utility, motor and accessories predominated. The advance which became most spirited in the final dealings, was accentuated by reports that the McNary-Haugen bill was doomed, leading to active short coverings in a variety of issues. Action of other stocks indicated a revival of pool operations.

American Waterworks common, with a sensational advance of 10 1-2 points to the year's highest level at 65 1-4, led an assortment of public utility shares into higher ground.

Rails were overshadowed by the spirited buying of industrial and miscellaneous issues in which large short interests have been reported to exist. Confident buying, however continued in such issues as Northern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western, Great Northern referred and Missouri Pacific preferred.

Market leaders were in brisk demand toward the close, Baldwin reaching new high ground on the recovery, at 111 7-8, up 2 1-4, and American Can, United States Steel and Studebaker averaging gains of a point or more.

Heavy liquidation of Middle States Oil carried the stock down to a record low of 1 3-4, although it later recovered slightly.

Call money, after opening at 3 per cent., dropped back to 2 3-4, where it held until the close.

CLAIMS DECALOGUE TABLETS ARE FOUND

Fragments of Stone Are the Original Ten Commandments, Says Professor

VIENNA. — What are declared to be remnants of the original tablets bearing the Ten Commandments, written by Moses, have been deciphered by Professor Hubert Grimme of the University of Lunster.

"I was taken out of the Nilus by the Egyptian Queen," is the sentence written in the almost forgotten Hebrew at the head of one of the tablets, which were found some time ago on the plateau Serabit El Chadam, in the southwestern part of the peninsula of Sinai by the English scholar Flinders Petrie. The tablets contain also the names of Joseph, Menassa and Moses.

In an article published in the Vienna "Morgen Zeitung," Professor Grimme, who deciphered the tablets from photographs, deplores the fact that so far only a portion of the tablets has been found and that no effort has been made to locate the rest.

CHINESE TRADING VESSELS RETAIN ANCIENT SHAPES

Structure of Boats Used to Carry Tea Up and Down the Coast Have Not Changed Since the Middle Ages

"What funny boats these Chinese junks are!"

No foreigner who knows anything at all about navigation can help but exclaim that. Their strange shapes, their poops so very high, their peculiarly shaped sails all tend to attract our eyes, accustomed as we are to ships with entirely different silhouettes, writes L. Sabattier in "L'Illustration" (Paris).

But, then, is it not to be expected that anything Chinese would be distinctly strange?

Still, if one knows anything about navigation, one will soon recognise the forms of old occidental ships in these Chinese boats. Such ships as are represented upon ancient basreliefs or in mediaeval paintings are indeed very similar to Chinese junks.

Of Ancient Origin

The parts of a vessel known as the forecastle and the quarterdeck which still characterise the junks were once found on all European ships. They were regular fortresses serving as a place for refuge during defensive battles and as points of support in case of attack. They were places from which one could observe and direct sea battles and navigation. The ancient triremes had them, as well as the galleys of the crusades and the vessels of Columbus and Vasco da Gama.

The ship of the saintly King Louis of France carried a miniature castle of several stories in which were apartments for the king and the queen, their children and principal ministers and courtiers. A sumptuous chapel crowned the entire structure. The corresponding castle at the prow of the ship was occupied by several apartments for lesser nobles.

Such castles at the prow of a vessel existed up to the day when the use of guns destroyed their military value. The quarter-decks remained, but grew smaller and smaller until they disappeared with the invention of steamships.

Portuguese ships used to sail in Chinese waters during the sixteenth century, and they displayed their large forecastles and quarterdecks before the admiring Chinese. While the Europeans were doing away with these structures, the Chinese sought to perfect the castle structures on the fore and aft of their junks.

Derivation of Name

The only noticeable difference between the Portuguese and the Chinese vessels in the sixteenth century was in the sails. These were made of rushes which the Portuguese called "junco." And so the term "junk" is not of Chinese origin, as one might think, but is derived from the Portuguese word. The early Portuguese seafarers on the Indian Ocean probably shouted "juco" whenever they sighted a Chinese sailing vessel to distinguish them from all other boats. The Chinese word corresponding to junk is "tchoan," which means ship.

Sailors have various opinions about the value of the junks. Some believe that the junks, because of their form, possess nautical qualities especially appropriate for the Chinese waters and for the use to which the Chinese put them. It is probable that they are built very advantageously and suitable otherwise why should the Chinese have kept them throughout the centuries in their old form without improving or changing them very much?

On the other hand, some people believe that the Chinese have not changed the form of their junks because they are very slow at changing anything unless it becomes absolutely necessary. They perhaps preserved the form of their boats just as they have preserved that of their houses and their customs. They had been good enough for their fathers; why not for themselves?

Just like our peasants, these Chinese junk owners are instinctively opposed to all innovations. They distrust them. They wait until their neighbors have thoroughly tried them out. They do not want to risk anything.

Carry On Immense Trade

However, the junks belonging to prosperous business men or to enterprising sailors, nowadays have good, strong linen sails. The cut and the location of the sails is unchanged, but the bamboo sticks with which they are lined are merely ornamental and no longer have practical value. They are purely traditional accessories.

With these seemingly old-fashioned vessels the Chinese carry on a trade which has truly enormous dimensions. In Hongkong alone the trade is carried on in nearly 30,000 junks which play up and down the rivers along the sea-coast. By means of these junks the Chinese exchange opium, tea, sugar, silk cotton, metals and thousands of tons of manufactured goods from both the Orient and the Occident.

"THE BREAKING POINT" AT CAPITOL THEATRE

Realism Is Keynote in Paramount Picture, Which Is Popular

The sense of grim reality as well as of make-believe was strongly present in Matt Moore's mind during the filming of a hospital scene recently for Herbert Brenon's latest Paramount production, "The Breaking Point."

Playing the role of "Dr. Dick Livingstone," Matt Moore was called upon to perform an operation for a surgically removeable clot upon the brain of George Fawcett, who appears in the picture as "Dr. David Livingstone."

The scene was filmed in the operating room of a hospital of Southern California where Mr. Brenon directed the sequence with the technical advice of a prominent Los Angeles brain specialist.

At the same time that Matt Moore was going through the motions of the operation, his brother, Owen Moore, also a prominent motion picture player, was in another hospital undergoing a serious operation. Visualizing the reality of his brother's scene helped Matt Moore to dramatize his own.

"The Breaking Point," showing at the Capital for the last times today, features Nita Naldi, Patsy Ruth Miller, George Fawcett and Mr. Moore, Mary Roberts Rinehart wrote the story.

Austin Beck's comedy is on the same program.

SCHOOL CLASSIC FOR SCREEN

"Not One to Spare" Is Latest Thing Put Into Moving Pictures

BY JACK JUNGMEYER

HOLLYWOOD—If you have the long memory of childhood's pathetic apprehensions, you will doubtless recall that old Fourth Reader classic of parental love, "Not One to Spare."

Recollect how it goes? The harsh struggle to keep all the little bodies and souls together. The family life on the farm. A rich, childless uncle offering to adopt one of the youngsters. Father and mother, lamp in hand, going slowly among the sleeping tykes, trying to decide which one to give up. Unable to spare one.

Countless teachers have read it to millions of kids. For numberless burdened parents it has provoked poignant, unvoiced speculation. Numberless little folk have applied it to themselves in dread imagination. Indeed, striking a universal chord, it has become a bit of hallowed hokum.

And now it's been done into a film, simple, natural motion picture; the first effort of Renaud Hoffman, a Hollywood artist and the illustrator whom it brings out of obscurity.

"Not One to Spare" has a genuine emotional thrust that will crack any hard-boiled heart.

by Director Hoffman with unerring instinct from absolutely raw screen material, are comparable to some of the best juvenile film achievements. The charming naturalness and dramatic flair of Meriam Bellah, as the Eldest Girl, Newton House, the Bad Boy, and little Mary Francis McLane, a war orphan who plays the Baby Girl, entitles this trio to high praise and further oportunity.

Here is life pictured to the life. The entire group of 19 persons, with Ethel Wales, David Torrence (as the uncle) and Willis Marks playing the elders, represents such a family of Americans as has been preserved through generations of plush albums and eugenic folderols. Plain and vital as salt and potatoes and porkchops with country gravy.

The farm home and the farm scene will bring a touch of homesickness to any soil-sprung wanderer in the city wilds. And if father and mother don't begin holding hands about the end of the second reel it will simply be because they have the curious shame of being caught at honest emotions.

Ethel Wales' sensitive handling of her role, her restraint without making the part lean, is a joyful relief from the common screen tendency to overdraw maternal figures.

Unpretentious but rich in sheer human values, plotless, minus the interminable hero and villian and therefore as sound and genuine as the average American plain folk, "Not One to Spare" is a picture to be highly commended. The National Board of Review says it's one of the season's best.

CLAIM EVEN BETTER BILL FOR THIS WEEK

Vaudeville Which Delighted Audience Last Week Improved This Week

Last week's vaudeville bill at Pantages, headed by Janet Adler's Syncopators, was acclaimed by patrons and critics alike as the best of the season, but judging from advance notices from the eastern end of the circuit, the program which opens on Thursday afternoon will be even better. A headline attraction that has never been excelled on the local variety stage is provided by Cunningham and Bennett, who present "Beau Brummell and Lady Fair," with Erna Alma and Victor Valenti. They are assisted by the Beau Brummell orchestra with Yonder and Marie. The offering is a variety revue of symphonic melody instrumentations, while the singing and dancing forms of entertainment are far from being overlooked.

Added attractions—two in number—are also included in this week's program. Roy LaPearl is the world's greatest aerialist. One might think that LaPearl was taking in quite a lot of territory, but after seeing his act vaudeville fans will admit that the billing is well merited. He is a surprise comedian and offers a live-wire program that will make the audience sit up in their seats.

Vaudeville's favorite comedienne, Lillian Gonne, is the other added attraction. Miss Gonne comes to bat this season with an original comedy skit, "Merry Xmas," which is not so much a satire on doing your Christmas shopping early, but serves as a vehicle for her inimitable program of songs, dances and chatter.

Jack North and Paul South, representative of the two opposite ends of the pole, will be seen in their 1924 comedy hit, "Friendly Enemies," in which they sing, dance and put a lot of wholesome comedy across the footlights.

The remaining vaudeville act on the bill is that of the Three Reddingtons, who will be seen in a comedy novelty entitled, "Bounce In." This is a fast moving program of somersaults and twisters, with some laughable comedy on the bounding trampoline.

A motion picture comedy, a Grantland Rice sport feature and selections by Al Preston's Pantages orchestra, round out a bill that will please the tastes of everybody.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 3.—Sir Percy Cox, British high commissioner for Mesopotamia, today informed Fethi Bey, Speaker of the Turkish Assembly and head of the Turkish delegation regarding the Mosul district, that he had been instructed to return to London unless the Turkish government modified the attitude it had taken in demanding complete rendition of disputed territory.

JASPER

Bulletin News Service

The Lodge is all fitted up and open now for tourists. Several new additional features have been added since last year. A ball room has been built and some extra cottages constructed. A novel attraction, or, rather, a novel object of interest, is the addition of three mountain guides, imported direct from Switzerland and clothed in all the picturesque paraphernalia which distinguishes the men who follow that dangerous trade in Switzerland. Any tourists, this summer, who feel the call of the mountains and who cannot rest until they have scaled the snow-capped monsters, will be under the care of these hardy mountaineers.

The town of Jasper, under the superintenence of Colonel Rogers, is fully justified in calling itself the most beautiful town in Alberta. All the houses built of stone, with their red roofs, are very picturesque, and since Jasper is now a divisional point of the C.N.R., are well populated with contented working families.

MOSSIDE

Bulletin News Service

The meeting of the Municipality of Pershing was held on Saturday. All the councillors were present. Mr. Day, the government road engineer, attended the meeting. The appropriations to Councillors J. Horner, J. Pennington, L. Barton and O. Soleid was three hundred dollars with an additional grant for centre road of two hundred and seventy-five dollars each to L. Barton and O. Solleid.

A great amount of discussion ensped with respect to the proposed new bridge on centre line near Scotts. It was finally decided that the present bridge be replaced and that the surplus material be used on the bridge near Stewart's. Mr. R. Gibson was appointed assessor of the district and will attend the meeting of assessors to be held in Edmonton in June.

Phelan's new store is nearing completion and will be opened by a free lunch and dance on June 12.

Victoria Day was celebrated at Mosside Public Hall by the Agricultural Society holding a picnic. A dinner and supper was generously provided by the ladies of the district.

Mr. Cross is the Presbylerian student who will conduct services in the church each Sabbath morning at 11 o'clock.

HOME LIFE MENACED

Never in the history of the world has the life of the family as a social unit been menaced as it is today. Social unrest, the independence afforded women by opening up almost every profession and every line of industry to them, equal rights with men, all of which are perfectly justified, if not abused and women have the health and strength to carry out their inclinations in these matters. But, alas, when a woman is almost at the point of breaking from her household cares and social life to take on outside duties often means the breaking point, and homes are often neglected for lack of strength or some ailment develops because of overwork. Weak and ailing women will do well to remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it, and let it help them.

WREN'S RIVER GEM

Fawley Court, Exquisite House on the Thames, to Be Broken Up

In that exquisite stretch of the Thames along by Medmenham Abbey and Remenham, not far from Henley, is Fawley Court, a house designed by Sir Christipher Wren. It stands on a terraced site beside the river, and is surrounded by a richly wooded park. Of the architectural excellence of Fawley Court there is no need to say anything. It is an estate with a history, for Bulstrode Whitelock, author of "Memorials of English Affairs (1682), has recorded, in much detail and with deep feeling, the wanton and insolent treatment meted out to him by the Royalists who were quartered in the old manor house which existed there in 1642. Bulstrode stated the facts, not in any spirit of enmity, but, as he says:

To raise a constant hatred of anything that may in the least tend to the fomenting of such unhappiness and misery.

It is impossible today to read his lament without thinking that the Royalists, in equalling, if not exceeding, the senseless mischief of the Roundheads, wrought damage more serious than any interference with buildings:

Divers writings of consequence and books that were left in my study, some of them they tore in pieces, others they burnt to light their tobacco . . . many excellent manuscript . . .

Fawley Court, furnished, is to be let at 100 guineas a week, and it is a very moderate rental for so fine a house and the grounds of nearly 20 acres. There are 3,000 acres of shooting.

Lewins, near Edenbridge, was to have been offered on May 29, by Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley, at Hanover Square, but the owner has now decided that an auction shall not be held. The property, therefore, has not been sold.

In a famous mansion near Windsor, where the late Sir Francis Tress Barry entertained King Edward and many a brilliant gathering of guests has in quite recent times taken place, there will be offered by auction, first, the mansion itself, St. Leonard's Hill, and thirty-four acres and, failing a sale in that way, the fabric will be sold for demolition. Messrs. Perry and Phillips (Bridgnorth) and Messrs. Buckland and Sons (Slough, Windsor and Bloomsbury Square) are to sell the property. Separately, the glass-houses, with the camelias, azaleas and other ornamental plants, will come under the hammer, and the "break-up" of another old estate thus reaches its conclusion. St. Leonard's Hill was designed by a famous architect, Thomas Sandby, for the beautiful and amiable niece of Horace Walpole. If it is broken up, and, to all intents and purposes, wasted, it will not be for the want of plenty of efforts to bring the seat to the notice of possible buyers for preservation. Both in connection with the present sale and the recent auction of the whole estate by Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley, the widest possible publicity has been given to the fact of the property being in the market.

Such buildings as were illustrated in the Slough Trading Company's announcement cover about 100 acres of the estate, and half of them are let to manufacturers and others. The remaining buildings, ranging from 4,000 square feet, are to be let. Applications should be made to the company at their Slough office. Power is generated at the company's own station, and the railway and road facilities are indicated by a ground-plan.

A woman, carrying a little dog in her arms, was riding in a bus that went along Park Lane. All the way up she worried the conductor to know whether they had come to No. —, mentioning a house nearly at the top.

When they reached the number the conductor halted the bus, thinking the woman wished to alight there. Instead of doing this, however, she went to the door of the bus and, holding up the dog, said: "Look, Fido, that's where your mother was born!"

COMPLETE PLAN FOR AUTO CAMP

Good Roads Association Meets to Decide on Methods of Publicity

TOURIST MECCA

Scenic Beauty of Edmonton District to Be Pictured in Pamphlets and Papers

To make the new Edmonton Auto camp the Mecca of all American tourists who cross the line into Alberta, will be the aim of the Edmonton Automobile and Good Roads Association during the coming summer.

At a meeting of the association held yesterday in the Corona Hotel, plans were discussed for the launching of an extensive publicity campaign with the object of inducing all tourists who might visit the southern part of the province to extend their trip through the wheat belt of Central Alberta aand the scenic beauties of the Edmonton district.

To Distribute Pamphlets

Pamphlets prominently displayed in other parts of the province, together with suitable magazine and newspaper articles, were among the methods approved by the association to impress upon tourists the advantages of visiting Edmonton.

Arrangements have already been made for the distribution of articles and illustrations to various motor publications in British Columbia, California, Southern Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and other points.

Dr. G. J. Hope said that in regard to such work it was the duty of the association to do all possible to attract the tourist, especially from a business point of view.

"Even if one tenth of the American tourists motoring in Canada could be persuaded to visit Edmonton, it would mean much added business to the city," he said.

The question of erecting sign posts along the main roads leading to the camp was considered and a special committee was appointed to look into the matter and to offer suggestions to the next meeting.

The camp will be officially opened on June 11th, and the entertainment committee of the association are co-operating with the Strathcona businessmen's association in making up an attractive program.

All Necessary Conveniences

All necessary conveniences for for camping will be available in the new camp which is equipped with kitchens, tables and chairs, water, sewer, etc.

Other matters brought up at the meeting included a report from the Onoway Good Roads Association as to the state of the road to Lac St. Anne, also the road between Villeneuve and Calahoo. This started a discussion on roads in general, and it was agreed that the South Cooking Lake trail, parts of the Calgary trail and the Stony Plain road were all in need of more dragging.

Word has been received by the local association to the effect that engineers recently visiting the Tar Sand deposits at McMurray had reported favorably upon the feasibility of their development for road paving purposes and that there was every prospect of actual work being started upon a unit of the plant for the manufacture of paving blocks at McMurray.

REPUBLICANS ELECT PERMANENT CHAIRMAN.

Hon. Frank Mondell of Wyoming Will Preside Over Cleveland Convention

CLEVELAND June 3—Hon Frank Mondell, of Wyoming, will be the permanent chairman of the Republican National Convention opening here June 10, it was announced here today.

Mr. Mondell, a member of the War Finance Corporation and former congressman from Wyoming, for years has been one of the Republican party leaders.

A statement issued by Chairman Adams, of the National committee, said that more than 125 women will be seated as delegates and more than 300 will serve as alternates.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—An international conference of agricultural representatives would be called next December under a resolution proposed today by Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, to consider the possibility of a world-wide agreement to regulate production.

Edmonton Professor Believes He Can Now Prevent Shipwrecks

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., June 3.—Dr. W. R. Boyle, Edmonton, dean of the Faculty of Applied Science in the University of Alberta, who is engaged in experimental work with the object of preventing shipping disasters from collision with ice, expressed satisfaction with the results of recent tests, when the Canadian government steamer Montcalm, on which he and his assistant, Charles Reid, Calgary, are passengers, arrived here.

Dr. Boyle, who believes the problem of under-water signalling has been solved, employs an electrical device, the details of which are secret, for the detection of other ships, icebergs, or any other object that might be a menace to a ship. He has been working on his invention in England for a number of years, but this is the first time he has sought to apply it in Canada.

HOUSE TALKS SPRAY LAKES

Minister Says No Action Due on Alberta Project This Year

OTTAWA, Ont., June 3—(Canadian Press). Spray Lakes development was before the House tonight on interior estimates.

The Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre, said that when estimates were last under consideration the Minister had given his assurance that nothing would be done in the Spray Lakes development proposal until next year. He understood that the Department of the Interior had received further communications and protests since then. He hoped the Minister would give assurance to the committee that his statement, when last estimates were up, still held good.

The Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, replied that there was nothing new in this matter excepting that the Premier of the province of Alberta had made formal applications for the Spray Lakes reservoir. The assurance he had given still held good.

In answer to E. J. Garland, Progressive, Bow River, Mr. Stewart said that it was intended to carry on a certain amount of irrigation work in Alberta this year by small parties.

TO TEST HORSE PULLS AT EXHIBITION HERE

Tests of the pulling strength of horses will be made here for the first time at the Edmonton exhibition, according to plans completed yesterday by the association. A "Dynamometer" will be used so that all the guess work of the past will be set aside by the use of this new device, which will give scientific readings of the tests made. Competitions will be in order and men who draw reins over good pulling horses in both city and country will have an invitation to try for the prizes.

THREE ENGINEMEN KILLED IN CRASH

WORCESTER, Mass., June 3.—Three enginemen were killed when the locomotive drawing westbound train No. 59, on the Boston and Albany Railroad, left the track and dove over a 20-foot embankment just as it was entering the railroad yards here late today.

Scores of passengers suffered cuts and bruises and were shaken up, but none were seriously injured.

TO SINK OIL WELL

D. O. Credille, of Burkburnett, Texas, driller for the Edmonton Gas & Development company, left the city yesterday morning for Wainwright to commence sinking the hole for the Maple Leaf Oil company. He was accompanied by William Dickerson, tool dresser, who also came up from the south.

BISHOP FAVORS CHURCH UNION

Anglican Churchman Says Present Difficulties Augur Ill For Unity

ACTS AS "ON-LOOKER"

Declares Policy of His Denomination Is One of Non-Interference

TORONTO, June 3.—Although Bishop James Sweeney, of Toronto, asserted at the synod of the Anglican Diocese of Toronto this afternoon that the policy of Canadian Anglicans on the question of organic union between the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches was one of non-interference, he said: "We cannot help saying this much at least . . . that if these three churches with such difficulties as exist between them in the matters of ministry and policy cannot combine and constitute one great amalgamated union, then it is a poor outlook for the larger union which came within the scope of the Lambeth Conference.

"Filling the roll of 'by-stander' and 'on-looker,' we view with much concern the difficulties which have arisen, and can only hope that if it be the Divine will, they may overcome in the interest of that unity which Our Lord has declared to be His will," Bishop Sweeney said.

Discussing the agitation over the Ontario Temperance Act, Bishop Sweeney said:

"I would advise those who are agitating a change in the law before pressing such a change to seriously study the facts, bearing in mind some of the altered conditions of better and happier home life, better, quieter hotel accommodation, greater orderliness and less grounds for pity and disgust on the public highways and streets of our great and congested city, less poverty and pauperism, with an increase of thrift, and above all, more hopeful conditions under which workers can carry on social and moral reform work."

GYROS TO OPEN SPORTS GROUND

Children of All Ages Will Participate at Inauguration Ceremonies

The opening of the new Gyro playground on Kitchener Square was a topic of discussion at the Gyro luncheon yesterday. Suitable ceremonies and sports are to be features of the day. A committee, composed of Bob Maze, chairman, Jimmy Lewis and Ted Mitchell, is arranging with James W. Clifton, supervisor of the Gyro playgrounds, to stage a day of sports in which children of all ages will be able to participate.

Mr. Clifton pointed out the value of playgrounds to the community. The members of the club supported Mr. Clifton's, and other speakers' remarks.

A discussion of the recent Gyro convention, held May 23 and 24, was also on the agenda of the luncheon, the various official delegates giving their opinion on the convention. That the gathering had been a success, and had helped materially in promoting the bonds of fellowship between the units of the organization, was the opinion expressed by Alex Mitchell, president.

$250,000 IN BEER IS TAKEN IN TRANSIT

MONTREAL, June3—About 12,000 barrels of beer, valued at a quarter of a million dollars, was seized yesterday afternoon at Rouses Point by United States customs authorities, while being towed to New York on a canal barge. It was consigned to the D'Eneaux Lumber company of New York City.

The barge is the property of Emile Charland, Limited, contractors, of this city, who chartered her about ten days ago to a captain whose name Mr. Charland said he had forgotten.

WATER PRESSURE IS QUESTIONED

The Fire Chief was yesterday requested by Acting-Mayor Collisson to make a report on the water pressure at the Monday morning fire at Cherrill's riding school when a man lost his life. It was as a result of questions raised on the point the previous night at council meeting by aldermen, that the Mayor instituted the inquiry.

TO START WORK ON PLANT

Following the award by council Monday night of the contract for the sewage disposal plant at Riverdale, the city engineer's department yesterday announced that it was ready at once to have the work started. The cost of material will exceed the outlay for construction.

BIG FUR PACK UNSOLD

The fur pack brounght to Edmonton by Sheridan Lawrence of Fort Vermilion was put up for sale at the Western Grocers' warehouse yesterday, but was unsold, the reserve bid not being reached.

The pack included the pelts of 8,912 muskrats, 190 beaver, 17 marten, 122 lynx, 364 mink, 136 red fox, 24 silver fox, 96 cross fox, 2 otter, 1 wolverine, 128 skunk, and 476 weasle.

BROUGHT 170 FARMERS

Captain A. S. Whiter, colonization agent for the Canadian Pacific railway in Liverpool, England, was in Edmonton over the weekend. He brought out with him 170 farm laborers from the old country, who settled in various parts of Canada. The C.P.R. man looks for a considerable influx of the right kind of British immigrants.

MOOSE COW ROUTS BEAR AFTER FIGHT

Grizzly Puts Up Hard Battle to Satisfy Hunger by Getting Moose Calf, But Mother Successfully Defends Her Young From Enemy

PORT ARTHUR, June 3.—On a lake back of Loon, last Sunday, was enacted a thrilling and dramatic battle between a cow moose ready to give up her life for her young calf and a ferocious grizzly bear equally determined to satisfy his hunger.

A party of men from Port Arthur were paddling along the lake when they saw the cow accompanied by her young offspring heading across the lake closely pursued by the bear. The spectators saw the moose land, helping her calf to shore, where both stood quietly, evidently to recover from the recent exertion. By this time the bear had made land a short distance above. He immediately made for his quarry.

The mother moose quartered her calf, throwing it into the thicket. Having thus disposed of her offspring, the moose with head down, rushed straight for the on-coming bear. A fierce struggle ensued with the result that the grizzly, badly mauled, retreated up a nearby hill.

Again the bear hove in sight, hunting around the lower ground for the calf still hidden in the thicket. Spying the assailant, the moose charged down the incline at full speed. The bear faced the on-coming raging animal but failed to ward off the blow delivered by head and hoof. The renewed battle lasted bu a short time. The bear showed apair of heels to the pursuing moose, and bolted into the woods, presumably in search of easier prey.

NEW OIL WELL READY TO SPUD

Superintendent of British Petroleums Expects Results by June 10

"I expect that British Petroleums well No. 3 will be spudded in about June 10," said Newton W. Emmens, general superintendent of the company, yesterday. Everything is ready to commence, and as soon as the boilers have been tested by the government inspector, it will be commenced.

Mr. Emmens expects the drill in the No. 4 derrick to be put in operation by about June 20. At this drilling site the derrick is finished and the camp completed, and two drillers and a tool dresser from Los Angeles are on the ground.

The gas lines to the various wells have been completed, water tanks have been erected and an oil tank placed at No. 2 well. V. C. Lamb, assistant superintendent, has arrived from West Virginia, and will go down to the field today with Mr. Emmens.

WILD HORSES COMING TO ANNUAL STAMPEDE

Spectators to Be Able to See Roping Stunts in Corrals

Wild horses from Chilliwack, from Bow River, from Queenie Creek and from Stettler have already been arranged for by the Exhibition Association for the annual stampede. Corrals will be built west of the grand stand so that spectators may see the wild ones being roped and brought into the ring to be ridden. Men started work yesterday upon construction of the corrals and necessary fences.

Several horsemen who have been familiar with stampede management have already arrived in the city and are busy planning details. G. M. Williams, A. Nimmons and Casey Patterson are already here and from information they have, there will be quite a gathering of punchers in the city for the stampede.

The prize lists for the big affair will be out in a few days and already inquiries are pouring in to the association offices.

CENTRAL WAREHOUSE FOR SEED GROWERS

Will Be Used for Assembling, Cleaning and Marketing Registered Grain

SASKATOON, Sask., June 3.—Saskatchewan growers of registered seed grain are planning for a central warehouse for the assembling, cleaning and marketing of the registered grain produced in the province, according to George Spence, M. L. A., Notukeu, chairman of the Warehousing and Marketing Committee of the Saskatchewan Field Husbandry Association.

Plans will be discussed by the committee here Wednesday.

AGED PAPER VALUED HIGHLY BY OWNER

Copy of London Sun Printed in Gold Type Is Excellent Printing

VANCOUVER, June 3—(Canadian Press)—Although the printing art has made great strides in the past century, few more attractive editions of a daily newspaper have been produced in this modern day than the copy of The Sun of London England, of July 10, 1838, owned by David Kinna, of this city.

It was published on the day of Queen Victoria's Coronation and in honor of that occasion the front and back pages were printed in gold ink, which to this day has preserved its lustre. Almost half of the front page is devoted to a magnificent steel engraving of a madalion of the young queen.

Whatever interesting events may have been going on in England and the remainder of the world on that memorable day are not narrated in The Sun of July 10, 1838. Its entire space is devoted to the Coronation.

RAIL BOARD TO SIT JUNE 13

Right of Way Across C. N. R. Tracks at 71st Street Asked by Citizens

A complaint from R. B. Ritchie of Edmonton in regard to a right of way over the C.N.R. tracks at 71st Street is the only case so far set down for hearing before the board of railway commissioners which is scheduled to sit in the court house here on Friday morning next, June 13th.

According to a communication received by the city clerk from the secretary of the board, Mr. Ritchie complains that both the Canadian National Railway authorities and the City of Edmonton have refused to open a right of way across the tracks at this point.

City officials state that they have no record of any communication to this effect being received by them.

DEFECTIVE WIRING IS CAUSE OF FIRE

Blaze at Mat. Esdale's Is Quickly Extinguished by the Brigade

A small fire broke out yesterday noon in the Dominion Block, McDougall Avenue, in the premises occupied by Mat. Esdale, printer, and the Alberta and Arctic Transportation Company.

The blaze was caused by defective wiring, and slight damage was done to a wall, but the fire was soon extinguished by the brigade.

NO RE-UNION, SAYS BISHOP

Anglican Leader Declares Church Is Far From Joining With Rome

"UTTER IMPOSSIBILITY"

Diocese of Edmonton Opens Synod in All Saints' Pro-Cathedral

Re-union of the Anglican Church with the Church of Rome was declared to be "an utter and absolute impossibility" by the Right Rev. Alexander J. Doull, Bishop of Kootenay, in an address last night at the opening of the annual synod of the Anglican Diocese of Edmonton, in All Saints' Pro-Cathedral.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from St. John's College, Winnipeg, was conferred upon the Venerable Archdeacon Howcroft of Edmonton South, and was formally presented by Frank Ford, K.C., the chancellor of Edmonton Diocese.

Today there will be a celebration of tht holy communion at 9:30, followed by the Bishop's charge to the synod. Luncheon will be served at one o'clock and a group photograph will be taken at two o'clock. In it will be included clergy and lay delegates to the synod from all parts of Northern Alberta, from Ponoka to Athabasca. The afternoon session will open at 2:30. This evening there will be a missionary meeting at eight o'clock with special addresses.

Tomorrow will open with a celebration of the holy communion at eight o'clock and the synod will open its session at ten, with other sessions to follow.

Speaks of Difficult Age

The difficult age in which we live and the difficulty of bearing witness in a young country in which the material expansion almost shuts out spiritual growth, were discussed by Bishop Doull in his address.

Bishop Doull said in part: "The Church was founded and exists to bear witness to the saving power of Jesus Christ. The age in which we live is a very difficult one. It is one of unparalleled growth, change and revolution with regard to things material. It is quite probable that the world has not seen so much change as during the last hundred years. It is an age of discovery, very extensive and far-reaching."

"Men's thoughts have undergone great changes. Democracy has supposed to have been in the ascendency, while in reality we have been passing through an age of monopoly. There is change everywhere. Change has been going to the far depths of man's being. Such has characterized the past century. Is it any wonder that the still small voice has been almost hushed? And the work of witnessing for Him has been more difficult than during any other period of the Church's life.

Nation Sowing Wild Oats

"A nation has an existence altogether apart from the individuals which compose it. Youth is a time when things material have the stronger appeal and baser passions call. So it is with the youth of a country. Youth is a time of irresponsible action. Our nation is going on today, sowing its wild oats, utterly forgetting the harvest. 'Eat, drink and be merry' seems to be the motto of the vast majority of our fellow countrymen.

Now in such a country, you and I as members of the Church are called upon to witness and tell men and women that Jesus Christ is their Lord and King, and to impress upon them that if Canada is to become a great nation it is absolutely necessary that it be brought under His control. Our political, commercial, social and educational activities must be brought under His control. Only if in truth Canada becomes a Christian nation, can she become a worthy nation, one of the brightest gems in the British crown. That is our prayer. Our work and our actions must correspond.

Re-union Impossible

"Re-union is an utter impossibility. Towards our Roman Catholic fellow citizens, we have nothing but the kindliest feelings. We admire their system, their zeal and their fidelity. There is much in their devotion which we might be well to adopt but we cannot. We cannot feel that it would be good for the country, for the Empire and for the world to unite with the Papal See."

TAX COLLECTION ON DECREASE

$286,676 Received This Year Against $352,457 in Period of 1923

CHANGES BLAMED

System of Lighter Penalties Make Payers Less Prompt, Is Theory

Tax collections by the City for the first five months of this year show a slight decrease in comparison to the same period of 1923. According to figures given out at the City Hall yesterday the collections for 1924 up to May 31, total $286,676.15, while for the same period last year the collections amounted to $352,457.29.

The amounts include arrears as well as current tax collections. The arrears collected for 1924 amount to $264,276.36 while the current collections were $22,399.79. Last year the arrears collected were only $248,362.37 for this period, or about $6,000 less. The current collections for the same period last year amounted to $104,094.92.

The decrease in current collections this year is attributed largely to the change in the system of tax collection. Last year the penalties on taxes were fairly high, and taxpayers made it a point to pay as soon as possible. This year with a change in the system whereby there are lower penalties and only three penalty dates, the collections, as expected, are slightly lower.

It is expected that the collections will be fairly heavy by July 1, which is the next penalty date, or the date after which time the penalty on taxes is increased. Heavy payments were made last June owing to the fact that there was a considerable confusion among taxpayers as to whether the penalty date was June 1 or July 1. This, to a certain measure, accounts for the larger collections during the first hive months last year, according to the City Assessor.

SAYS HARVEST DISAPPOINTING

Good Wheat Crop Throughout World Hurt Canada In 1923

LONDON, June 3.—(Canadian Press Cable)—"Although in 1923 the Dominion reaped the most abundant harvest on record, the returns to the Canadian farmer were disappointing," said E. H. Godfrey, head of the agricultural statistics division of the Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa, in a paper read on his behalf before the Farmers' Club, here today.

The paper was a study of costs of production on Canadian farm and conveyance of produce to English ports.

"But this disappointment," Mr. Godfrey continued, "was due largely to the general excellence of the wheat crop throughout the world which had the effect of reducing the price. This is a rare occurrence and we may look for a rise in the price when world conditions of wheat revert to the normal."

Dealing with fresh outlets for Canadian grain, Mr. Godfrey pointed out that the Panama Canal is likely to have an important influence in shortening the land haul from a large part of western Canada. He also indicated that the Hudson Bay route has received the approval of successive governments.

The United States, he added has apparently reached the limit of wheat production, while in Canada, where vast areas of fertile lands still await the plough, agricultural production must continue annually to increase.

GUN CARRIAGE FOR VETERANS' FUNERAL

Joseph Sheppard, Fire Victim, Will Receive Full Military Honors

The funeral of Joseph Sheppard, Imperial War Veteran, who died in the Cherrill Riding Academy last Sunday night, will be held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock in conjunction with the burial of three other veterans, Denis O'Day, W. L. Carnell and Jeremiah Daly, who also died over the week end. The funeral services will be under the auspices of the Great War Veterans' Association at the Memorial Hall. Full military honors are being given the deceased veterans, and a gun carriage and hearse will be in attendance.

The pallbearers and firing squad will be selected from members of the G.W.V.A. Rev. Captain J. P. Gerrie will officiate at the Memorial Hall services, and at the graveside. Interment is to be at the Soldiers' Plot at the Edmonton cemetery.

VIEW SEDIMENT BASIN

The executive of the Edmonton Property Oweners Association in company with Commissioner Yorath and Acting Mayor Collisson viewed the proposed sedimentation basin at the waterworks yesterday afternoon. Their report on it will be submitted to the next meeting of the association.

SEEK TO STOP BETTING EVIL

National Sunday School Union in Britain Would Prohibit Gambling

LONDON, June 3—(Canadian Press)—About forty M.P.'s and a number of mayors were present at a luncheon here recently given by Sir Harold Mackintosh, the new president of the National Sunday School Union. Sir Harold, who subsequently opened a brief discussion on the gambling evil, attributed the increase in gambling to three causes.

1. The increase of leisure among all classes out of proportion to the increase in educational facilities;

2. The modern desire to get rich quickly and thereby escape the hard walks of life;

3. A growing love of excitement.

Gambling was economically unsound, and in betting transactions £350,000,000 changed hands every year—more than the interest on the National debt, and four times as much as England spent on education. Gambling, he said, was a more profitless procedure than drinking, for drinking did produce something in the way of employment, and some return for service rendered; but gambling produced nothing. The spirit of gambling was even creeping into businesses and churches in the form of "Golden Ballots," newspaper and poster competitions. It was easy to fall into this habit of trusting to luck He suggested that the remedy for the evil was to be found in Bands of Hope and Sunday Schools, but any remedy must be produced in a tactful and not narrow-minded spirit, and arguments should be based on the unprofitable and inexpedient nature of gambling.

Isaac Foot, M.P., said he had no faith in legislation that was not well thought out, with the evidence of the national demand. The Prime Minister had stated he would be glad to receive a deputation on the subject with real educational and moral influence, as he viewed with growing concern the increase of the gambling evil brought out in the reports of the Bets Tax Committee. He did not think the prohibition of the publication of betting tips would provide any measure of protection. They would get no public sympathy if they dealt with the subject from the point of view of the man in the street, but if they made an attack on the great predatory classes who made a living by taking money out of the pockets of working men they would get support from a certain section. E. Scrymgeour, M.P., said if they took this up they would be up against the Stock Exchange.

WOMAN TRIES TO KILL SELF

Takes Overdose of Acid and Fails to Succeed in Attempt

EXPECTED TO LIVE

Husband Was Slain With Axe—Murder Charge to Follow

Mrs. Joseph Kalinski, wife of the aged hotel proprietor and storekeeper of Redwater, Alberta, found brutally murdered in his bed on Monday afternoon, is today held by the provincial police at Fort Saskatchewan and will be charged with the murder of her husband. A blood-stained axe was found in an adjoining room.

The woman was found by the police in the bush about half a mile away from the hotel, suffering from effects of carbolic-acid poisoning. She is expected to recover, the police say.

First news of the tragedy was received by the provincial police at Fort Saskatchewan by telephone from Thomas Bostyn, telephone operator of Redwater, which is a small town on the St. Paul de Metis line about twenty miles north of Fort Saskatchewan.

It is alleged that husband and wife had been estranged and on bad terms for a considerable time.

Neighbors Find Body

The gruesome discovery was made when a commercial traveller went to the hotel late on Monday afternoon to register for a room. Finding the front door locked and no one about, he sought the assistance of neighbors, and the party entered the back of the hotel. Proceeding upstairs, they came across the body of Kalinski lying on his bed in a pool of blood, and with his skull fractured in two places.

On a small table in the bedroom there were four bottles which had contained carbolic acid, also a letter written by Mrs. Kalinski before she took the poison. According to Thomas Bostyn, telephone operator and storekeeper at Redwater, the letter contained statements to the effect that life was not worth living for either herself or her husband, and she had decided to end it all. Further on, the letter stated that Mrs. Kalinski did not wish to be buried with her husband, but "as far apart as possible."

The provincial police at Fort Saskatchewan were immediately notified, and they in turn sent word in to headquarters at Edmonton. Constable Nalder of Fort Saskatchewan and Sub-Inspector Harrison and Detective Elock of Edmonton were sent to the scene.

Entering the room, the officers found everything just as had been reported briefly over the telephone by Mr. Bostyn.

Wife Is Found in Bush

Mrs. Kalinski was found later by the police, a half mile from the hotel, in the bush, suffering from carbolic-acid poisoning. An overdose of the acid had caused a reaction that saved her life, it is said. She was attended by a doctor and subsequently taken to Fort Saskatchewan jail. Her condition is not serious and it is expected she will recover.

The crime was committed on Sunday night, it is alleged, though it was not discovered until late Monday afternoon.

An inquest commenced by Coroner Henry of Fort Saskatchewan yesterday was adjourned until later in the week pending further investigation by the police.

The post-mortem examination made yesterday revealed five wounds on the head, some of which had been made with a [illegible] axe or similar instrument.

Mr. Kalinski was well known in the district, where he had lived for many years.

The alleged slayer was Kalinski's second wife. A daughter is living in the Redwater district at present, and two daughters of Mr. Kalinski's first marriage are in Europe.

GORDON WINKLER MOVES

Gordon Winkler will move from his house at 8120 Jasper Avenue today, to take up his new residence on 117th Street and Victoria Avenue. D. F. McGrew is leaving 10322 100th Avenue at the same time and will take possession of Mr. Winkler's late residence on Jasper Avenue East.

POLICE SCENT BOOTLEGGING IN HALF-STORE, HALF-HOME

Court Must Decide Whether Clerk Who Sleeps in the Rear of Store Is Permitted to Have Liquor There Under Personal Permit

Arrangements have been made by some city drug stores and cigar stands to have sleeping quarters erected in the rear of their premises in which to house one or more of their clerks, according to the police.

This proceeding, it is said, will encourage violations of the law regarding illegal liquor sales, and has given rise to the first difficult point in the enforcement of the new liquor act, as it is the contention of those who have put this scheme into effect that the new room is the private residence of the occupant, and is therefore a legal place in which to keep liquor, if the clerk has a personal liquor permit.

This difficulty has presented itself in cases which the police are at present investigating, and it is probable that interesting points will be raised in a Police Court case which is now pending.

The police assert that if the above mentioned contention is upheld it will make the obtaining of convictions very difficult.

HAIRY MARAUDERS THREATEN GARDENS AND TREES OF CITY

Authorities Actively Engaged in Spraying to Check the Ravages of Caterpillar Pests—Machine May Be Had for Small Covering Charge

Caterpillars have made their appearance throughout the district and are reported to be destroying shrubs, trees and garden crops.

Last year' plague was as nothing, it is contended by some, compared with the promised attack this year, if the present indications continue to expand. Already trees, shrubs and even garden plants have been stripped of their foliage in all parts of the city, while swarms of the invaders have been seen crossing roads on the south side and in the west end in search of fresh pastures.

The city authorities are actively engaged in spraying a powerful deterrent to the grub, on boulevard trees within the danger zone. A power spray with a large tank full of nicotine sulphate, arsenate of lead and other delectable concoctions, has been prepared and is already in operation in the city.

Although the green poplar is the favorite beverage of the caterpillar, the willows are being attacked this year, as well as certain garden plants and amateur produce gardeners are being advised by the City Engineer to take extraordinary precautions to prevent the future table delicacies from being nocturnally consumed by the hairy marauders.

The practice of laying on one's back and smoking cheap cigars is recommended only as second best to asking the city spray to visit the locality. A covering charge is made in the latter instance, but even at this it will probably come out cheaper than the doctors' bills following the smoking stunt.

Whatever is the method employed, the main object is to exterminate, destroy, kill, squash, suffocate, annihilate or otherwise do away with as many caterpillars as will fill a gallon measure umpteen times per hour.

In this manner only will the verdant and luxuriant foliage of the Alberta summer be retained.

The Daily Poem

FROM THE GOLDEN BOOKS
A Sonnet
(Dante Gabriel Rossetti)

A sonnet is a moment's monument—
Memorial from the Soul's eternity
To one dead deathless hour. Look that it be,
Whether for lustral rite or dire portent,
Of its own arduous fulness reverent:
Carve it in ivory or in ebony,
As Day or Night may rule; and let Time see
A Sonnet is a coin: its face reveals
The soul—its converse, to what power 'tis due:—
Whether for tribute to the august appeals
Of Life, or dower in Love's high retinue,
It serve; or, 'mid the dark wharf's cavernous breath,

Teacher's Alliance gives Dinner

The Separate School Teacher's Alliance entertained at an enjoyable dinner Monday evening in Hepburns. Mr. Gibbs in an address on the "Home" spoke of the appreciation it has found in the different ages, of what the home should mean to all and of the hopes held for the future when many ideals would be realized. Mr. Shannon moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Gibbs. Madame Boulanger, on behalf of the ex-teachers, expressed their appreciation.

Other numbers which were greatly appreciated were given by A. Doucette, and the Misses M. Paradis, A. Lessard, B. Moher and A. Verreau. A feature of the evening which was specially pleasing was a sing-song accompanied by the president, Miss Y. LeBlanc, in which all took part.

Institute Convention a Success, Reports Edmonton Woman

"Most successful, with a very amicable spirit prevailing throughout" was the way in which Miss Jessie C. Macmillan described the annual convention of the Women's Institute of Alberta, on her return from Calgary yesterday. The program was carried out with dispatch, and the different reports showed that while perfection had not been attained, many steps forward had been taken and much experience gained; the members were interested in only things worth while, and activities had been directed toward erecting of community halls and swimming pools, building up libraries, improving rural cemetries, and general community work, she said.

The president, Mrs. J. N. Beaubier, Champion, recommended that the keynote of the coming year's work be "world peace." Speaking on the problems of the housewife in rural districts she urged women to so systemize their days that the much needed hours for rest, recreation and self-development were not swallowed up in the ceaseless routine of household cares. She also stressed the fact that it is the faithful practice of small economies which eventually leads to prosperity.

The Hon. Perren Baker, addressing one of the meetings, said: "You cannot raise the standards of the community unless you first raise your standards of education for the school is the foundation upon which we must build. The school is our chief instrument in furthering better conditions in Alberta, and by concentrating on the schools and moulding public opinion to demand a higher standard of education, within a decade that standard will be materially raised."

Miss Macmillan, reported that the Women's Home Bureau Service brought gratifying results. Millinery, sewing, basketry, foods, home nursing and other subjects were dealt with, she said, and ninety-one travelling libraries had been sent to women's organizations during the year.

One of the social feautres of the convention was an afternoon tea given the delegates by the Hudson Bay Co., at which Mr. P. J. Parker received the guests and gave a talk on the history of the Hudson Bay Company, followed by a demonstration on home furnishing.

A demonstration on the kimona dress given by three girls from the Olds Agricultural School, who comprised the winning team at the recent Winnipeg Exposition, attracted a great deal of interest. It was shown how dresses to suit all occasions could be made on the same principle: house dress, kitchen apron or dainty afternoon frock, and all made to look different by adding a bit of trimming, a deft touch or a collar and cuff set.

Education and child welfare were considered extensively. Mrs. F. S. G. Grevett, Calgary, Convenor of Education, urged the continuance of "On with Grade VIII" slogan. Mrs. F. S. Porter, Purple Springs, in her report on child welfare said: "Starting with the negative attitude of prevention of death and disease, we have progressed to the positive attitude of health for every child."

Picnic and Swim

The members of Grade 6 of Garneau School took advantage of the holiday yesterday to spend an hour in the South Side swimming pool, followed by a picnic in Riverside Park. Their teacher, Mr. Wilfred Wees, was in charge of the party. The troupe gathered about ten o'clock in the morning, and, all carrying bulky parcels well filled with lunches provided by their mothers proceeded to the pool. After a swim, games were played in the park, and then the picnic lunch was spread out under the trees. The picnic lasted until about two o'clock in the afternoon.

Bridge Hostess

Mrs. E. Underwood, 10705, Saskatchewan Drive, was the hostess at a bridge and "five hundred" party given yesterday under the auspices of the Catholic Womens' League. The proceeds are to help to defray the expenses of the Convention to be held in the city in July. Mrs. Underwood was assisted by Mrs. R. T. Gaboury and Mrs. B. E. Mooney. Mrs. E. J. Mahar, Mrs. Woodman of Montreal and Miss M. Simm, served. The floral decorations consisted of pansies in bowls in the centre of the table. Mrs. Peter Gunn won the prize for bridge, and the winner of the "five hundred" prize was Mrs. W. Keating. The guests were Mrs. R. T. Gaboury, Mrs. T. Ducy, Mrs. Frank Moher, Mrs. M. Conway, Mrs. Robert Crossland, Mrs Carstairs, Mrs. J. J. Callahan, Mrs. Forbes Reid, Mrs. E. J. Mahar, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Donald Fraser, Mrs. Peter Gunn, Mrs. W. Keating, Mrs. George Caywood, Miss Irma Caywood, Mrs. Safana, Mrs. B. E. Mooney, Mrs J. O'Sullivan, Mrs. Trenholme Dickson, Mrs. Tansy, Mrs Troy, Miss Burton, Mrs. Woodman, Montreal; Mrs. Michael Flood, Mrs. T. O'Brien, Mrs. W. Chisholm, Mrs. Joseph Moher, Mrs. J. J. Allan, Mrs. J. J. Cashman, Miss Mabel Simm.

Young Farmers' Week.

The Sixth Annual "University Week for Farm Young People," begins today at the University of Alberta, under the direction of the Department of Extension and the College of Agriculture. The sessions of the gathering will be held in Convocation Hall, Arts building, and the delegates, who are boys and girls between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five, will reside at the University. The program will consist of such subjects as practical agriculture, nature study, field work in botany, geology, and entomology for the young men, while the girls will be instructed in domestic science, home nursing, and allied subjects. Reveille is sounded at seven o'clock, and lights out at 10:30.

Congregational Social.

The Quarterly Social of Knox Presbyterian Church was held last evening at the church basement, and on this occasion it was the ladies the first letter of whose names ranged from L to Q who were responsible for the social program. The chair was taken by Mr. John MacKenzie, who opened the musical program with a few words. A reception committee composed of Mrs. Andrew Reid, Mrs. J. W. McLaggan, Mrs. Marion Sr.; Mrs. Robert Leslie, Mrs. F. A. Peel, made the large number of guests feel at their ease, and Mrs. S. Q. O'Brien and Mrs. MacDonald superintended the arrangements for the refreshments.

Lilac and flowering plants were used for decoration, and a cheerful appearance was given to the hall by the pink lampshades, which were handmade.

An unexpected item was introduced into the program by the presentation of a large bouquet of sweet peas to Mr. Andrew Reid, the pastor, as a token of regard, the day being the anniversary of his birthday. Mrs. John Miller, in presenting the bouquet, said that she did so in the name of all the congregation. In responding, Mr. Reid expressed his appreciation of the kind thought that prompted the idea.

IRISH COMMISSION HEAD NOT CHOSEN

No Dominion Statesman Is Likely to Occupy Post, It Is Announced

LONDON, June 3—(Canadian Press Cable)—Sir Robert Borden will not bechairman of the commission to fix the boundaries between Northern and Southern Ireland, according to the London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian.

"Nor will it be any other dominion statesman who will be the chairman of the boundary commission," says the Guardian, "as there is no other with the necessary detachment from active politics especially from Irish affairs."

SHOPPING TIPS

By MISS BULLETIN

Information as to where the articles described may be purchased can be obtained by calling The Bulletin TELEPHONE OPERATOR, Phone 9324, and mentioning the date of publication and the list number of the article.

1 A snappy summer tub frock of jade green crepe made wrap-around style with tie of white linen at the side, is marked $6.50. The Peter Pan collar and cuffs are of white linen and the breast and side pocket on skirt are nicely tailored. White linen covered buttons act as a trimming down the left side starting from the waist line.

2 Extremely smart indeed is a tailored blouse of white voile with Peter Pan collar and long sleeves, marked $5.50. The collar, cuffs and box plait down the front are piped with green checked gingham. Clusters of pin tucks trim the front. This blouse would be exceptionally nice for business wear or sports wear.

3 Alluring and cool looking is a dainty frock of voile in a rose shade, marked $22.50. The bloused bodice is made with lace collar and cuffs and group of pin tucks on the shoulders, back and front. A narrow panel which starts below the collar and extends half way down the skirt is done with hand drawn work and further elaborated with tiny pearl buttons on either side. The gathered skirt is finished with several rows of pin tucks above the wide hem and sash of self material.

4 A dainty summer frock developed of canvas finished white voile with a novelty cross stripe of blue and gold joined with val insertion, is a graceful and youthful dress marked $21.50. The dainty collar and turned back cuffs are of white organdie trimmed with val insertion and lace. Round patch pockets on the gathered skirt are of white organdie trimmed with val lace and bow of saxe blue ribbon. The double strand girdle of novelty baby ribbon in a saxe blue is held in place with ivory buckles. Ivory rings add a smart touch to the long ends of the bow tie at the neck.

5 For sports wear, with a sweater to match, there is nothing smarter than a plaited skirt. A plaited wool crepe with novelty self stripe, made with camisole top and strap shoulders, is marked $3.98. It is shown in sand, brown and cocoa.

6 An ideal mirror for over the fire-place, size thirty-three by sixteen with mirror twenty-one and a half by sixteen, is marked $17. It is made panel effect with mirror in centre and raised floral design on either side. The frame is polychrome with ornamental corners.

Activities In Women's Clubs

Regular Monthly Meeting

The McDougall L.A., held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon in the church parlor. Mrs. P. E. Butchart was in the chair and Miss Agnes Allen gave the scripture lesson. Mrs. E. A. Freeman, convener of the visiting committee reported forty-six calls made since the last meeting. Mrs. J. H. Lines reported for the hospital committee that fourteen calls had been made at the hospitals. It was decided to appoint a committee of two each month to supply flowers for the pulpit. Mrs. George Jewell and Mrs. J. H. Lines were appointed for June. Ways and means of raising funds for the coming year were discussed. The first project to be undertaken will be the serving of meals at the Exhibition in July. Arrangements for this work will be made at a later meeting. The president then called attention to the fact that in August of this year the McDougall Ladies' Aid will have reached its thirty-eighth birthday and her suggestion that the event be fittingly celebrated at the first meeting after the summer holidays was received with much enthusiasm by all present. Mrs. R. L. McTavish, who is soon to move from the city, thanked the Ladies for their kindness to her during the five years she has been associated with them.

Plan Big Bazaar

When the central branch of the Ladies' Aid of First Presbyterian Church met on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Gordon Savage, 9928-105th Street, the conveners appointed to take charge of the bazaar to be held in November made their final arrangements. No more meetings will be held until September.

The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. M. J. Macleod, in the chair. Mrs. I. W. Crafts read the scripture lesson, and Mrs. Jas. Fraser led in prayer, after which a busy session relating to plans for the bazaar was held. Mrs. M. J. Macleod will act as general convener and the three branches, Central, South Side and East End, will work jointly. Mrs. Ross, president of the South Side branch will be in charge of a miscellaneous booth; Mrs. Burns, South Side, and Mrs. Cort, East End, will be in charge of a fishpond; Mrs. A. W. Ormsby and Mrs. W. Barnhouse are convening the apron booth; Mrs. Robert Lee, Mrs. J. B. Macdonald and Mrs. J. A. Dalton will convene the household linen booth. Mrs. Jas. Fraser will have charge of the children's booth; Mrs. Norman Smith and Mrs. A. I. Payne are to have a handkerchief booth, and Mrs. Duncan Forbes, a bag booth. Mrs. Homer will take charge of a doll booth, and Mrs. W. H. Cooper will convene the tea tables.

When business was over the hostess served refreshments; Mrs. M. J. Macleod poured tea, and Mrs. I. W. Crafts cut the ices. Mrs. P. G. Thomson assisted Mrs. Savage in serving.

Women's Press Club Mourns the Death of the Woman Who Founded It

MONTREAL, Que., June 3—The death here of Margaret Graham Horton, wife of Albert Horton, editor of the Hansard (Parliamentary) reports, will be greatly regretted by members of the Canadian Women's Press Club, of which she was the founder. At the last Triennial meeting in Vancouver and Victoria, George Ham, of the C.P.R., named by Mrs. Horton, of whom he was an old and valued friend, "Father Ham," paid in the course of a speech at a dinner in the Hotel Vancouver a merited tribute to her part in the organization of the Club, and when called upon to respond, she contributed to the programme at the dinner an exceedingly witty speech.

Mrs. Horton entered the field of journalism as a young girl, and received her first training on the staff of the Halifax Herald. From the first her native independence and originality of thought and her facile, telling touch as a pen woman were recognized. Her marriage to Mr. Horton took place not long after her move to Ottawa, one child, a daughter Lois, now about 16 years of age, being born of the Union. At Ottawa, whose cosmopolitan life was exactly adapted to her tastes and type of mind, and deeply interested her, she had made a host of friends and she was very active in the Ottawa branch of the C.W.P.C.

THIS SELECTION OF SHOES ANSWERS EVERY REQUIREMENT OF JUNE BRIDE

The June bride will find that the number of shoes she covets will be quite astonishing but with a little consideration she can cut the list.

For evening she will probably want gold or silver slippers with fancy stockings to match.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

"Dear me! Where has my money gone?" cried the little boy whom I mentioned in the last story, looking through his pockets and in the boat, under the seat and behind the anchor. But the money wasn't there. No, indeed. Money never is anywhere after you've lost it.

"Wait a minute," said Little Jack Rabbit, opening his knapsack and taking out a handful of carrot pennies and a roll of lettuce leaf dollar bills.

Give me the good old silver coin,
That's the stuff to fill my till,"

Of course, after that the little rabbit put his money back in his knapsack and fastened the straps, for he wasn't going to lose his fortune. No siree, and no sireeman. Not Little Jack Rabbit, even if he were a little country rabbit from Old Bramble Patch, Rail Fence Corner, Bunnybridge.

Now, let me explain right here while I think of it, that Rabbitville and Bunnybridge are reallly the same little town, only on opposite sides of the Bubbling Brook, just like New York City and Brooklyn. So, in case you ever got there you needn't appear ignorant and maybe lose your way in the Shady Forest or Sunny Meadow before you come to the old log across the Bubbling Brook, just like the Brooklyn Bridge, only, of course, without trolley cars running over it. Although little ants and water bugs, and sometimes four-footed people like Chippy Chipmunk, Timmie Meadowmouse, Squirrel Nutcracker used it as a short cut to the other side.

Goodness me! Where was I before I began to describe things? Oh. .. The boatman wouldn't accept Rabbitville money.

Dear me, I don't know what would have happened if just then the good circus elephant hadn't pulled a wallet out of his pocket. Maybe the little rabbit and the little boy would have been taken to the Police Station. But I know they would rather go to a Candy Shop where they sell

Ginger ale and chocolate drops.

"Now come along with me," said the big circus animal, "we'll get something to eat," and he led the little bunny and the boy to a restaurant and ordered a nice lunch for them. And did they have a good time? Well, I should say yes three times. When they had eaten 'umpty 'leven kinds of pie, the little bunny rabbit filled his pockets with toothpicks. Having never seen any at home, he thought Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother, would like them. And in the next story, IF

Policeman Number 23

"You look quite unhappy, Karl—much more so than a young man who is going to marry a delightful girl in the near future should look."

Karl made no comment on my speech. Instead, he drew from his vest pocket a small package enclosed in white tissue paper.

"From something you said the other day, Leslie, I concluded that you went to your fathers' attorney, Mr. Corcoran, for advice on selling your pearls, and I decided that if I could find them again, your string should be complete.

"The old gentleman was greatly loath to tell me anything about them. In fact, he disclaimed knowing anything about them, until I explained that it was a matter of great importance to me that the string of pearls which I had given to you as a memento of our childish companionship, on your wedding day, should be complete.

"After a great deal of persuading he told me that he had given you a letter to a Mr. Anstay, a friend of his who was a jewel broker, and he knew that you had sold them to him because his friend had told him that he bought three very fine pearls from the young lady that he had sent him.

"'You don't know whether he has sold them yet?' I asked.

"'I haven't the slightest idea, but you might go and find out,' and he gave me his card with an inquiry about the pearls written on it.

"Fortunately luck was with me. I found the man still had them. He told me he had been on the point of selling them three or four times, and at the last moment something had happened which broke off negotiations.

"Now," Karl said, unfolding the paper, "here they are, and your string is intact. It almost seems as though it were something that fate had decided upon," he concluded.

"It almost seems," I repeated "that you are perhaps the nicest man in all the world. I oughtn't to take them, Karl," I said balancing the little white gems in my hand.

"Don't deprive me of that great pleasure. Every one of those gems has a distinct association for me, and although I cannot connect each one with its proper association, yet when I knew the other day there were still three absent from your string I felt as though I had been deprived of three very happy memories."

"It is very sweet of you, Karl dear, to do all this for me. I want to tell you again, that under no consideration, without your full consent and knowledge, will I ever dispose of another one of these beautiful jewels."

Silently Karl's hand reached across the table and clasped mine. Looking into his eyes the compact was made.

I'm wondering now, Ruth, what I will do if Jack insists upon me sending them back.

The Radio Column

By Carlton E. Butler
Radio Engineer

You may have noticed, in the better class of hydrometers, the instrument used to test the solution of storage batteries, that the little glass float has a number of small glass spines grouped around and protruding from the surface of the top and bottom of the float chamber.

If the float were not provided with these projections you would find that the float had a tendency to stick to the inside wall of the glass cylinder of the hydrometer. If the float sticks to the side of the glass it will not rise as high as it should and you will obtain a low reading.

The small spines hold the float away from the inside of the glass and allow the float to rise as high as it will go. If your hydrometer is not equipped with this type of float be sure that you take the reading when the float is riding in the centre of the glass, free from the sides. This reading will be correct.

You may be curious to know why the float has a big tube at the bottom and a little narrow neck. This is done for the purpose of increasing the accuracy of the float, and to provide a scale that be easily read.

You will readily understand this when you understand the action of the hydrometer. The float measures the specific gravity of the electrolyte, or in other words, measures the comparative amount of acid in the solution. As acid is added to water to make the solution, the float will rise higher and higher due to the fact that the unit weight of the solution becomes heavier and the float will need to displace less and less of the solution in order to support itself.

If the float were not provided with a narrow neck, but had the same diameter throughout, a small change in the density of the solution would make the change in position of the float so small that it could hardly be noticed. If the neck of the float is small, a change in the density of the solution will be readily noticed as the amount of solution displaced in the neck is so small that the float will rise an inch or so with a small increase in the specific gravity of the solution.

With the Humorists

"Are mine," she murmured softly, "are mine the only lips you have ever kissed?"

He was carried away.

"Yes," he said; "yes, darling, and far the nicest."

"Mary refused to marry you, then? Fancy that! Why didn't you tell her about your rich uncle?"

"I did."

"Didn't that make any difference?"

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

BY HELEN ROWLAND

SUFFERING SYLPHS!

My Daughter, dost thou sigh after slenderness and the Perfect Silhouette?

Wouldst thou suffer to be a sylph?

Then hearken unto these Commandments for the Fat, and defy them not. For the way of the Banter is harder than a bootlegger's conscience and more full of "sacrifices" than a bargain counter.

Thou shalt not look upon the spaghetti when it is red, neither upon the potato when it is white; for she that eatest thereof, breaketh the first law of girth-control.

Thou shalt not rejoice with revelers, neither consort with merrymakers; for laughter and a light heart are sweet to the spirit but fatal to the figure. And no woman can hope to be both happy and hip-less.

They shalt no glorify the palate, but shalt spend all the days of thy life in the counting of thy calories and the measuring of thy vitamines. And the scraping of whipped cream from off thy food shall make bitter thy dove-luncheons and pink teas.

Thy shalt not take comfort in thy bed, neither in thy dreams. For to toss upon a pillow of thorns maketh the insomnias a perfect thirty-six; but to lie peacefully amid feathers after ten o'clock maketh the sylph to resemble an hippopotamus.

Thou shalt not be CHEERFUL. For a tantrum a day keepeth the fat away; but when the smile cometh not off, the flesh cometh ON!

Thou shalt not look longingly upon the wine within the after-dinner coffee cup; neither upon the soft drink when it is iced and tempting. Neither upon the milk of the Jersey, nor the lemonade glass, nor the punch bowls. For she that baneth goeth thirsting all her days.

Thou shalt not covet the clothes of the flapper, neither fall for the persuasions of salesladies. Nay, neither for short skirts, nor for Scotch plaids, nor for flowered chiffon, nor for pleats nor for anything that is the flappers. For a canoe and a Cunarder are not built upon the same lines.

Thou shalt not be happily married! For peace of mind and contentment of heart are enemies to the waistline. But unrequited love and marital infelicity are more potent than reducing pills!

But the FRANKLY FAT shall inherit the earth and all the joy and the comfort therein.

SELAH!

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 12—THE RUNAWAY

"My, isn't the world big!" he cried.

"Oh, ho!" cried Cutie Cottontail. "Now I'm a sailor and I'm going to sea."

He had gone to Mister Bags' store in the woods for a pound of lard, and on his way home he had stopped at the creek and dumped out the lard and made a boat out of the little wooden thing it came in.

He put a piece of paper up for a sail and jumped in, and away he went.

Cutie was a very, very little rabbit boy, the biggest part of him being his pink ears. And the little boat bore him along very fast.

"My, isn't the world big!" he cried. "I've never been so far away from home before."

The little creek carried him along, away from the forest and through the meadow and down through a valley toward the river.

"Hello," he called to Jimmy Jay, looking for mosquitoes along the bank.

"Hello!" called Jimmy. "Where are you going?"

"To make my fortune! I'm going to sea," answered Cutie.

"Look out for whales," laughed Jimmy.

Next he passed Charley Kingfisher.

"Hello!" called Cutie.

"Hello!" called Charley. "Where are you going?"

"I'm going to sea!" answered Cutie loudly.

"Pirates yourself! I'm not afraid," called Cutie, sticking his pink ears forward to show how brave he was.

The next person he passed was Sammy Snipe, wading near the shore in the meadow.

"Hello!" called Cutie. "What are you doing?"

"Fishing," answered Sammy. "What are you doing away out there?"

"Waves yourself! I'm no baby," called Cutie.

On went the little boat until it came to the river.

"Here's the sea!" thought Cutie happily. "I don't see any pirates or whales, or waves. I'm glad I came! Who's afraid?"

The river got wider and a wind came up. Little waves began to splash over the edge of the lard-holder boat. Cutie could see land no longer as this was the place the river emptied into the sea.

"I want to go home," he wailed. "I was only fooling all the time. I wish I was back home with mamma. And I'm hungry. I wish I had some fried carrots. Oh my!"

Suddenly there was a sound in the air and Cutie felt himself lifted up like a feather. Just in time, too, for a big wave splashed over the boat just then and down it went.

Who saved him? Oh, yes, you'll want to know, of course. Mister Bags, the fairyman, telephoned to a friendly eagle who lived on a hilltop, to watch out for the little rabbit boy. And he did. It was the eagle that rescued him.

I don't know whether Mrs. Cotton Tail ever got her lard or not. I don't suppose she did.

THE STORY OF THE BIBLE

By KENDRICK VAN LOON

They burned and plundered so many villages that the Jews forgot their own quarrels long enough to fight the common enemy. They chose Jephthah, of the tribe of Manasseh, as their commander-in-chief. Jephthah was a God-fearing man and soon the power of Ammon was broken.

But even in the hour of victory, the old quarrels between the tribes continued with terrible bitterness. Some of the soldiers accused others (who belonged to the tribe of Ephraim) of having been lax in their duties. The Ephraimites, who unfortunately for themselves had arrived upon the field of battle just when the enemy began his retreat, answered that they were sorry but that they could not help being late. They had had to come all the way from the other side of the river and it was a long distance. Jephthah, however, who was a good deal of a fanatic, accepted no apologies, and would not listen to explanations.

He sent guards to all the fords across the Jordan and gave orders that no one be allowed to pass.

Then he rounded up all the men who were suspected of belonging to the treacherous tribe. It was easy to detect them for in their part of the world the common Hebrew word "shibboleth" (which meant river) was pronounced "sibboleth," as the Ephraimites could not make the liquid sound expressed by the letters "sh." Every man who looked as if he might be an Ephraimite was made to say "shibboleth." When he said "sibboleth," he was taken to the gallows and executed.

In this way, so the Old Testament tells us, forty thousand Ephraimites were killed and after this had been done, Jephthah rode home to keep a vow which he had made to Jehovah just before he had broken the ranks of the Ammonites. He had promised that he would sacrifice the first living thing which came to meet him when he reached his home. He had probably thought of a favorite dog, or perhaps a horse. But unfortunately it was his only daughter who rushed forth to greet her father.

Jephthah kept his word.

He took his daughter and he sacrificed her on Jehovah's altar and burned her body and peace returned once more in the land of Israel.

The story is growing to be monotonous, but ere long, the Philistines and the Jews were once more at each others' throats. The fighting was more ferocious than ever and whole Jewish communities were exterminated.

Then Samson, the great national hero of the Jews, made his appearance. He was as strong as Hercules and as brave as Roland, but not as wise as many of the other great leaders of historical fame.

He was the son of a man called Manoah, and even as a child he was known for his tremendously strong arms.

He was not a nice person to look upon. He never combed his hair and he let his beard grow wild and he rarely bothered about putting on clean clothes. But he had hands like a pair of hammers and he did not know the meaning of the word [illegible].

He gave his parents a great deal of trouble, for when he was [illegible] or nineteen, he fell in love with a Philistine woman and insisted upon marrying her. Of course his own people and all the neighbours were horrified at the idea of this marriage with a foreigner. Samson, however, went right ahead and travelled to Thamnata to claim his [illegible].

On the way west, he was attacked by a lion. With his bare hands he picked the animal up as if it had been a kitten and he killed it and

WHEN I THINK OF MRS. HAMMER SUING ELAM FOR DIVORCE— SHE SAYS ELAM WAS CRUEL TO HER— THAT'S JUST LIKE HEARING AN OLD TOM CAT CRYING BECAUSE A MOUSE CHASED HIM OUT OF THE BARN— ELAM WAS HER SLAVE LONG ENOUGH— NOW. THAT HE'S GRABBED THE WHIP I HOPE HE USES IT LIKE AN AUSTRALIAN WHIP CRACKER— I'LL JUST CALL HER UP AND TELL HER HOW SORRY I AM TO HEAR THE GOOD NEWS—
THIS IS ANDREW GUMP SPEAKING — I JUST READ THE NEWS ABOUT YOU SUING ELAM FOR DIVORCE— I FEEL I AM PARTLY TO BLAME— IF YOU HAD NOT WASTED SO MUCH TIME GIVING MY WIFE ADVICE ON HOW TO RULE A HUSBAND THIS WOULD NOT HAVE HAPPENED— WHAT'S THAT? YOU SAY THE BRUTE THREW THE GAS STOVE AT YOU— MAYBE HE WAS ONLY JOKING — AND HE GAVE YOU A BLACK EYE? YOU MUSN'T WORRY ABOUT ONE BLACK EYE— YOU CAN WATCH FOR THE BLUE BIRD WITH YOUR OTHER EYE— JUST KEEP COOL AND BE FIRM WITH HIM— WHEN HE BEATS YOU DON'T NOTICE IT— REMEMBER EVERYTHING HAPPENS FOR THE BEST—
EVERY TIME I THINK OF LITTLE ELAM THE GIANT KILLER I GET ANOTHER CARLOAD OF LAUGHS— HE'S THE KIND OF BIRD WHO MAKES TYRANTS TREMBLE— HE'S JUST THE KIND OF A FIGHTING FOOL WHO COULD HAVE MADE NERO STOP PLAYING WITH MATCHES— WELL, IT'S JUST WHAT I'VE ALWAYS SAID— THE HARDER YOU PUSH A GUY DOWN THE HIGHER HE'LL BOUNCE WHEN HIS TURN COMES—

PRISON REFORM REACHES CHINA

Sweeping Changes Are Being Made in Jails to Improve Conditions

PEKING June 3—(Canadian Press)—Prison reform in China has been a long time in coming, but it has at last arrived. Sweeping changes are being made at many prisons in China, all of them calculated to improve the conditions under which Chinese criminals are incarcerated.

In the old days, and even today in some of the prisons where the reform wave has not yet penetrated, convicts are invariably whipped on entering jail. Given two small bowls of gruel and two small Chinese loaves of bread, this is their sole daily diet unless some relative comes along and passes something more substantial through the barred door, paying the keeper for the privilege.

In the new prisons of China not only are proper meals provided for prisoners, but they are given definite tasks in which to spend their time, instead of the enforcing of idleness which prevailed under the old system. The new prisons have workshops, flour and grinding mills and gardens and the prisoners are engaged during the hours of daylight in useful occupations. They are even given decent beds to sleep in, a luxury unknown in the old prisons. During the winter the convicts are presented with wadded suits of clothes and as all of them seem plump and well fed, one cannot but wonder when the "death by slow process" of the other prisons will become a thing of the past.

MILLIONAIRE'S WILL MAY YIELD NOTHING

Net Liabilities Reported to Far Exceed the Net Worth

SASKATOON, Sask., June 3.—According to the will of Allan Bowerman, one time millionaire, Saskatoon real estate operator, who died in Los Angeles on December 8, 1923, the income from his estate is to be divided, two-thirds going to the city of Saskatoon for benevolent purposes and one-third to his wife, the capital to be conserved for one hundred years, and then distributed two-thirds to the city of Saskatoon and the remaining third to the University of Saskatchewan.

However, as the estate, which schedules at almost a million dollars has against it net liabilities far exceeding the net worth, it is not expected that the beneficiaries will receive a dollar.

INCREASED SALARIES

WASHINGTON, June 3.—A bill carrying salary increases for postal employees was passed yesterday by the house. The bill now goes to conference with the senate. An average increase of about $300 a year is extended to clerks, carriers, inspectors, supervisors and assistant postmasters.

WINNIPEG EXPENDITURE

WINNIPEG, June 3—Winnipeg ratepayers will be asked to approve an expenditure of $750,000 for revival of the exhibition at a special poll on June 27, it was decided by the city council last night.

SPEAKS TO AUSTRALIA

LONDON, June 3—William Marconi spoke from Poldhu, Cornwall to Australia, an airline distance of 10,000 miles by radio telephone Sunday, according to the Daily Mail. Transmission occupied one-sixteenth of a second and was acknowledged by cable.

ONE CROW HELPS ANOTHER

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., June 3—(Canadian Press)—At least one crow of Langara Island is not as black as it is painted according to Mrs. H. Armstrong, of Langara Island Lighthouse. Large numbers of crows pick up food about the lighthouse and are quite tame. One crow was noticed to always fly away with all it could carry in its beak, after having first feasted. The lighthouse keeper investigated and discovered that the food was regularly taken to a nest where lived another crow, stone blind, which was unable to rustle for itself.

METHODISTS MEETING

REGINA, June 3—The twenty first annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Methodists opened here today. The statistics and stationing committees were in private session all day. The first general session will open on Wednesday night prior to which the various standing committees will meet to prepare their reports.

RAIN AT SASKATOON

SASKATOON, June 3—Rain which fell steadily at most points for about two and a half hours last night is reported in the territory from Hardisty, Alta., east to Theodore, Sask., north to Melfort, Sask., and south to Balcarres, Sask. In Saskatoon district the rain was beginning to be badly needed by the growing crops.

FIRES MENACE B. C.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 3.—Continued drought has made the forest fire situation all over British Columbia extremely grave, according to a bulletin issued today by the forestry branch of the lands department.

MANY ENTRANTS OLYMPIC TRIALS

Two Hundred U.S. Swimmers in Final Trial

INDIANAPOLIS, June 3.—Winners and second place men in the Olympic finals tryouts here June 5, 6 and 7, will compose the United States swimming team at the Paris games in July. Following the tryouts of the team members will join the track and field squad at New York for the trip overseas.

The course laid out in the Board Ripple pool here is a duplicate of the 50-metre pool at Paris. Special diving boards similar to those which will be used overseas also have been constructed.

Charles J. Lynch of Detroit has been selected by Director Paul Jordan as referee. John T. Taylor of Pittsburgh, chairman of the Olympic swimming selection committee, will be starter. Judges of diving include Referee Lynch, Leo Hogan, of Chicago, James A. Taylor of Columbus, and J. P. Nihl of New York.

Many Competitors

More than 200 entrants, including teams from Hawaii, the Pacific coast, New York, New Orleans, Chicago, Detroit and other centers will participate in nine events.

It will be the first Olympic final tryouts for John Weissmuller, Chicago, world's greatest swimmer. Duke Kahanamoku and his brother Sam, together with Warren Keloha, Hawaiian stars, and "Buddy" Smith the New Orleans champion, probably will give Weissmuller stiff competition.

Seven speed and two diving events, the low board and high diving, will compose the competition. Should Weissmuller win first in more than one event the second and perhaps the third place men will be selected.

Seven timers will clock the speed swimmers. Director Jordan arranged the system of timing and scoring to accommodate the largest field of entrants. It is the first time that all of the men's finals tryouts have been staged by one association of the A.A.U.

OLD ROMAN CAMP HOUSE IS FOUND IN BRITAIN

LONDON, June 3.—A camp house where probably in olden times the unwelcome Roman legions once feasted, has been found among a group of newly discovered Roman remains at Folkstone, on the English Channel, where the first Romans are said to have landed. The remains consist of two buildings, in each of which are about seven hearths, which leads to the belief that they were used as the cook houses and dining halls of early Roman camps.

The base of a watch tower also has been found, built in a wall which evidently surrounded the camp. Several burial urns and Roman glass have been dug up, all in perfect condition. The excavations are being made under the supervision of experts from the British Museum, to which institution the relics will be given.

FARMER LABOR GROUP WILL CONVENE JUNE 17

ST. PAUL, June 3.—Plans were going ahead today for the national convention of the Farmer-Labor Progressive group under the leadership of William Mahoney, St. Paul labor leader, to be held here June 17, to discuss a third party movement for the general elections in November.

The executive committee of the Minnesota Farmer-Labor Federation has decided to hold the convention despite a statement by Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, recently denouncing the proposed meeting because of the participation of representatives of the Workers' or Communist Party.

WOULD-BE HUSBAND THREATENS WOMAN

OTTAWA, June 3.—"When is a pistol not a pistol?" This question was solved in police court today when Arthur Laroque was fined $5 and costs for carrying a pistol which he claimed was defective and with which Miss Mary Sweeney testified Laroque had threatened to "make an angel out of her" last night if she did not marry him.

Counsel for the prisoner maintained that a pistol is not a pistol unless it can be used. This caused Magistrate Hopewell to wonder if an automobile was an automobile if it would not work.

SIX LOSE LIVES WHEN FAST TRAIN CRASHES

ATTICA, Ind., June 3. — Six persons were killed and more than a score injured, several seriously, when a Wabash passenger train No. 2, en route from St. Louis to Detroit, side-swiped a freight train ten miles west of here.

The passenger train, one of the fastest on the system, is believed to have hit a split rail and crashed into the freight which was standing on a siding. The engineer of the freight, G. M. Borechard, of Peru, Indiana, was killed outright. He was the only one of the dead who had been identified at an early hour today.

JAPANESE LABOR PAY

TOKIO, June 3. — The average daily wage of Japanese laborers, including women, is 1.55 yen, at normal exchange about seventy-eight cents in American currency, according to figures published by the home department. The average wage for male laborers is 1.79 yen and for women 88 sen, and the average work day is ten hours, twenty-six minutes.

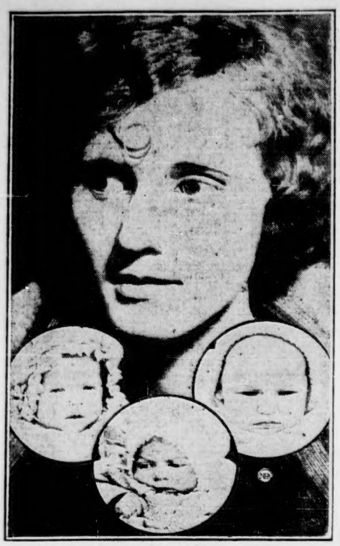
HUNGARY'S LOW BIRTH RATE

BUDAPEST, June 3.—While Germany, Poland and other countries vie with one another to ascertain which has the largest percentage in the birth rate, Hungary recently has taken her place at the foot of the list and admits it. Statistics compiled here show that Hungary has now taken absolutely last place among all the European countries.

WAGE BILL PASSES

LONDON, June 3.—The House of Commons tonight, by a vote of 243 to 214 passed the second reading of the government's agricultural wages bill, which provides for the creation of agricultural wage committees, representing equally the employers and workers, with an independent chairman, and reference to central board in the event of a failure to reach an agreement.

The Wisdom of Solomon Is Not Enough In This Case



Fannie Lockwood, 17-year-old St. Louis girl mother, has a task on her hands. She must decide which of three babies is the one that was taken from her a week after its birth. These are the three from which she must make her choice. All are 4 months old now. Blood tests probably will solve the tangle.

TIRPITZ PLANS COUP, SAYS GERMAN EDITOR

BERLIN, June 3.—Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, as chancellor-regent, and William Frederick, eldest son of Former Crown Prince Frederick William, as "chair warmer" for the monarchy, is alleged to constitute the platform of the German Nationalists, according to George Bernhardt editor of The Vossische Zeitung. Bernhardt says these are the future of a coup d'etat planned by the Nationalists.

The editor intimates that the United States and Great Britain have joined in a plan at officially forestalling entry of the German Nationalists into the new government and that a strong hint has been given from both quarters that the advent of reactionaries in the cabinet will be the occasion for pronounced misgivings in both countries.

"NO ACCIDENT WEEK"

MONTREAL, June 3.—Inaugurating "no accident week," Mayor Duquette on Saturday unveiled a shaft erected here by the Province of Quebec Safety League to commemorate victims of accidents in 1923, but specially as a tribute to the fifty-one children killed on Montreal streets last year in preventable traffic accidents.
